WOMAN MAY BE C. E. PRESIDENT

U. S. Ready To Meet Geneva Opposition

CURRENT COMMENT
By Chester H. Rowell

WHILE those who opposed the pardon of Miss Anita Whitney included some very sincere persons and two or three excellent newspapers, they were in a small minority, and the expressed approval of Governor Young's action is otherwise nearly unanimous. The author and the introducer of the law under which Miss Whitney was convicted; the judges of the various courts which passed on her case; religious and civic organizations and leaders, and nearly all newspapers in California were favorable to the Governor's action. If the Governor himself based his conclusion on a much more thorough study of the record in the case than any of his critics have made, his expressed opinion is that if they had made this study, they would have reached the same conclusion. And those of us who think the Governor was right have the satisfaction of being in the majority. The papers are recommended to read the Governor's very excellent statement of the case.

EARLY reports of the three-nation conference on naval disarmament are discouraging. Each nation proposes something which neither of the others will accept. In fact, both the British and Japanese proposals are to the effect that America shall do the disarming and accept a permanently inferior position. The British proposal, in addition, includes the absurdity that one of the five Washington Conference signatories shall revise its schedules, without the consent of the other two. And the Japanese even proposed that America shall be penalized for its self-restraint, in refraining from a naval race until an attempt could be made to prevent it. The only serious objection to the American plan is that it proposes its chief reduction in cruisers, in which we are now inferior, and not in destroyers and submarines, in which we are superior.

EVEN if the conference should fail, it would be no worse than the conferences which the other powers have held on the same subject. And it will have been worth holding even if it fails. The resulting naval race will then be demonstrated to have been forced on us, instead of chosen by us. We can meet that race if necessary, and we can win it if we do. But we want no such race. We have better use for our money, and we and the other naval powers will be as safe with armies equalized on a lower as on a higher level. We have gone to the conference determined to avoid such a race if possible, but to win it if necessary.

THE very irreconcilability of the two proposals offers perhaps the best hope of agreement. It demonstrates that some one must yield. The only constructive yielding is in the direction of disarmament. The American proposals are the best for that. They will not be accepted unchanged, but they are the basis of a possible agreement. Any proposal looking to a still greater disarmament we have already offered to accept, provided it is on a basis of equality.

FORTUNATELY, America is well represented. Hugh Gibson, a Californian and a good American, is one of the best examples of a "career man" in American diplomacy. Luck put him in Belgium at the outbreak of the World War, and at the crisis of its relations with the world, and in Switzerland just when America began to have acknowledged relations with the League of Nations, to which he became our natural intermediary. But something much more personal than luck made him rise brilliantly to all these opportunities. He has also been our representative at all the preliminary conferences on disarmament, and understands the situation better than any other American. Incidentally, he is a stalwart defender of American rights, whose viewpoint, in spite of long foreign residence, is emphatically American. He knows the game and the men who are playing it, and has already demonstrated his capacity to play it well.

IT IS interesting also to note that this conference, called by President Coolidge, meets unashamedly in the building of the League of Nations—indeed, in the very "glass room" where the Council meets. And there is no shocked protest from the country. We have discovered that the League is not afflicted with small-pox, and that it is possible to have contact with it without danger of pestilence. Only last year, when the conference of signatories was held on American reservations at the World Court, the conference took pains to respect American sentiment by meeting in the building of the International Labor Office, remote from the league, and to emphasize that they did it for this reason. Now an American-called conference meets in the League office itself, and Hugh Gibson presides at the very horseshoe-shaped table where the Council meets. Verily we have gone a long way from the time when Harding proclaimed the League is already scrapped; there is nothing to join," and our state department would not even acknowledge receipt of leters from it.

MAY RECITE BALFOUR AND KATO STAND

America Would Appeal to Position Taken by England, Japan at Capital

COMMITTED TO 5-5-3

No Changes Since Previous Conference Justify Reversal of Policy, Claim

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—If a deadlock occurs at the Geneva naval limitation conference over the American plan for a 5-5-3 ratio for American, British and Japanese auxiliary ships, the United States is prepared to appeal to the stand taken by the other two governments at the Washington arms conference.

At the second plenary session of the Washington conference in November, 1921, Lord Balfour, chief British delegate, and Baron Kato, head of the Tokio delegation, committed their governments in principle to application of the 5-5-3 ratio to auxiliary craft.

The American delegation at Geneva is prepared, if necessary, to quote the words of Balfour and Kato as answer to any British or Japanese opposition now to a principle accepted by both in 1921.

No fundamental change has occurred since 1921 either in the international relations between the three countries or in naval technique to justify a reversal of policy by London and Tokio, according to the American view.

TECHNICAL COMMISSION REACHES AGREEMENT

GENEVA, June 24.—With its technical commission agreed on the number of ships and total tonnage which would be permitted under each of the proposals presented to the tri-power naval limitation conference, the delegations of Great Britain, Japan and the United States today were ready for detailed negotiations.

The technical commission, which was to report on its work today to the executive committee, composed of the heads of the three delegations, made no attempt to choose between the plans.

It devoted itself to the interchange of information to establish the exact tonnages of each class of warship which would be permitted the nations involved under the proposals presented at the opening session of the conference.

HERO SETS OUT TO CARVE SELF CAREER

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Charles Lindbergh today set out to carve for himself a career in commercial aviation.

The modest youth who flew to Paris was scheduled today for a series of conferences which are expected to open the way for him to the biggest things in flying. Lindbergh spent the night in the home of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who announced before he left Washington for the Mississippi flood zone that the aviator proposed to devote himself to development of commercial flying.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce W. P. McCracken, civilian aviation chief, who is working out with Lindbergh specific details of the flyer's future, was Lindbergh's host at Hoover's residence on S. street.

Hoover paid new tribute to Lindbergh with the characterizations "a remarkable boy" and "a young man who stands with both feet on the ground at all times."

Cotton Men Oust Sapiro As Counsel

(By United Press)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—Aaron Sapiro has been ousted from his powerful position as general counsel for the American Cotton Growers' exchange, it was learned here today from executives of the organization.

The executive committee, which met in May, failed to re-elect the famous attorney and named Abe Waldauer, youthful Memphis lawyer, to succeed him. Announcement of the change was withheld lest it should influence Sapiro's suit against Henry Ford.

Waldauer, who formerly was associated with Sapiro, will be entrusted with the all important duty of drawing up the exchange's five-year contract, which must be signed by all member state organizations.

AUTHORIZATION IS GIVEN ARMY HAWAIIAN HOP

Maitland Ready as Soon as Weather Permits, War Secretary Says

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, June 24—Formal authorization for Lts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert F. Hagenberger, U. S. A., air corps, to attempt a flight from California to Hawaii, was given today by secretary of War Davis, after a conference with Assistant Secretary Davison in charge of air service.

The secretary's sanction coincided with reports that the two men had completed satisfactorily at San Diego the necessary advance tests with their three-motored army plane.

The war department said the plane will be ready to take off on its stirring venture as soon as weather conditions permit.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army corps, is now enroute to San Francisco. Upon arrival Sunday, he will finally check up on the lieutenants' tests, which dealt chiefly with navigation problems.

The flight probably will start from an airport near Oakland, where a runway now is being completed.

The war department made it clear it will not rush its preparations in any spirit of competition with flyers now planning jumps from the Pacific coast to Hawaii. While the army would welcome the glory of being the first to span uninterruptedly the 2400 miles between the Golden Gate and Hawaii, it intends to approach the attempt in a spirit of military thoroughness and accuracy.

It was emphasized that the two army men cannot accept prize money or other awards offered for a Pacific hop.

START NEXT MONTH DECLARES MAITLAND

SAN DIEGO, June 24—"That's fine. We'll start some time during the full of the moon next month," Lieutenant Maitland said when informed by the United Press that the secretary of war had authorized him and Lieutenant Hagenberger to make the flight.

Their plans, however, are subject to revision by Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Maitland said, and the start may be made later if Patrick deems it advisable.

Further tests of their monoplane will be made during the next 10 days here, Maitland said.

"We're not going to take off for San Francisco, or from San Francisco for Honolulu until we're satisfied," he said.

FIRST LADY IS BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT RACE

Mrs. Coolidge Very Popular With Dakotans

(By United Press)

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 24.—The first lady of the land has won the affections of South Dakota by a sufficient majority to cause editorial comment in newspapers here concerning suggestions that she run for the presidency next year in case Mr. Coolidge declines to be a candidate.

Mrs. Coolidge's styles and habits are closely recorded by local newspapers in answer to demands of women who desire to emulate her. Everywhere she goes she is greeted by cheering.

Jason Randolph, of Huron, wrote a letter to a newspaper there suggesting that Mrs. Coolidge be a candidate.

"She is the most charming women I have ever seen and I am sure everyone here who has seen her would vote for her," Randolph wrote.

The idea has been taken up by other newspapers in the state and white it has yet assumed no proportions of a serious political boom, it has shown the popularity of the first lady.

Townspeople particularly were pleased when they learned she baited her own hook when she went fishing. Hundreds have sent her South Dakota wild flowers and she has acknowledge each gift with a personal letter. Her mail is as large as that of the president.

Recently Mr. Coolidge came out to meet a crowd at the lodge and was greeted by applause. Mrs. Coolidge coming out a minute later caused it to double in volume. She spends her time walking, fishing, knitting and supervising the household.

Mr. Coolidge is highly pleased at the first lady's popularity.

He has now settled down to a routine business day, coming in to the executive offices nearly every morning. Yesterday morning he was up early to meet his guest, Gov. General Leonard Wood, of the Philippines.

Wood is expected to see newspapermen some time today and make a definite statement regarding reports that he will resign. Injuries and illness have severely crippled him physically and he is hardly able to get out.

However, unless his physicians insist that he cannot return to duty, he will go back to his post in September, it was authoritatively learned.

Davis, helping aboard the lumber schooner Brookdale, lost his footing and fell overboard striking his head on a fender lock.

Workman rescued the semi-conscious man and removed him to a hospital, where it was reported that his skull was fractured.

JACOB BERMAN, SOUGHT IN JULIAN CASE, IN NEW YORK

Super-Wisdom Drives Boy To Suicide

BERKELEY, June 24.—"Super-intelligence" was suggested today as the motive that led Herbert C. Gardener, 18-year-old University of California freshman, son of a wealthy New York coal operator, to snuff out his own life with gas. Young Gardener was found dead last night in the Chi Tau fraternity house, his face turned to an open gas jet. Gardener was the son of P. F. Gardener, said to have extensive holdings in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields.

Extradition Action Will Be Prompt Despite Alleged Murder Threats

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—The Los Angeles county grand jury, investigating the wrecking of the Julian Petroleum corporation, will remain in session until midnight to return the first group of indictments, Harold L. Davis, deputy district attorney, announced late today. Indictments against from 40 to 60 were being voted shortly after the afternoon session opened.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—Jacob Berman, central figure in the Julian Petroleum corporation crash, wired District Attorney Asa Keyes from Brooklyn today, offering to return to this city if "prompt, fearless and impartial action" is taken to prosecute the guilty parties.

Berman, who is said to have participated in the financial nightmare involving millions of dollars, wired that he arrived in New York yesterday, aboard the S. S. Paris.

"I arrived in New York yesterday, aboard S. S. Paris, under my own name as Mr. Donnelly (his New York attorney) promised you I would after resting 30 or 40 days in Europe," Berman wired Keyes. "Mr. Donnelly advised me to return to California.

Threatened With Death

"I refused because I have been threatened with assassination and because I do not intend to be made a scapegoat and will not return until every guilty person involved in the Julian Petroleum failure has been indicted.

"This means prompt, fearless and impartial action on your part. When that is done I will return to your jurisdiction."

In another wire to Joseph Scott, one of the Julian receivers, Berman said:

"Returned from France yesterday, conferred with Donnelly. He advised me return Los Angeles, but refused for reasons stated in my telegram to Keyes.

"Am willing to recover from usurers approximately six million dollars and from others approximately two million dollars for benefit of stockholders. Feel that if this is done by me proper consideration should be shown me. I must not be made the scapegoat as presently appears, no one having been indicted."

Associated With Lewis

Berman was closely associated with S. C. Lewis, ex-head of the Julian company. Berman disappeared a short time after Julian "Pete" was barred from the stock exchanges and millions of dollars were said to have passed through his hands.

With definite knowledge that Berman is in New York, Keyes prepared today to extradite the missing Julian corporation "financial wizard" and bring him back to Los Angeles to answer charges against him in connection with the oil company's collapse.

Regardless of death threats Berman's attorneys say have been made against him, the district attorney's office will refuse to "negotiate," but will act to bring him here as soon as he is located.

Following the receipt of news that Berman is in New York, it was reported that the grand jury was prepared to return possibly as many as 50 indictments late today.

D'AUTREMONTS MAKE NO SHOW OF REPENTANCE

Brothers Wise-Crack When Taken to Prison to Begin Sentence

(By United Press)

SALEM, Ore., June 24—The D'Autremont boys went to prison today.

The brothers, Roy, Ray and Hugh, who dynamited a passenger train and killed four of the crew, made no outward show of repentance as they entered the state penitentiary for life.

Hugh said:

"Oregon is a great state. I think I'll settle down here."

It is the same prison from which Harry Tracy, an object of Hugh's youthful "hero worship," shot his way to liberty a generation ago.

On the all night trip from Jacksonville, where yesterday they were sentenced to life imprisonment, Hugh and the garrulous twin, Ray, talked constantly. Roy, the silent twin, was quiet but responsive to the bonds of brotherly affection which seem to bind the three.

"Long Time To Serve It"

"We have a long sentence," Ray remarked. "But we have a long time in which to serve it .We'd rather be in the pen with Hugh than to be without him."

At another time Ray, who is 26, told Hugh:

"Boy, you sure stuck by your brothers. You never once mentioned names in anything you said."

Hugh was arrested early this year in Manila and was convicted of first degree murder last Tuesday. Because of his youth and the fact that evidence was circumstantial, the jury voted against the death penalty.

Roy and Ray were arrested recently in Steubenville, O., and were awaiting arraignment when Hugh was sentenced.

Fear that they might not escape so lightly as Hugh is thought to have led the twins to confess yesterday. They told the complete story of the train dynamiting and murders and with Hugh completing the group, received their sentences of life imprisonment.

Hugh Feared Hanging

Hugh revealed his fear that he would be sentenced to hang. "All during the trial," he said, "I expected to hang. When I saw the backs of the jurymen I could think of nothing else."

"I didn't Hughie," Roy said. "I couldn't figure anybody hanging my blue-eyed kid brother."

In this attitude of mutual "hero worship," the D'Autremont brothers entered prison to pay for one of the most brutal crimes in the history of the west.

By their own confessions, Hugh killed Sid Bates, engineer; Ray killed C. P. Johnson, brakeman, and Roy killed Marvin Seng, the fireman. Ray pressed the pump which set off dynamite killing Elven Daugherty, mail clerk, and wrecking the mail car of the Southern Pacific "Gold Special" in a Siskiyou tunnel, Oct. 11, 1923.

FILM PLAYERS MAKE BEST OF SALARY SLASH

Happy Ending Town Seeks Laugh Out of Action Cutting Pay

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD, June 24.—Hollywood, the "happy-ending town," was seeking a laugh today in the action that will slash 10 per cent from its income.

Having recovered from the daze which followed the announcement of Jesse L. Lasky, the film colony took the situation in a jocular mood and "10 per cent discount" became overnight the basis for repartee.

With the combined action of all large producing companies in following in line with the request made by Lasky that all employes take a voluntary cut in salary, the film players have no alternative but to accept the reduction, or, in the parlance of the studios, "do a final fadeout."

The announcement that every film organization would adopt a program of strict economy was made following a conference of members of the Motion Picture Producers' association, the destinies of which are guided by Will Hays.

Sixteen film companies, including First National Productions corporation, Christie Film company, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation, Cecil B. De Mille Pictures corporation, Harold Lloyd corporation, Paramount Famous Lasky corporation, Hal Roach studios, United Artists Studio corporation, Mack Sennett, Inc., F. B. O. studios, Universal Pictures, Warner Brothers, William Fox Vaudeville company, Metropolitan Pictures corporation and Sam Goldwyn, Inc., announced cuts.

Rigid economy is to be extended to all departments of the industry, according to the statement of Fred W. Beetson, western representative of the producers' organization.

Prohibitive cost of production, due to high salaries and lack of economy, was the only reason given for the move, which was decided upon after a series of meetings between the various producers.

"Certainly I dislike to take a cut in salary," one famous star said, "but—." Hollywood is "laughing it off," because there is nothing else to do."

BLAST VICTIMS RECOVERING

OAKLAND, June 24.—All victims of an explosion yesterday in the Claremont east bay utilities tunnel were reported recovering here today. Richard Zurich and S. E. Miller, the most seriously injured, were thought to be out of danger.

DELAY MARKS REPORTS ON NOMINATIONS

Miss McDonald's Election Would Take Post from Men's Ranks First Time

FOUNDER IS HONORED

Sacramento, Berkeley Open Campaigns to Secure Organization's 1928 Meet

WITH 45 COUNTIES represented in the various sessions of the fortieth annual convention of the California Christian Endeavor union and with additional delegations pouring in from Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Diego and other points, steps were taken today to select officers for the new administration year as well as to select a convention city for 1928.

The nominating committee, headed by Carl H. White, of San Diego, which was to have reported at the general business session scheduled for this afternoon, in the First Baptist church, will not be ready to submit its recommendations until tomorrow, inquiries disclosed.

In addition to filling the 10 principal offices, the committee will bring in nominations for a number of minor offices. The procedure provides for election of officers by nomination of the committee, there being no nominations from the floor.

It was practically admitted today that Miss Edith McDonald, of San Francisco, now holding the office of general secretary, will be the next president of the California Christian Endeavor union. If elected, and there is every indication that she will be, she will be the first woman to hold that office since the union was organized in 1888, with F. H. Adams, of Oakland, as its first president.

Educational Worker

Miss McDonald is a teacher in the San Francisco city schools. Besides her activities in the Christian Endeavor and other church organizations, she has been identified with educational work and child welfare organizations.

The views of the convention on matters which directly affect the youth of the country will be set forth in resolutions to be submitted by the resolutions committee at a business meeting to be held tomorrow. In this connection, it was intimated that the Endeavorers will not sidestep any issue which should receive attention and will make known its stand in definite language.

At the business session scheduled for this afternoon, in the Baptist church, reports of officers and committees will be read, including those dealing with the finances and budget of the organization.

Evidence of friendly rivalry existing between the Sacramento and the Berkeley delegations in securing the convention for 1928 was the campaign launched this morning among the delegates to enlist support for their respective cities. These efforts were supplemented by scores of telegrams from city officials, chambers of commerce and church bodies from both places. The place of meeting committee will submit its report tomorrow, it was stated.

Attendance Gratifying

The attendance and the interest in the program, President Glen D. Wight, of Corona, declared today, has been most gratifying, all but a few of the county unions in the state being represented and several of them being represented by full delegations.

Bible studies and devotional services, which have formed an outstanding feature of the program—a feature which is the test of devotion to Christian Endeavor work—have been well attended and the interest shown in the discussion has been marked.

Among the interesting features of the convention are the exhibits which contain a full showing of the Christian Endeavor publications and training equipment.

Hope was expressed today by the local convention committee that delegates and visitors from Orange county points will register and thus contribute their share toward financing the convention.

This afternoon the entire delegation will assemble in the First Baptist church for a memorial service, to be held in honor of the late Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor and president of the World's Union of Christian Endeavor. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Paul C. Brown, Pacific coast field secretary of the organization.

OMAHA SNIPER FORFEITS HIS LIFE IN CHAIR WITH SMILE

(By United Press)

LINCOLN, Nebr., June 24.—Frank Carter, the Omaha "sniper," died in the electric chair today.

The man who was convicted of two murders and who terrorized Omaha, Neb., for several weeks as he "sniped" at passersby, was led to the electric chair in the state prison at 6:13 a. m. Six minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Carter walked smilingly to his death, telling Executioner Gilbert to "turn on the juice" as he settled himself in the chair. Those were Carter's last words.

Then the man who terrorized Omaha for many weeks smiled and the wan, somewhat wistful smile was on his lips after his stiffened form had been pronounced dead by physicians.

Nebraska had exacted its toll for the murders of Dr. Austin Searles and William McDivitt, whom Carter killed in Omaha in February, 1926.

The confessed sniper claimed, in addition to these, many other killings, almost boastfully relating how he shot men down from ambush.

SUIT AGAINST LILLIAN GISH INVOLVES BROKEN ROMANCE

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—Lillian Gish, whose screen characterization in "Broken Blossoms" and other film fantasies are well known, today was defendant in a $5,000,000 suit involving the skeins of a shattered romance between herself and Charles H. Duell, president of Inspirational Pictures, Inc.

The complaint alleges that Miss Gish on Sept. 1, 1922, signed a contract to star in Inspirational Pictures until Jan. 1, 1930, and charges that the same was broken Dec. 1, 1924.

Duell asks for $3,000,000 and $2,000,000 punitive damages. He alleges that Miss Gish broke off her engagement to marry him, after he had divorced the then Mrs. Duell.

Co-dependants with Miss Gish in the action include the Metro-Goldwyn Pictures corporation, Metro-Goldwyn Distributing corporation, Loew, Incorporated; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Incorporated, Nicholas M. Schenck, J. Robert Rubin, Louis B. Mayer, Mary R. Gish, Louis F. Levy and other corporations.

L. A. Flyer Ready To Leave Hawaii

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—Announcement was made today by William D. Pelley that Dick Grace, Los Angeles aviator, will hop off from Honolulu for Los Angeles late tomorrow or Sunday. Grace was aboard the Matson freighter Manukai, scheduled to dock in Honolulu late today. Pelley is business manager for Maj. Grant Dodge, Los Angeles financier, who is backing the proposed 2300-mile flight.

Grace hopes to complete the flight in 20 hours.

RAY RAYMOND, KELLY PLANNED BATTLE, CLAIM

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—Paul Kelly and Ray Raymond were planning to battle in a free-for-all love duel, with friends on both sides, an hour and a half after the bare fist struggle, from which Raymond is asserted to have died.

This was the substance of testimony offered from the witness stand today by Dorothy Mackaye, stage star, on trial charged with attempting to conceal circumstances surrounding her husband's death.

The statement was made under a grilling fire of cross-examination during which she vehemently denied any attempt to cover up details of the song and dance man's death.

"Isn't it true, Miss Mackaye, that you asked Deputy District Attorney Ellis Eagan when the investigation began, how the officers learned of the affair and didn't you say, 'I wonder if that doctor double-crossed me?'"

"Absolutely not," Miss Mackaye flashed back.

Kelly and Raymond had planned to call their friends and meet for another battle later, Miss Mackaye testified. This was abandoned however, when Perry Askom, who called at the Raymond home, refused to participate.

Only two more witnesses are to be called by the defense, which is expected to close today. Both witnesses will give medical testimony.

Officer's Slayer Hanged In Illinois

CHICAGO, June 24.—Elin Lyons, Colombian, convicted of killing a patrolman, was hanged today.

Shortly before the execution, Lyons again denied he had killed the patrolman, Julian Bonfield, but said he was ready to die.

Strong Wind Fans Kern Forest Fire

BAKERSFIELD, June 24.—Fanned by a strong wind, the Kern county forest fire raged unchecked through the timberland of Santa Barbara national forest last night and today and was licking the slopes of Antimony peak over a five-mile front.

Twenty fire fighters have been injured in the battle with the blaze, forest rangers reported last night. Emergency first aid was given the injured.

Forest rangers estimate the flames have desolated more than 10,000 acres of national forest land. The fire started Tuesday on San Emidio ranch, 40 miles south of here, burning over 8000 acres of grass land before reaching the forest boundary.

CONFESSED NEGRO MURDERER HANGED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 24.—Going to his death on his 18th birthday, Lonnie Dixon, negro, today paid with his life for the confessed assault and murder of 11-year-old Floella McDonald, a white girl, here last April 12. Dixon was executed by the state of Arkansas shortly after 5 a. m.

In a confession in the death cell at 3 a. m., Dixon cleared his cousin, Eugene Hudson, of any participation in the murder.

Dixon walked calmly to his death, clutching a note from his mother in his right hand. He was pronounced dead at 5:18 a.m.

Relatives of the McDonald girl were on hand for the execution.

Dixon's last request last night was for a large quantity of watermelon. A half dozen melons were taken to his cell and he devoted his entire last evening alive to eating watermelon.

NEW DANCE FOUND IS 'BANANA SLIDE'

PARIS, June 24.—The banana slide seems to Paris dancing masters a good substitute for the charleston and the black bottom.

They describe the charleston as dying and the black bottom as successfully stopped before it got well started.

The banana slide, already demonstrated in public here, combines the antics of the proverbial silk-hatted gentleman skidding on a banana peel, and certain steps from the old reliable fox trot with a slight addition of the quieter movements of the charleston.

Some critics regard the slide as too much like the vaudeville dance artists' split with a recovery, to be executed by the average dancer. The instructors, however, propose to popularize a modified gliding step that won't result in accidents.

Glenn L. Martin Enters Plane In Santa Ana Meet

Glenn L. Martin, former Santa Anan, and world known manufacturer and designer of airplanes, will send his plane, "The City of Cleveland," to this city to participate in the International Air Peace jubilee, to be held here July 2 to 9, it was reported today by officials in charge of the meet.

The Martin entry was received this morning. Possibility that Glenn Martin, himself, and his mother, Mrs. C. Y. Martin, of this city, would be in attendance, was seen by C. Y. Martin, Glenn's father.

Martin stated that he had heard nothing from his son or wife regarding a possible trip here, but would not be surprised if Glenn and his mother accompanied the "City of Cleveland" here.

SIR ELLERMAN IS ENGLAND'S RICHEST MAN

LONDON, June 24.—The fierce light of publicity which beats upon American millionaires very rarely shines upon the Englishman of great wealth. Just because a man has a lot of money he is not necessarily "news" in this country, and many a Britisher has built up a huge fortune without attracting any public attention.

A recent investigation of England's men of millions has produced the names of several men who rarely come into the limelight; it has also disclosed the curious fact that there is not one banker among a dozen of the wealthiest men of the country.

The wealthiest Englishman today is believed to be Sir John Ellerman, the shipowner, who is reputed to be worth well over 100 million dollars. In a country where so many people inherit riches, it is an interesting fact that Sir John is a self-made man.

He was born in Hull and became an accuontant's clerk when he left school, but he soon turned his attention to shipping and is now the third biggest owner of tonnage in the world. He has also long held important interests in the brewing industry, and not long ago he sold a group of illustrated weekly journals at a profit said to be over 10 million dollars. When the late Lord Northcliffe bought the Times, Sir John was the second largest shareholder.

Is Hard Worker

Work is England's richest man's greatest interest. His short, unostentations bearded figure is often to be seen at theatrical first-nights, but he has no particular pastimes or hobbies, and at the age of 65 he finds it much more amusing to make money than to spend it.

Lord Iveagh ranks next in England's list of wealth. His fortune is believed to be not much less than 100 million dollars.

It came partly by inheritance, for he succeeded his father, Sir Benjamin Guinness, as head of the great firm of Dublin stout brewers.

Though now in his eightieth year, Lord Iveagh still takes an active interest in the family business, but he is not among the millionaries who taken an interest in work only. His country house, Elveden, where King George sometimes goes to shoot, is a marvelous treasure house of art, as is also his London home in Grosvenour place. He is also noted for his public and private generosity.

Prominent among men possessing 75 million dollars is Lord Cowdray, who owns one of the few English oil fortunes and was able to sell a great holding in Mexican Eagles at the top of the market.

As Sir Weeman Pearson he was known as a great building contractor and head of the engineering firm which built the Pennsylvania tunnels. Lord Cowdray is a Yorkshireman.

Many Have 75 Millions

S. B. Joel is another man in the 75-million dollar class. He owes something to heredity and family affluence, for his uncle, Barney Barneto, took him into his firm from an East London school and soon made his its head. He is now permanent chairman of the Johannesburg Consolidated Investment company and a director of many mining corporations, including the Premier Transvaal Diamond Mining company and the De Beers Consolidated Mines. A few months ago he became a director of London's subways and he has wide theatrical interests. he has a racing stable, a house on the Thames with a delightful garden, a Pompeian swimming pool, a Palm court, and pictures and sculptures of his own choosing.

His brother, Jack Joel, is another 75-million-dollar man. He, too, worked and prospered in South Africa mining enterprises. Stock breeding is his great hobby. His racing stud is one of the finest in the world, and he also breeds canaries and pigeons. He has twice won the Epsom derby.

Another multi-millionaire credited with possessing 75 million dollars is Lord Rothermere, brother of the late Lord Northcliffe. He is more gifted as a business man than as a newspaper editor, and is a self-made man, most of his money having been accumulated in connection with the Northcliffe publications.

Suspected Killer Slain By Officers

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—With a pile of milk cans as his only means of protection, Chris Aicheles, 57 suspected slayer of Nevil Lohr, 25, ranch employe, held a squad of Denver policemen and a posse of 100 deputy sheriffs and ranchers at bay for more than half an hour before he was shot to death today.

Aicheles was dying as officers broke through his milk can barricade and overpowered him. He succumbed before he could be taken to a hospital. There were 12 bullet wounds in his body.

isfied that the plane is in perfect condition and the weather is right," he asserted.

Maitland characterized as "just a good story" published reports that the flight will be primarily a test of radio beacons being developed by army engineers.

The report he referred to said that the flyers would try to fly their plane across the ocean guided by directional radio waves flashed from two army radio stations at San Francisco and at Paia on the island of Maui.

"Of course we'll use these radio beacons if they're perfected by the time of the flight," he said. "So far, however, they have not been developed to where he can believe they'd work on such a flight."

BYRD AGAIN HELD TO GROUND BY STORMS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 24—A northern storm area, which moved faster than weather observers expected, extended from Nantucket to Newfoundland today and kept the monoplane America from starting its long delayed Paris flight.

The America had been towed into take-off position on the long runway down which Charles Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin started their Atlantic trips. It was fueled, provisioned and ready for flight when word from Weather Forecaster James H. Kimball forced Com. Richard E. Byrd to postpone his venture.

The big tri-motored Fokker plane was kept in shape to fly at a moment's notice, despite pessimistic word from Kimball that the storm area would not be dissipated until tomorrow morning at the earliest and probably not until Sunday.

Byrd and his crew, Lt. G. O. Noville, Bert Acosta and Boint Batchen, showed its disappointment and a crowd of 2000, which had defied a sudden squall earlier in the evening, stayed at the field until long after midnight, hoping the flight would start anyway.

Cyclist Awarded $20,950 For Leg

FRESNO, June 24.—A left leg is worth $20,950, according to the verdict of a superior court jury here last night, awarding that sum to Kenneth B. Hull, youthful motorcyclist, who lost his leg in a collision last Christmas. Hull demanded $35,171 damages from Eva C. Brown and John A. Logan, defendants, but the jury set the lower figure as an equitable valuation.

DRUG TRAFFIC OF WORLD HAS BEEN REVEALED

LONDON, June 24.—Some conception of the alarming growth of the illicit drug traffic throughout the world is given in a recently published report of the League of Nations which summarizes the first six pages of a 61-page printed list of seizures of illicit shipments of rugs during the first seven months of 1926 as follows:

Raw opium, 65 tons.
Heroin, 3,520 ounces.
Morphine, 10,195 ounces.
Cocaine, 625 ounces.

"Within the knowledge of the committee," continues the report, "seizures have recently been effected of single consignments of 4410 ounces of morphine; of 15 barrels of morphine; of 8200 and 3240 of heroin; and of a single consignment containing 2100 ounces of morphia; 133 ounces of cocaine, and 142 ounces of heroin. An inquiry still proceeding has established among other similar transactions, the diversion of 1650 pounds of drugs into illicit channels."

According to this report, the German police in the course of the last few weeks have discovered the existence of a band of international smugglers who have been carrying on a contraband traffic "in many countries and to an almost unbelievable extent."

In a single important capture recently effected in Italy, authorities seized 165 pounds of opium, 116 pounds of heroin, and 53 pounds of cocaine. But that the amounts of illicit drugs seized is only a small proportion of the actual shipments constantly being made is indicated by information that investigators for the committee were able to tourn up of shipments being made, but which they were unable to intercept.

Illicit Shipments

One Hong-Kong syndicate, it was learned, was constantly making illicit shipments of single consignments which varied from 100,000 to 300,000 ounces of opium. The amounts remitted to this syndicate in connection with its operations averaged $200,000 a month, according to the investigator who also uncovered an offer by a Swatow concern to sell the syndicate a single consignment of 13 chests of opium "if the bid offered was higher than $90,000." This investigator computed the stock of opium on hand in Tungking at between 1,500,000 and 1,750,000 ounces.

"Shortly before its last meeting," continues the report, "the committee received from the Chinese Maritime Customs one of the most alarming reports it has yet seen. It appears that in the space of roughly one month 592 ounces of morphia and 9328 ounces of heroin, all unlabelled, were seized by the Chinese customs. During the same period 1165 ounces of morphia labelled with the names of the manufacturers were also seized. In all but one of the cases the drugs were despatched by post. The whole of the labelled consignments above referred to were sent to Czecho-Slovakia; and in a single day as many as 215 packages containing 358 ounces of morphia were seized."

The committee also had before it, states the report, a document from the Chief of Police of Cairo in which the chief declared: "The Egyptians are rapidly becomeing a raec of drug addicts, with disaster staring them in the face unless public opinion and the authorities combine to stop the traffic. In spite of the prosecution of 5000 individuals during the year, the enormous profit to be made by selling cocaine and heroin continues to produce new traffickers, and an average of 60 arrests a week are being made in Cairo."

Further, the reports draws attention to the fact that very large quantities of dangerous drugs have recently been exported with the intention that they should pass into the illicit traffic under "fancy" names, which gives no indication whatever as to their real nature.

"This," says the report, "is a new danger, and a most serious one; it complicates materially the problem of effective control," and then adds:

Alarming Facts

"These are striking and alarming facts. They show the appalling extent and the very widespread ratifications of the illicit traffic. They are teh more striking, and possibly the more alarming, when it is recalled that 54 nations—and among them are included all the manufacturing and distributing countries—are parties to the Hague Convention of 1912 which includes, as an obligation accepted by all the signatories, a provision to the effect that they shall limit the manufacture and sale of morphine, cocaine and their respective salts exclusively to medical and legitimate purposes; and also a provision that they shall co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purpose.

"The committee has no deside to minimize the gravity of the situation; on the contrary, it holds that a clear statement as to the enormous volume and wide extent of the illicit traffic, and a vivid appreciation as to what that traffic means in terms of human suffering, misery and degradation, are essential to progress and reform. It would, however, again emphasize, with all insistence at its command, that the performances of the nations lag very far behind their contractual obligations; that neither the committee nor the League is in a position to grapple with colossal problem except to the extent to which they are aided in that task by individual governments; and that the possibilities of direct executive action are necesasrily confined to these individual governments, acting not only within their national territories, but also in direct co-operation with each other."

10,000 FROGS ARE SHIPPED TO JAPAN

BOSTON, June 24.—Ten thousand frogs have sailed from Boston for Japan. Occupying moss lined crates and paired as to male and female they were placed aboard the Hamburg - American liner Thuringia just before she left her pier. Except for a daily warm bath they will not be fed until arrival at Hamburg, where they will be treated to a feast of African beetles before departure on another ship for Japan.

The frogs, Louisiana "croakers" gathered in the flood zone, were shipped by John T. Benson of Hagenbach's American branch at Nashua, N. H. To what use they are to be put in Japan, he was unable to say, except for possible propagation of the species to combat insect pests. The frogs have seven sea lions, an American timber wolf and a half dozen woodchucks as traveling companions.

NEW YORK HAS PLANS TO FIX GAME REFUGE

NEW YORK, June 24.—Following provision made during the past year in the New York conservation department, 4500 acres of land have been acquired in Chanango county for the establishment of the first combination game refuge and demonstration forest in that state. The land was selected after an extensive and thorough survey made in conjunction with the state college of agriculture, the Roosevelt wild life experiment station and the state college of forestry. An intensive study was made of the flora and fauna of the district, information being collected with particular reference to game birds and animals and aquatic life, found therein. Practically the entire area consists of land that was rapidly declining in agriculture value, much of which was being abandoned as farm land but which was better suited for use as a game refuge and a demonstration forest.

The area is especially a rolling upland with few steep slopes or deep ravines. There is excellent cover and food for gam birds and animals, also excellent trout waters in a network of brooks which comprise the head-waters of several creeks and rivers. About three thousand acres of this plot suited to the purpose will be re-forested and trees for the purpose have been reserved at the state nursery at Saratoga and will be planted this spring. The area offers an excellent chance to work out a system of forest management in conjunction with game sanctuaries, and adds another large tract of land to public use for outdoor recreation purposes. Sportsmen, not only of New York, but of the entire country, will be deeply interested in the success of this experiment. It is understood that the planting to be done on the area has been determined with due reference to food plants for game birds and animals, as well as cover and shelter for them. It is to be not merely a forest for the production of merchantable timber, but is to be an attractive habitat for as many kinds of wild game species as are suited to that region.

Lonesome Woman Gets Note Reply

VILLA GROVE, Ill., June 24.—Eight years ago Miss Leona Smith, then a girl of 17, threw into a drainage ditch near Farina a bottle in which she placed a note imploring some young man to relieve her lonesomeness by corresponding with her.

She has received a reply from a soldier in the Pacific islands who said he had found the bottle and her message but did not indicate where he had found it. The country lass of eight years ago is now married four years and her name is Mrs. Leona Ging.

Whether the bottle with its missive found its way finally to the Mississippi river, then to the Gulf of Mexico and around the coast of South America and into the Pacific ocean, the woman was unable to say.

At any rate Mrs. Ging expects to send her correspondent a note indicating that she has received his message but it arrived about four years late.

34-Acre Lake Is Built In Canyon

SANTA FE, N. M., June 24—A 34-acre lake, 60 feet deep, bordered with pineclad peaks, has been created in Santa Fe canyon, six miles from the city, by the building of the new city reservoir and a new gem added to the Santa Fe scenery. The lake is being heavily stocked with trout and representatives of the city, state game department, public health department, and United States forest service, after a conference at the lakeside, are working out a set of rules for protection of the water supply, combined with use of the canyon for recreation purposes. The canyon, the upper part of which is a state game preserve, and which is threaded by a magnificent trout stream, is one of the most scenic in the Santa Fe range. the water descending through a rugged, heavily timbered gorge 5,000 feet to the city in a distance of eighteen miles from its source in Santa Fe lake in the crater of an extinct volcano.

Old Greek Play Is Big Success

ATHENS, June 24—The performance of "Prometheus" in the ancient theater of Delphi proved an artistic success unprecedented in modern Greece. The performance was witnessed by nearly 3000 spectators, and from beginning to end was a harmonious feast of color and sound.

The archaeologists agree that the costumes and setting left nothing to be desired. The producers, M. Sikelianou and his American wife, were accorded a tremendous ovation on this culmination of their efforts of many years to revive the art, dances, costumes and music of classical Greece.

SHAMEFUL TASK

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 24.—Late one night, A. M. Utt, one-armed man, was stopped by a bandit. Told to "stick 'em up," he replied that he had only one to stick up. "Ain't you ashamed to rob a one-armed man?" asked Utt.

Said the bandit: "I never was so mortified in my life, but business is business."

Court Notes

Violated Probation

Orville Smith, who violated his probation after being granted leniency for his offense of check kiting, was today sentenced by Superior Judge James L. Allen to a year's labor on the county chain gang.

Smith, who lived at Garden Grove, was granted probation by Judge Allen last February, following his plea of guilty to a charge of check passing. According to information before the court today, the youth had moved to Huntington Beach where he failed to make his reports to the probation officer, and, it is alleged, resumed his habit of issuing worthless checks.

The court today terminated his probation and gave him the sentence.

Assault Charged

An information charging Amilio Rodriguez with an assault with a readly weapon, was filed today in Superior Judge E. J. Marks' court. Rodriguez pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for July 6. The information charges that Rodriguez attacked Paula Guerra, Mexican woman, with a club on June 13.

BURRO FADING IN COLORADO MINING AREAS

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—When the trail-blazers came to Colorado and found it a land of golden promise, they brought soon after the humble burro. In the years when Colorado's famed mining camps centered the world's attention as an El Dorado of fabled richness, the burro was one of the keys to the whole business.

He carried ore in sacks from the tunnels and shafts; he hauled it in cars or took it in wagons or in packs to distant smelters. He bore burdens of timber and machinery, food, supplies—everything—up the narrow twisting trails into the hills, where no proper roads then ran.

He did every sort of transportation work for the men who were breaking into nature's deep storehouses of mineral wealth. He was usually an uncomplaining beast of docile mien, although at time he could and did display a devilish ferocity and stubbornness which was the despair of his human master.

In the old days it was no uncommon sight—rather it was the accepted mode of packing goods—to see a long train of these small animals, each with his neatly lashed pack up his back, wending a way up a precipitous trail, sure-footed, steady and sober-gaited. The old-timers say of burros that each one has an individual way of wearing his pack. In nearly every pack train there was at least one burro which showed the jackass strain before the journey was over. Those impish members of the cavilcade usually selected the very worst time, place and weather to display their orneriness, to rub a pack sidewise against the rocks, or to lie down and roll it off, demoralizing the whole pack train, delaying everything, and probably putting prankish ideas into the heads of some of his fellow-burros.

And still the burro trains go through the hills, though nowadays the opening of fine motor highways into the very heart of the mountains, through the canyons and over the ranges has made it possible for motors of high and low degree to haul huge trucks at a roaring pace where formerly the sleepy burro trod deliberately. The burro remains, though his usefulness has been lessened by the automobile. But it is not an entirely unusual sight to see a motor truck meeting up with a pack train on some lefty skyline in the Rockies even in these modern days.

And the old-timer has an affection for the burro which no speed or convenience of motor truck will ever wean him from. They both belong to the same age and time, and they saw rough service together.

The burro is called the Rocky Mountain canary. The reason is not far to seek to anyone who has heard one or more of these braying "songsters" telling the world what was on his mind. The "song" of this canary is strong, full throated, aggressive, and yet with an underlying, trailing note of sadness through it, lonely and somber.

WHAT, NO ROUGE?

MUSKEGON, Mich., June 24.—The choir at the Swedish mission here was unable to sing during a recent revival campaign. Because they dressed in modern fashion, with short skirts, rouge and bobbed hair they were forbidden by the evangelist to take part in his services.

LIFE UNBEARABLE FOR MAN WITH SORE ITCHING HANDS

Healed at last easily and quickly

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 28:—"For months all my fingers on both hands were covered with red, itching sores. They frequently gave out a watery fluid, and that, together with the terrible itching, made life almost unbearable. As my business necessitated having my hands in water a great deal, the suffering was made even worse. Doctors diagnosed my case as chronic eczema, but none of the prescribed salves helped me. Finally I began to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Now, after using two jars of this Ointment I am glad to say I am rid of my skin trouble and my hands are perfectly clear."—(Signed) J. Sheiner, 477 Sackman St.

SPANISH POLITICS TO BE OVERHAULED

MADRID, June 24—Spain's political landscape is to undergo a thorough transformation. Premier Primo De Rivera announces there will be a return to the parliamentary form of government, bringing an end to the dictatorship which has been in power since 1923.

A national assembly, its members taken from the ranks of the Patriotic union, the working classes and academicians, all selected by the government, has been summoned to meet on Sept. 13. Under the supervision of the government it will frame a constitution and a new electorial law providing for universal suffrage with complete freedom of the ballot.

Subsequently parliamentary elections are to be held and the new deputies will meet to ratify the constitution. It is expected this constitution will follow the lines of government developed by Premier De Rivera when he assumed the military dictatorship by means of a bloodless coup which ousted the Alhucemas ministry four years ago.

The work of the Primo De Rivera government has been replete with reforms. At first the regime was all military, but in December, 1925, it took on a semicivilian aspect. Elections were discarded. A sort of capital levy and an income tax were inaugurated by Primo De Rivera and he thus succeeded in bringing about a decided improvement in the country's finances.

Parliament was dissolved on Sept. 16, 1923, and has not met since.

Kitchenware Showered On Honor Guest at Evening Party

Recent announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Jean Rose and Harold Dresser, has made Miss Ross the object of interest to all her friends and caused her days to be filled with a succession of pleasant affairs planned as prenuptial courtesies. The most recent of these was given by two young matrons, Mrs. William Noble and Mrs. John McFadden, at the pretty home of Mrs. Noble, 1011 West Fifth street.

Card tables were awaiting the arrival of the guests, and the interesting session of bridge which followed, yielded attractive prizes to Miss Velma Miller, scoring high, and Miss Helen Battey, second. When the rewards were presented the victors, Mrs. McFadden and Mrs. Noble took the opportunity to bring in a large dish-pan which overflowed with useful articles for the kitchen and place it before Miss Ross.

While the honoree was examining her gifts and displaying them to the circle of guests, the two hostesses were arranging the tables with dainty linens in yellow, lavender and pink, expressing the same color scheme in the waxed water lilies, tall candles and petaled nut-cups which adorned each table. Ice cream in wedding bell form and individual cakes were served.

Enjoying the hospitality of Mrs. Noble and Mrs. McFadden in addition to the honor guest, Miss Ross, were her mother, Mrs. Fred Ross, Mrs. Vernon Williams, Mrs. Victor Hawk, Mrs. A. P. Dresser of Tulare, Mrs. Robert Currie, Mrs. J. Elbert Huff, and the Misses Velma Miller, Lura Morris, Vena Belle Bryant, Blanche Yokum, Marjorie Kittle of Hollywood, Louise Bryant, Helen Battey, Daisy Anderson, Dorothy Dresser of Tulare and Frances Battey.

Recent Bride Honored By Shower of Gifts From Friends

Honoring Mrs. Gordon Shiffler, formerly Miss Thelma Artz, of Tustin, friends gathered at the pretty country home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Pritchard last night, to present the new bride with many attractive gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Shiffler were wedded at a quiet home ceremony last week, and the many friends of the lovely bride made last night the occasion to express their good wishes and congratulations to the newlyweds.

Summer flowers in abundance decorated the Pritchard home. Following an evening of games a huge basket of presents, including a chest of silver from the bride's parents, was placed before the new Mrs. Shiffler. Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, gelatine fruit salad and cocoa were served, with clever pink and white nut cups and napkins adding attraction to the occasion. Mrs. George Glover and Mrs. Charles Crawford were co-hostesses for the shower.

Among those present were, Mrs. S. F. Shiffler, Miss Susan Shiffler, Mrs. James Hall, Mrs. Merrill Thompson, Miss Laurene Sauers, Miss Lillian Van Osdale, Miss Louise Artz, Mrs. Charles O. Artz, Mrs. A. L. Shellhous, Mrs. Lottie Brookbank, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. Thelma Kuykendall, Miss Charlotte Pritchard, Mrs. Gordon Shiffler, the guest of honor, and Mrs. George Glover and Mrs. Charles Crawford, the hostesses.

Exchange Club Will Greet Exchangettes

Woman will come into her own next Tuesday at the 12 o'clock luncheon of the Exchange club, for President Berle Morthland and his Exchangeites will welcome their wives and friends to the affair, and will make the program one of special interest to Exchangettes.

The affair will be held in the usual meeting place of the service club, the gold room at Ketner's, and will have the added interest of introducing several new Exchangettes who will thus be given opportunity to meet those of longer standing.

The committee in charge of the day's program, promises musical numbers by Miss Lizzetta Phillips and several surprise features in the form of vaudeville acts. The luncheon and program is planned as a general get-together of Exchangeites and Exchangettes before the beginning of the summer exodus to mountain camp and shore.

Afternoon Party For Happy Children

A happy afternoon was shared by a group of boys and girls yesterday at the hime of Mrs. W. C. Dunlap, 2075 North Main street. They spent the time on the back lawn, an ideal place with its shade, its sand box and turning bar and plenty of room for games on the grass. A peanut hunt, a baseball game, and various other stunts dear to childhood, were enjoyed.

The young folks who could be present were members of the juvenile department of the Royal Neighbor lodge and Mrs. Dunlap is their director. This was their first out-door party.

The hostess served ice cream and cake late in the afternoon to Peggy Bronson, Francis Miller, Jane, Carene and Benny Wolter, Marguerite, Alice and Charles Scott, Betty Lee, Bobby and Lee Sundstrum, Francis Tibbetts, Ruth Ellen and John Dunlap.

BIGGER AND BETTER SUMMER HATS IS NEW SLOGAN EOR DAME FASHION

Under the summer hat: ecru Swiss braid trimmed with dawn pink ribbon (left); silk horsehair braid, the brim slightly rolled in the back (right) and (below) white punta straw, cut away in the back and with a flange of white felt around the crown.

By HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service

The other day I heard a colleague say, "Well, I guess we all are expecting big things of the large hat this summer."

It exactly expressed my sentiments on the subject of hot weather headgear.

There is no question by now that "the" dress hat for summer 1927 will be more than sizable.

No Merry Widows!

But do not for a minute think that this season's creations are just the old Merry Widow picture hats of a generation ago bobbing up again.

Shorn locks, the boyish, slenderizing tendency of today's feminine apparel, and the short skirts of this young age demand an entirely original type of large hat, never before designed.

Added to these prerequisites is the entire spirit of the times. The nonchalance of the world's attitude today towards life has its effect on hat designs. The old heavy, sober looking solid black, blue or red hat of stiff straw is entirely out of the picture. Today's hat must have a subtle, airy lightness about it—as if it took life lightly and jauntily.

Crowns First

Though it may seem a contradiction, the crown of a big hat should receive first consideration, both from the designer and the woman who buys it. For the manner in which the crown hugs the bobbed head and suits the face contour has more to do with chic than any other one thing.

Of course a woman must consider the width, depth and shape of the brim. A woman's height and general build is guide to good taste in this. No large hat this season should have a regular cartwheel brim. Sides wider than the front and back, cut-away back, gently sloping irregular and cut-out brims accentuate the beauty and add grace to the wearer. The picture hat that has too wide a brim for its wearer to carry gracefully is all wrong.

Three of the prettiest hats I have designed this season are shown today. They give diversity of shape, material and trimming.

For afternoon wear at the golf club or formal tea is the woody brown silk horsehair braid hat, just the tone of the flower in Milady's dress and matching her eyes also. It has a wide right side that tilts slightly, a short front and a slightly rolling back brim. Its crown fits snugly.

Around its brim lies an exquisite wreath of autumn leaves, of handpainted velvet, with just enough of a touch of orange in it to please.

Mushroom Shape

The white punta straw simulates the popular felt in its pinched crown and cut-away back. It has a smart flange of white felt around the crown forming a top facing which crosses in the back to fashion a perky bow. This hat is ideal for sun wear with white or pastel shaded frocks.

Most feminine of all and therefore perhaps most charming is the dainty ecru Swiss braid hat, mushroom in shape with a wistful droop to its brim. The very latest of trimmings decorate it—a dawn pink satin ribbon around its crown ending in a sailor's knot with its uneven end falling softly over the edge of the side brim. A crystal gardenia, perfect imitation of the real thing and even lovelier, nestles by the knot.

For the more informal type of big hat, flowered materials matching frocks are used either for crown, brim or inserts in straw. Laces are good, also, used in combination with soft chiffons and georgettes.

But the smartest picture hats employ one of the silken sheer straws that are now available and ever a joy to the designer as well as the woman who owns one.

Trip to Texas Preceded by Shower

Miss Marjorie Arnold who left Wednesday for Texas where she will spend the summer, was made honoree at a delightful party just before her departure, given at the pretty new ranch home of Mrs. Fred Hein.

Mrs. Hein, who is one of the summer's list of brides, and was Miss Cleo Bowers, made the evening a delightful one for her guests and all of them took great pleasure in seeing her pretty home and its wealth of beautiful wedding gifts. Music was an outstanding feature of the evening, but the climax was reached when Miss Arnold was presented with an assortment of dainty handkerchiefs.

At a late hour Mrs. Hein served refreshments to her guests who included Miss Marjorie Arnold, Mrs. James E. Hughes, and the Misses Frances Knudson, Dorothy Clarkson, Robin Ruth Seitter, Gladys Finuf, Bernice Finuf, Claire Sharpless, Lydia Fisher, Ruth Winters, Irene Blower, Mrs. Gail Harmon and Mrs. Edward Burns.

Ebell Society

Second Travelers

This week brought among other social affairs, the annual picnic of Ebell's second travel section, whose members entertained their husbands at a bounteous and delicious feast at Orange county park.

Mrs. J. A. Ranney, Mrs. R. J. Thompson and Mrs. S. A. Jones formed the hostess group, and arranged the picnic tables most artistically with various flowers of the season.

In the early afternoon, a short business program was conducted and then the meeting turned over to a program committee whose members had planned a series of amusing stunts including a spike-driving contest for the Ebell members and a pie-eating contest for their husbands. Mit Phillips was triumphant victor in the latter.

To add to the entertainment, Mrs. Emma French cast a horoscope for each one, thus placing the crowning touch on what all declared a complete success in every particular. There were over 30 members and guests present to enjoy the day.

County Shrine Club in Mid-Summer Picnic

Orange county park resounded with gayety last night and the red fezzes of Orange county Shriners made bright spots of color like the flash of crimson flowers beneath the stately trees. For it was the mid-summer park party of the Nobles and their families, and the park was theirs—and the fulness thereof.

Arriving in the late afternoon hours, the merry picnickers turned their attention to a program of sports directed by Charles Cogan, entertainment chairman, Charles D. Brown, Carl Mock and E. B. Smith of Santa Ana, Warren Case of Orange, and others.

Mrs. J. O. Pyle, wife of the county club president, took first place in the ladies' foot race with Mrs. Warren Case, second. In the fat ladies' race, Miss Pauline Prescott took first and Miss Ruth Ferguson, second. Miss Eula Bell Smith took first place and Miss Martha Huscroft, second, in the young girls' event, while in the little girls' race, first place was won by Wilma Huscroft and second by Fay Rimel.

In the Shriners' race, C. J. Cogan took first honors and F. E. Valentine of Orange, second, while among the little boys, William Huscroft and Vos Herrington took first and second. In the larger boys, Harvey Wilson and James Haines scored.

This program of sports quickened already healthy appetites and so the supper hour was a thoroughly enjoyable one. The contents of the countless picnic baskets were spread on the long tables, and platters of fried chicken and kindred picnic dishes were generously passed until everyone had all they could possibly eat. The Shriners furnished hot coffee with sugar and cream, ice cream and punch.

Soon after supper, the lighted pavilion was the magnet for everyone present, and an eight-piece De Molay orchestra of Orange, furnished the most delightful of music for an evening of dancing. A number of special features were introduced including prize waltzes and fox trots.

Under ordinary conditions hair grows one inch in six weeks. It grows fastest between the ages of 35 and 60.

Evening Party Yields Many Pretty Gifts For Bride-elect

A pleasnat event of the week was the shower given by Mrs. Ogden Markel of Ventura (formerly Miss Helena Lieberman) and the Misses Anne, Gretchen, Rose and Agnes Lieberman, at their home, 612 French street, for Miss Florence Badur of this city, whose marriage to John Laubacher of Oxnard is to take place Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church.

A profusion of summer flowers gave added adornment to the pretty home. Bridge was played, and the prize won by Miss Beatrice Reilly, Miss Margaret Young receiving consolation.

Ice cream, home-made cake and other refreshments were served at flower decked tables, pink and blue predominating in the colors, and these delicate tints mingled with green, were also shown in nut cups and other accessories of the tables.

After the refreshment interval, a large hamper tastefully trimmed with flowers was brought in and presented to Miss Badur. It contained an assortment of pretty and useful things for her new home.

Enjoying the evening with the hostesses, Mrs. Markel and the Misses Lieberman, and the honoree, Miss Badur, were Mesdames Frank Klatt, C. J. Klatt, Nick Brock, William Altmiller and Charles Borchard; and the Misses Armella, Helen, Rose, Genevieve and Clara Klatt, Frances Hillman, Beatrice Reilly, Margaret Young, Teresa Hallicy, Elizabeth Paine and Anna Young.

Tom Murray Orchestra At Country Club

A Santa Ana Country club dance which all members are anticipating, will be staged tonight at the clubhouse, when the famous Tom Murray orchestra will be present. The genial Tom Murray himself will introduce some exceptional talent from Hollywood in the same manner that prevailed at the recent spring formal that everyone enjoyed so much.

While tonight's affair will not be a dinner dance, strictly speaking, many members have made dinner reservations, and a large "Dutch treat" party has reserved a long table in the dining-room with the plan of making the evening program one in which dining and dancing shall have almost equal parts.

The juniors of the club membership will reign supreme a week from tonight, when the mid-summer junior dance will be held. Dancing will be from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock and refreshments will be served. Everything possible is being planned for the entertainment and enjoyment of the young people on this accasion.

Members of M. W. of A. No. 7576: Funeral services of Neighbor C. G. Beard will be held at Winbigler's parlors tomorrow, Saturday at 10 o'clock. C. L. Tibbetts, Clerk.

Girl will care for children during afternoon parties. Phone 2246-J.

COLLEGE MAN IS STUDENT OF TUBERCULOSIS

BERKELEY, June 24.—Definite proof that tubercle bacilli, of tuberculosis germs, produce a toxin or poison which may possibly lead to the development of an anti-toxin comparable to that now used for prevention of scarlet fever has just been offered before the American Medical association at its annual meeting in Washington, D. C., by Dr. Frederick Eberson, assistant professor of medicine at the University of California medicine school.

In a paper read before the recent meeting of the association, Dr. Eberson reported that experiments completed at the university laboratories have demonstrated the existence of filterable toxin produced by tubercle bacilli. The existence of this toxin has been suspected and suggested, but never definitely proven before. He reported also that experiments are now being carried out on the use of this toxin in the development of a standardized serum.

Toxin Filtrates

In support of the idea that a toxin exists, studies have shown that the toxin filtrates of tubercle baccili measure anti toxin content or susceptibility to tuberculosis infection. A negative skin test indicates either the absence of tuberculous centers, and hence no resistance, or an advanced infection with profound poisoning and the amount of anti-body entirely absent or too small for detection.

At the present time, he stated, the new substance is proving itself valuable in the diagnosis of tuberculous cases at an earlier stage than has heretofore been possible with such agents as tuberculin, an achievement especially valuable in recognition of children's cases..

In discussing his work before the medical association, Dr. Eberson said:

"There has been previously no convincing finding either in man or experimental animals to show that the tubercle bacillus elaborates a toxin. It has been assumed for many years that ordinary serological antibodies encountered in tuberculosis have no bearing upon resistance to the disease. Skin and systematic phenomena have been conveniently described in general terms of altered tissue reactivity, but clear-cut evidence on the nature of the reacting substance has been lacking.

"From the results we have obtained and from studies previously reported, it may be concluded that the requirements for the demonstration of toxin production by tubercle bacilli have been fulfilled."

Dr. Eberson started his experiments with studies on a specially prepared variety of tuberculin, or liquid substance obtained from growths o ftuberculosis germs. He found that sensitization of the body to tubercle bacilli or further injection of tuberculin could be accomplished by the introduction of specific amounts of a particular variety of tuberculin developed in his laboratory.

Reaction Can Be Changed

He deduced fro mthis that the reaction of the body to the dreaded bacilli could be changed before actual infection had taken place. It was known before that certain reactions took place in the body of a person already infected with the disease.

He then began an analysis of the tuberculin, or bacilli culture liquid, itself, in order to purify the substances and determine just what caused the sensitization of bodies treated with it. These studies led ultimately to the identification in broth cultures of a toxic filtrate that was not related, apparently ,either to tuberculin elements or to other products hitherto described.

From this toxin he succeeded in producing immune, or antitoxic sheep serum by repeated injections of filterable toxin element. Such serum neutralized the demonstrable skin reaction or other symptoms following injection of the toxin, whereas the normal serum of the sheep and of other animals failed to accomplish this result. In other words, it is explained, the serum contains some substance which combats the toxic action.

TROUT AND NOT GOLD BIG LURE OF COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—It is trout fishing and not gold mining which makes Platte canon in South Park, Park county, popular today. Camps deserted after the Colorado gold rush remain, but are greatly outnumbered by the hundreds of fishing camps, hotels and automobile campsites along the main graveled road which follows two sides of an equilateral triangle, the base of which is the road, mostly paved, between Denver and Colorado Springs.

Fairplay, at the western corner of of this triangle of excellent motor roads, is roughly 100 miles from either of the two other ctiles. It is also 100 miles by rail from Denver. If Denver is the gateway to the Rockies, Fairplay is the inner gateway, for just southwest of it is the Trout Creek pass by which motorists cross the Ark range and enter a sort of vestibule or corridor of the Rockies containing those famous old towns named Buena Vista and Leadville.

Town Is Gateway

Fairplay is the last of a series of hotel villages in the Platte canon beginning where the motor road starts up the Platte canon at Bailey, 50 miles out of Denver.

The motorist from Denver follows the paved road to Morrison, and then takes graveled roads by either Bear or Turkey creek to Conifer and so on to the north fork of the South Platte at Bailey and the other hotel towns up stream: Shawnee, 55 miles out of Denver; Cassells, 60 miles, and Jefferson, 70 miles, the first village actually within the park. From Jefferson to Fairplay it is another 17 miles.

From Colorado Springs the motor road is paved as far as Manitou and graveled the rest of the way to Fairplay via the road under Pikes Peak to Florissant and the petrified forest and Hartsel and the Antero reservation. There is a choice of two graveled roads between Florissant and Hartsel. From Lake George, on the south fork of the South Platte six miles northwest of Florissant, a graded road leads direct through South Park via Tarryall to Jefferson. At Lake George, too, a graveled road leads northeastward through the Pikes Peak national forest down the south fork to Deckers, Sedalia and Denver.

No Toll Charged

No toll is charged on the roads in South park, which are wide and ascend by easy grades into a pleasant region of lakes and well-stocked trout streams, cottages and campsites.

The park contains thousands of square miles of country suited either for roughing it wtih camp equipment or settling down in a cottage for the summer.

Romance has not left the region with the last sack of gold. Many prospectors and pioneers stayed on after the gold rush had run its course, and a few of the old-timers are still living to tell the tale of the adventurous days of their youth. The park is uncommercialized and will never be spoiled by too much civilization, for its waters must be kept pure, as from them Denver derives its main supply of drinking water.

Porcupine cave, a cavern of a hundred underground chambers, is southwest of Fairplay. The federal government has taken it over, the land surrounding it being closed to entry. Residents in the neighbor hood guide many tourists through the cave.

DEVICES SAVE TIMBER

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Prizes offered for improvements in lumber milling methods have resulted in inventions which will save 100,000,000 feet of timber annually, manufacturers say. A "multiple guide dimension mill," effected the greatest saving, won first prize.

CABLE CATCHES WHALE

SEATTLE, June 24.—The crew of an army cable ship, sent out to repair a break in the cable between Seattle and Alaska, discovered a twenty-ton killer whale entangled in the heavy wires. The core had been severed in eight different places by the giant's teeth.

ECZEMA LASTED FOUR YEARS

Itching and Burning Severe. Cuticura Heals.

"My eczema started with an irritation and when I scratched the parts they would get red, and in a short time pimples would break out. After a few days the pimples would fester and I would open them. FAIRWAY CLUB WILL IMPROVE PRESENT LINKS

Preparations for increasing the golf course at the Fairway Country club, near Villa Park, from 9 to 18 holes, all grass, and for the construction of an up-to-date clubhouse with a swimming pool, tennis courts and other appointments were being made today following a meeting of the board of directors at which a contract, providing for these improvements, was approved.

Action of the directors followed negotiations extending over several months during which details of the project were developed. The negotiations were handled for the club by a stockholders' committee composed of E. W. Bolinger, N. T. Edwards, K. E. Watson, W. E. Clement and S. W. Todd.

The contract provides that the present nine-hole layout shall be lengthened and improved while the additional nine holes are being arranged and the old course will be further improved when the new holes are completed. The best available golf links architects will be employed in the task, it was stated.

PASADENA ICEMAN ENTERS JAIL HERE

Sentenced to serve five days in the county jail on a speeding charge, Hermon Sundstrom, 23, ice man, of 1502 Morton street, Pasadena, was booked at the county jail last night.

Sundstrom was arrested by Officer Ben Craig, of the state traffic department, on June 19, when he was given a ticket, charging speeding 60 miles an hour on the Irvine boulevard. The iceman was sentenced in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday.

BOULDER DAM COMMITTEE IS NAMED TODAY

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—The appointment of the three members of the Colorado river commission to represent California in scheduled conferences with representatives of other southwest states regarding the Boulder dam project, was announced today by Gov. C. C. Young.

The appointees are: John L. Bacon, former mayor of San Diego and president of the Boulder Dam association; W. B. Mathews, special counsel for the Los Angeles Public Service commission, and Earl C. Pound, president of the Imperial Irrigation district.

While the act under which the appointments were made does not become effective until July 29, the governor decided to make them in advance in order that the California representatives may go to work on the project at once.

"The work to be undertaken by the commission," Governor Young said, "is pressing and no time should be lost in the endeavors to reach such appointments with other states, as will further promote passage at the coming session of congress of legislation providing for the construction of Boulder dam.

"The hope has been expressed to me from some of the other states concerned, as well as by citizens of California, that as governor I should not wait until the Colorado water commission act becomes effective to select the commissioners who are to serve under the act.

"I have confidence that Bacon, Mathews and Pound will make a well balanced commission, competent to protect California's interests and at the same time to join forces with the representatives of other basin states in bringing to a successful termination the great constructive achievement involved in the Boulder canyon project."

BANDIT WANTED IN OKLAHOMA IS CAPTURED

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., June 24.—Matthew Kimes, who has played hide and seek with Oklahoma officers and posses for the last 12 months, has been subdued by another state's police force and was behind the bars of an Arizona jail today.

Kimes and J. C. Whitehead, another Oklahoma bandit, were captured yesterday after a gun battle near Grand Canyon, Ariz., 85 miles from here. They were brought here by Deputy Sheriff J. O. Parsons, who was responsible for their capture and who identified them by descriptions sent out by Oklahoma authorities.

It was Deputy Parsons who eyed the pair curiously in the Bright Angel hotel at Grand Canyon. Realizing that he was the object of suspicion, Kimes attempted to shoot his way out but his shots went wild.

Kimes' attempt to kidnap Parsons likewise failed, as well as his dash for freedom toward the wooded hills in an automobile. Citizens of Grand Canyon captured him after Parsons fired at the fleeing bandits, setting up a general alarm.

Kimes is said to be wanted in Oklahoma and Texas for murder, bank robberies, jail breaking and on other charges.

With a life sentence hanging over his head, Kimes' space of freedom was due to a jail break last fall, said to have been accomplished by members of his gang.

SERIAL NUMBER MUST STAY ON ALL ARTICLES

If you have in your possession a radio, automobile tire, piano, phonograph, sewing machine, washing machine, typerwiter, adding machine, comptometer, firearm, safe or vacuum cleaner, from which the manufacturer's serial number of identification mark has been removed, throw it away. Drop it down the well, throw it in the river or do anything with it so that it won't be found in your possession.

A new state law passed by the senate and signed by Governor C. C. Young, makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to knowingly buy, sell, receive, dispose of, conceal or have in his possession any of the articles mentioned from which the identification mark placed on it by the manufacturers is lacking.

Automobile tire men who specialize in retreading will have to watch their steps to see that the retreading process does not blot out the serial numbers on tires.

Purchasers of various other second hand articles will also have to make their first duty to make sure that the manufacturer's identification mark is still present. Otherwise they are liable to be hailed into court and made to pay a fine for having the article.

Movie Chatterbox

The hunt for natural comedians, carried on by cinema researchers over a period of years, seems to have led right back to the jungle.

In several recent pictures the laughs are "stolen" by animal actors, whose antics have a delightful unpremeditation.

Perhaps the best natural-born comedian to be discovered for the screen is Bimbo, found in the Siamese jungle by Ernest B. Schoedsack while filming "Chang." Bimbo, a Gibbon, had previously acted only for his jungle audience yet he achieves more laughs through his antics than 90 per cent of the comedians.

In Chester Chaplin's latest Warner picture, "The Missing Link," it is Akka, a chimpanzee, who steals the picture. Akka was brought out of Leone, West Africa, about 10 years ago and got his first experience in entertaining as a vaudeville actor. His capacity for registering is extraordinary and, but for him, the picture would be flat indeed.

Bimbo was brought out of the forests by Schoedsack who felt, perhaps, that he might be developed into a regular performer. But civilization was not for this latest comic find. With his natural haunts behind his prankings lost much of their originality and it appears that he must behave naturally or not at all.

They say that the motion picture industry is a young man's game. It is—but few of the younger generation have really come into their own yet.

Take the directors, for example. If it can be said that any one person is more important than another in this business, he is the director. Most of the successful directors are men of long experience. Only a few young ones have risen to prominence. It is with these few that this story deals.

Heading the list is F. Richard Jones. Jones really is an old-timer with the megaphone but being only 32 years old ,he rates a place among the youthful directors. His first big success, made 10 years ago, was "Mickey," in which Mabel Normand was starred.

Little has been heard of Jones in recent years because he retired from the directorial field to become a supervisor, acting in this capacity for Mack Sennett and Hal Roach. A few months ago Douglas Fairbanks signed him to direct "The Gaucho." When that picture is completed, Jones will do several others for United Artists, including one for Mary Pickford.

Lewis Milestone started a few years ago as a film cutter at Warner brothers. Although not yet 30, he has become noted throughout the film colony for his direction of comedy-dramas. Because of his success in wielding the megaphone on "The Seven Sinners" and "The Cave Man," he was signed by Caddo Productions to direct "Two Arabian Knights," one of that company's leading productions of the year.

Paramount claims two of the young production "bosses." Malcolm St. Clair started earning his living by drawing cartoons for newspapers. Then he went to work as an actor for Mack Sennett. A disagreement with his director resulted in him being appointed to a directorship. His best work has been on the Paramount lot where he has done some notable pictures with Adolphe Menjou and Richard Dix.

St. Clair's co-worker is Edward Sutherland. Eddie started out to be an actor in England and then came to Hollywood to "crash" the movies. Little was heard of him until he made "Behind the Front" with Wally Beery and Raymond Hatton. It was acclaimed the best comedy of 1926 by many critics.

The youngest of the lot is Mervyn Le Roy, who is just 24 and looks even younger. John McCormick gets the credit for discovering him. Three years ago McCormick engaged Le Roy as a "gag" man for Colleen Moore's unit. A year ago the youth became an assistant director. Now he is directing Miss Moore in her current production, an assignment that was sought by many older and more experienced directors.

There are others who might come under the heading "young directors," but to date none have made any really big pictures.

Newspapers Pay Best, Experts Say

CLEVELAND, June 24.—With the close of their three-day convention here, the National Industrial Advertisers' association today had elected J. R. Hopkins, Chicago, as president.

The convention next year will probably be held in St. Louis, it was announced.

At the closing session, the delegates went on record as favoring newspapers as the best of all advertising mediums.

M'BRIDE HEADS JOINT OUTFALL SEWER BOARD

J. L. McBride, of Santa Ana, was elected chairman of the executive committee of the joint-outfall-sewer board at the initial meeting of that committee, in the Anaheim city hall Wednesday evening. Besides organization matters, the committee discussed with representatives of oil companies, a proposal to receive salt water waste from certain oil fields into the sewer lines for disposal. A contract covering the proposal will be recommended to the various city councils, it was announced.

Four city councils and one sanitary district board were represented at the meeting. They included A. W. Franzen, of Anaheim, Emanuel Smith, of Fullerton, L. F. Robinson, of Orange, J. L. McBride, of Santa Ana, and Arthur L. Anderson, of the Placentia sanitary board. La Habra city and Garden Grove sanitary district were not represented.

Franzen was elected vice-chairman of the committee. Clyde Bishop, of Santa Ana, was retained as attorney.

An organization of oil companies in the Brea, Olinda and Richfield fields will be formed to handle the problem of disposing of salt water, which has become a problem in those fields, representatives of the operators told the committee. They suggested the plan of turning accumulated salt water into the joint outfall sewer during the night hours, the committee approving of the idea and voting to recommend it to the various councils, with the further suggestion that contracts be drawn up providing for satisfactory terms of compensation for the cities.

The committee, it was stated, will also recommend installation of an automatic pump and plant at the beach line, as recommended by sanitary engineers, to prevent tide flow into the sewer line from bringing too great a pressue upon the pipes.

2 PEDESTRIANS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

David Carlson, 37, of East Seal Beach, and Robert I. Gilchrist, 54, of Sunset Beach, were injured last night at 9 o'clock when they were struck by an automobile driven by Lynn Colburn, of 377 Ximino street, Long Beach. PASSES AWAY

H. S. Greenwald, pioneer resident, for whom funeral services will be held tomorrow.

GREENWALD TO BE BURIED IN S. A. SATURDAY

Henry S. Greenwald, who passed away Wednesday afternoon at his home, 1210 West First street, after an illness of seven months, was a pioneer of Orange county, coming here wih this parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Greenwald, 45 years ago from Wisconsin, where in Green county of that state he was born.

The family home was on a tract of land on Seventeenth street, and as the eldest son he assumed at an early age much responsibility in developing it into a prosperous ranch, and later planted and tended its groves of orange and walnut trees. Here he lived until his marriage to Miss Etta Heil of Santa Ana, when a home was established on First street. Some years after the death of his wife, which occurred about seventeen years ago, he married Mrs. Hattie Crawford.

Mr. Greenwald had been identified since boyhood with religious activities, and at the time of his death was a member of the Free Methodist church, of whose board of trustees and conference board he was a charter member, and was also prominent in Sunday school work.

He was a successful orchardist, and in addition to groves on his home place had planted orchards in the vicinity of Orange. He was a member of the Citrus Fruit association and the Mutual Orange Distributors, having been the first president of the latter organization. On removal to the First street place he planted an orchard there, but later divided the tract into what is known as the Greenwald Park subdivision.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Hattie Greenwald, he is survived by two sons, Ralph H. Greenwald, of Santa Ana, and Harold H. Green-

NEW MARRIAGE LAW EXPLAINED BY JOE BACKS

Brides and Grooms Must Wait Until Fourth Day To Get Their Licenses

That brides and grooms must wait until the fourth day after their notice of intention to marry, before the license can be issued, under the new "three days notice" law; and that both the girl and the man will be liable, under the law, for any perjury connected with the license application, are two of the outstanding features of the new marriage law, as interpreted by the county clerks of California.

Inasmuch as the county clerks will have full charge of the law's application, and have been advised in their interpretation by the attorney general's office, their conclusions are regarded as official. Their action in "interpreting" the law was taken because of asserted uncertainties in the act, and in order to provide a uniform method of procedure for all counties in the state.

For that purpose, the executive committee of the County Clerks association held a meeting in San Francisco with Robert W. Harrison, chief deputy in the attorney general's office, and formulated the official code, which has just been received here by County Clerk J. M. Backs.

Both parties to a marriage will be required to appear at the license bureau at the time of giving notice of their intention to marry and both must appear again when the license is issued, it was decided. After a verbal application for license, the couple will sign a notice of their intention to marry. After the expiration of three full days and not more than 30 days, they must appear a second time and apply for the issuance of a license, filing their affidavit of facts required of them in this connection.

The law has been interpreted to mean that the license cannot be issued until the fourth day after the notice of intention is signed. For example, if the notice of intention to marry was signed on July 1, 1928, the license could not be issued until July 5. Three full days must intervene. The maximum limit of 30 days is interpreted to mean that the license would have to be issued not later than July 31. And if July 31 occurred on a Sunday, the couple could not wait until the next day but must procure their license by July 30.

A vital change in the marriage laws, and one that is expected to have a far reaching effect upon the secret marriages of minors and their subsequent prosecution for perjury is the proviso that "The county clerk, in order to ascertain facts for the license affidavit, may examine both applicants on oath."

Heretofore, the law has provided for the examination of only the male applicant. The groom has been held responsible and liable to prosecution for any mis-statement in the affidavit, not only concerning himself but also relating to the bride. The most frequent perjury committed is the misrepresentation of age,

LEGION SIGN

Above is the new sign which Legion posts of the county are placing throughout Orange county.

50 Posts Are Ordered By Legion for Erection in Orange County

Sign posts which are exact replicas of the official American Legion emblem are to be placed at the entrances to Santa Ana and other cities in Orange county where Legion posts are established, according to Commander Frank Mason, of Brea Post No. 181, who is chairman of a county council committee to arrenge for a uniform display of such signs.

The emblems are in regulation blue and gold, and are two feet in diameter, mounted on a six-fcot post, which will also carry a sign giving information as to time and place of meetings. They will also be used to call public attention to other American Legion activities, such as Memorial Day services, Flag day exercises, Armistice Day celebrations, etc.

The attractive signs are expected to act as an invitation to the ex-service men and legionnaires among the thousands of motorists on California boulevards. Fifty of these signs will be placed in position at once, according to Mason, making the first uniform installation of this character in the United States.

PAUL, WEBBER ON L. A. TRACK TEAMS

Two more Santa Ana high school cinderpath products, Howard ("Howy") Paul and Charley Webber, will leave the Southland soon for the National A. A. U. track and field championships at Lincoln, Neb., July 1-2-4. Harold Breeding, star local miler, already is in Lincoln as a member of the Los Angeles Athletic club squad.

Paul has been selected as a member of the Hollywood Athletic club and will participate in trials at the Harvard Military academy track tomorrow to assure his entry in the senior and junior broad jump inNebaska. Webber, a high hurdler, will represent the Los Angeles Athletic club at the big meet.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 24.—Sitting around in the Danby Four Corners store, Dewey Sherman and Sam Cobb talked of how fond they were of eggs, argued, finally made a wager as to which could eat the most. Sam quit when he had downed 32 raw eggs, but Dewey, going strong, kept on until he had swallowed 84, a total of more than 10 pounds.

FLINT PLANE WILL FLY TO S. A. AIR MEET

Machines from All Parts Of U. S., Canada, Mexico Entered in Events

A non-stop flight from California to Honolulu may be attempted by a specially constructed airplane entered in the International Air Peace jubilee to be held at the Martin airport at the foot of South Main street, July 2 to 9, by William Melloske, wealthy oil producer of Flint, Mich., it was announced today by Roger Adams, general chairman of the meet.

According to Adams, the plane, a specially constructed affair, will attempt a non-stop flight from Flint to Santa Ana as a preliminary trial to Honolulu hop.

L. B. Man Pilot

Auggie Peddlar, of Long Beach, will be the pilot of the plane, it is reported here. Peddlar left Long Beach recently for Flint, where he plans to test the plane out before starting the flight to Santa Ana. After its arrival here the plane will be closely guarded and will be thoroughly conditioned before taking off for Honolulu.

Planes from all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico have entered the meet, according to Rogers. Among the outstanding entries received is one from the National Air Derby association, of Spokane, Wash. Pilot R. Mamer, head of the Mamer Flying service, Spokane, which boasts a large fleet of commercial planes, has submitted entries in the meet here, it is reported.

Plane to Carry Goods

The Chicago Association of Commerce is planning to send an airplane to the meet here with the first consignment of merchandise for the $2,000,000 plant of a mail order company in Los Angeles.

Several San Diego fliers, as well as a number of army and navy pilots and planes are to take part in the meet.

Sid Grauman, well known Los Angeles and Hollywood motion picture theater man, will attend the meet with a fleet of personally owned planes, it is reported. Grauman is taking a big interest in the meet and plans to offer a number of prizes for the various events, according to Rogers.

Possibility that the Melloske plane will compete for the Grauman prize of $30,000 for the first non-stop trans-Pacific flight, is seen by Rogers.

$3040 in Prizes Ready

According to George Raymer, acting treasurer of the met group, a total of $3040 in cash prizes have already been donated and a total of more than $1000 in merchandise prizes has been given the committee in charge.

July 2, 3 and 4 are to be devoted exclusively to flying programs, races and a try for the world's endurance record. It is expected that at least six planes will be entered in the endurance trial. The Ryan monoplane factory at San Diego is expected to enter a plane and it is believed that a Ballanca plane will also be entered in the event. Several specially constructed planes are now being completed in Southern California to attempt to break the world's air endurance record.

Destroyers to Participate

A detachment of destroyers will be stationed at Newport during the meet and demonstrations of air attacks on battleships will be one of the unusual features. F. P. Conger, commander of the U. S. S. Stoddard, will be in charge of the ships anchored at Newport Beach.

The final days of the air event will be devoted to various Southern California towns. One day is

The Challenge of Youth

Life is Organic Unity; Love is the Consciousness of Organic Unity; God is Love

(Contributed to The Register by James T. Van Rensselaer, 1611 East Fourth Street, Santa Ana; formerly of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and of New College, Oxford, England)

(Editor Register:—Owing to unfair and altogether too severe criticism of our young folk which has been prevalent since the war, I have followed, with great interest, the graduating exercises at the Santa Ana college.

Having seen one generation or more pass into manhood, I am quite sure numerically, that there are more good young people in the world today than ever before, and, while posible there may be quite a few not so good, I feel inclined in dealing with the question, "to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees, and to use all Christian charity that the law allows.

Consequently, I listened with deep interest to the suggestive and wise sermon delivered before the graduating class, Sunday before last, in the Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church South, by the Rev. Moffett Rhodes on "The Answer of Jesus to the Challenge of Youth."

Harmonious relationship between the youth of the day and the Christian church being so desirable, it is most fortunate for Santa Ana that Mr. Moffett Rhodes during a pastorate in Berkeley, came in contact with the American collegian in large numbers, and where that youngster fortunately is allowed great latitude in thought and in action. This greatly strengthens Mr. Rhodes' influenco when he so courageously champions the cause of American youth, and enables him to build a bridge, over which, if they so desire, both youth and clergy may readily pass.

The challenge of youth, he says, is a demand for intellectual honesty and, if the church puts any obstacle in the way of that demand it lays itself open to the charge of intellectual dishonesty; and it happens that, here in Santa Ana, during a past decade, under the intellectual leadership of a very able body of men and women, there has grown up an institution of higher learning, the quality and capacity of which is too little recognized. This institution, historically considered, is the direct result, during the middle ages and a thousand succeeding years, of the self-sacrificing and unflinching labor of the Christian church. During that long period, every educational advance has sprung from a challenge for intellectual honesty. The Pilgrim Fathers journeyed to inhospitable New England shores to secure intellectual honesty, and in 1000 American institutions, today 1,000,000 young men and women are demanding the privilege of being intellectually honest with themselves and with the world in which they live.

In Orange county, 100 of our children, more or less, each year, enter the Santa Ana college and learn from the telescope and microscope that "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth this mighty work." To their amazement, however, this God in some indefinable way differs from the God made familiar in the church of their fathers.

Further to their confusion from a course in biology they learn that life is organic unity; from lectures in philosophy that love is the consciousness of organic unity; and from lessons in logic that the Apostle John proved himself the wisest of all logicians when he visioned love as the supreme factor in the evolution of the world.

"The longer I live and the more I see of the struggle of souls to the heights above, the stronger this truth comes home to me; that the universe rests on the shoulders of love—a love so limitless, deep and broad, that men have re-named it and called it God."

Should we be surprised at youth becoming restive and demanding, as Prof. Sherman says he does, something good and great that he can do with his heart and mind and body? Or at his asking the large scale production and the wide diffusion of science, art, music, literature, health, recreation, manners, human intercourse, happiness—the best to be had, and which he says he is going to get, and that he intends to glorify wholeheartedly the heroes of culture who provide them for him?

Cried Jesus, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." In what way, may I ask, do the above demands conflict with this prophetic announcement?

Before me lie brief paragraphs by two very distinguished educationalists, dealing with the problems of youth and Christian idealism. Speaking of the American college undergraduate, Prof. Stuart P. Sherman of Illinois, writes in the Atlantic Monthly:

"The great civilizations of the world hitherto have been integrated in their religion. By religion I mean that which, in the depths of his heart, a man really believes desirable and praiseworthy. A great civilization begins to form when men reach an agreement as to what is desirable and praiseworthy. The leading Athenians, in their best periods, reached such an agreement; and that is why, whether you meditate on their art, their poetry, or their pilosophy; whether you gaze at the frieze of the Parthenon, or read a drama of Sophocles, or the prayer of Socrates, you feel yourself in the presence of one and the same formative spirit—one superb stream of energy, superbly controlled by a religious belief that moral and physical symmetry are the most desirable and praiseworthy things in the outer and the inner man."

Prof. Edward Caird, a former Master of Balliol College, Oxford, in that excellent series of lectures which comprise "The Evolution of Religion," and in which he attempts to show that all religions, like philosophy and law, are as schoolmasters leading us unto Christ, thus sums up the modern view that Jesus was the most consistent of all idealists. Says Prof. Caird:

"No one ever lived and died in more constant defiance of the faint-hearted maxim, that 'that which is true in theory is false in practice,' or that there are things 'too good to be true.' Even Plato tells us that it is 'in the nature of things that practice should fall short of theory,' and flinches from recommending the realization of his ideal state. But Jesus not only treats the ideal or universal as the divine, and so as the highest reality; he maintains that it can and must be realized in this life; and further, that it must be realized, not by the agency of an external miraculous force compelling man against his will, but by the penetrative attraction of a love that draws forth the hidden energies of his nature, and so brings him back from his wanderings to the divine principle of his own life."

No doubt the suggestion may be utterly impractical but I cannot help speculating on the good likely to result, were the clergy of Santa Ana, during the coming winter, each week, in a different church, to debate with the students of Santa Ana college and others interested on God as a Spiritual Principle Manifested in all Nature and History; a God who is an Omnipresent, Unifying Force Among all His Creatures.

Some years ago, in a monograph in defense of the Hegelian conception of the self-realization of God, I used these words, with which I shall close. They are certainly metaphysical enough, but I know of none better to illustrate the mental attitude of modern youth toward the Christian church. They were as follows:

"Thus the stationary thesis of the present day Christian church no longer appeals to thinking people, for the original unification of thought has been disintegrated by a negative or dialectical anti-thesis and the whole world stands waiting for the self-unfoldment of a new synthesis through a reunification of seemingly contradictory elements.

"For reason is neither stationary nor is it negative only; it binds up as well as breaks down, and the new unity—the new manifestation of the absolute—that we await today—must so readjust and reconstitute the older or original thesis as to give expression to both elements in the process: that is, God must be manifested to the modern world in a new idea which must comprise not only the older or stationary thesis of the Christian church, but the newer or negative antithesis of the dialectical reasoner."

Cannot modern youth and the church get together on this basis?

Liquor Found On Prisoner

A complaint charging Steve Morales, Santa Ana, with possession of marijuana, was today issued by the district attorney's office. Morales is a prisoner in the county jail, serving 25 days on a vagrancy charge.

The complaint was procured by Clyde Flower, deputy jailer, who is asserted to have found a quantity of marijuana on the person of Morales when he was being searched at the jail.

Morales was arrested on May 29, for vagrancy, by city police. Judge J. F. Talbott gave him a fine of $25 with an alternate of spending 25 days in jail.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF TODAY ARE DEFENDED BY NOTED PASTOR

Chicago Preacher Asserts Boys and Girls Are No Worse Than Ever Before

PARENTS BLAMED IN MANY CASES

Tells Lions Club Youths Not Fools, But Daring As They Always Were

Boys and girls of today are no worse than the boys and girls of 25 years ago and the youth of the nation is thinking more of the problems of life than did the youth of a generation ago, in the opinion of the Rev. Edward Lawrence Reiner, pastor of the Waverly Avenue Congregational church at Chicago, as expressed in an address yesterday at the meeting of the Lions club.

The pastor defended the youth of today against criticism so frequently heard that they are traveling the road to perdition because they do things that would not have been countenanced when fathers and mothers of this day were boys and girls.

The Rev. Reiner is here to attend the Christian Endeavor convention, and in opening his address pointed out that the union of endeavor societies is engaged in the fine enterprise of salvaging youth for the church and for the nation.

He indirectly criticised parents and adults for not appreciating the fact that living conditions and styles are different from what they were when they were boys and girls, and pointed out that if disobedience is permitted in the home it is certain of interpretation by the young folk in disobedience of the laws of school and of the land.

"We hear considerable criticism of youth, but the trouble is we have not learned their language and we do not correctly interpret their actions," the minister commented, and then he added, "the youth of today are not fools."

"Youth is thinking more of the problems of life than they did 25 years ago," said the divine. "I am not finding fault with them—I am trying to contact them and give them the advice of an older head. Youth is daring, and youth is willing to take a chance, the same as you and I did when we were young, only we have forgotten that fact. Youth acts and talks differently.

"We must learn their ways and their language, if we want to associate with them."

He declared as "bunk" the oft-repeated statement that fathers do not have the interest of mothers in their offspring, and pointed out that his love for his children was just as great as that of the mother of his children—and he expressed the belief that all fathers have the same feeling toward their offspring as he.

"Your children know something—they are not fools—stay with them, march in the parade with them and do not permit yourself to be thrown into the discard," the speaker said, in pointing out that parents should adapt themselves to changed conditions, and that adults should know that youth must have its "fling."

Dr. Reiner threw a great deal of to be devoted to Newport Beach. The beach town has arranged a program to entertain the visiting air pilots. Hollywood motion picture studios will attract the pilots on another day and other towns will laso share in the entertainment of the airmen.

Many of the planes are expected to arrive at the Martin airport the last few days of June and on July 1. The program will open early on the morning of July 2, with the start of the world's endurance test record flight. Army and navy planes will give demonstration formation flights during the forenoon and a free for all race from the field to Long Beach and return will be staged. Balloon straffing, a Hollywood and Los Angeles race with landings at Griffith park and Clover field, for army and navy planes; spot landing to a mark, load carrying performance, a try for the altitude record, a bombing demonstration and parachute jumps, will be other features of the first day's program.

2000 Acres in Meet

A crew of men has been at work at the Martin airport for the past several days putting the runways in shape. The airmen will have a landing space comprising more than 2000 acres.

A Santa Ana to Ventura race will open the program, July 3. The remainder of the day's program will be similar to the first day's events, with the feature attractions being another trial at the world altitude record and altitude parachute jumps.

Women will come into their own July 4, it is announced by Rogers. One of the special features of the third day of the meet is a special event for aviatrix. A small plane race, a race to Long Beach, another to Hollywood and Los Angeles races, balloon straffing, landing to a mark in planes and parachutes, another try at the altitude record, bombing demonstrations and formation flights will be included in the day's program.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Hon. Senor Dr. Don Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States from the Diaz government in Nicaragua, has been welcomed in some sections of the strenuous diplomatic social life here with a cold shoulder.

The Hon, Senor Dr. Don Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoys, etc.—which is his official title—is invited to all the big parties at the Cuban embassy and the Panamanian legation. He is invited to all the functions thrown by the secretary of state and the Pan-American union.

But when Chamorro's own racial brethren, the other Latin-American diplomats, have their balls and receptions, Chamorro generally has to stay home.

All this, mind you, is not because Chamorro is personally offensive. The trouble simply is that most of the people south of the Rio Grande haven't yet recognized the Diaz government of Managua.

The fact might be inserted here thet Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro—who, bearing the names of four great conquerors, certainly should be able to sweep all before him—has undertaken to be known in this country as Cesar, or Caesar, rather than Chamorro. The state department has cooperated wholeheartedly with him in this earnest endeavor.

The Chamorro name is in rather bad repute. When Chamorros were swapping the Nicaraguan presidency within the family, there were 15 Chamorros in high government positions. It was Gen. Emiliano Chamorro who felt so keenly the disgrace of letting the presidency get outside the clan as to stage the famous 1925 coup d'etat which returned him to power. The state department virtuously refused to recognize Emiliano as president.

Since the department accepted Diaz, every effort has been made to show that he had nothing to do with the coup d'etat. This explains why it was more diplomatic not to have a Chamorro as minister to the United States, which is the second most coveted job in Nicaragua.

But Chamorro still remains the gentleman's last name. Imagine Dawes or Borah trying to persuade the world that his name was Giblet or Swisnoosky! It is true that Latin-Americans retain both paternal and maternal surnames, but the giveaway comes when correspondents of South and Central America insist on referring to the minister as Chamorro so that the folks down there will know whom they mean.

The state department names five republics south of the Rio Grande, of a possible 15, as having recognized Diaz. This is the only compilation available and it does not include Cuba and Panama, which could hardly have refused recognition in view of their close hookup with this country.

The five who have fallen into line are Salvador, Honduras, Colombia, Chile and Peru.

When the foreign ministers of Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Costa Rica met in Salvador and resolved that Diaz recognition violated the Central American treaties sponsored by the United States, there may have been slight embarrassment here, but there was no surprise apparent. Secretary Kellogg credited the news to the extent of commenting upon it with reservations, insisting that special investigation had proved Diaz free from any connection with the Chamorro coup.

The significant fact seems to be that the action of the Central American foreign ministers and the obvious coolness of South American diplomats for the present leaves the United States holding the bag.

generally the girl's age. Although the girl might fill out the affidavit herself, giving her age incorrectly it was the man who swore to the truth of all statements in the affidavit and who was held responsible by the law. The girl had no worry about the consequences.

Henceforth both parties are equally liable. If Mary gives her age as 18 when she is only 16 or 17, Mary may be held just as responsible as John, who may really suppose she is 18. And Mary's papa and mamma cannot bring down the wrath of the law upon the head of John without risking the liberty of their own offspring.

"When a few girls have been made examples of, the law is going to have an important affect upon juvenile marriages," comments County Clerk Backs.

YOST THEATER

Plot and counterplot run riot in "The Heart of the Yukon," the picture which plays tonight at the Yost theater. But in spite of the many forces which clash in this fine drama of the Alaska of gold rush days, there is no point in the story where the plot is obscured by too much interplay of dramatic incidents. Throughout the picture, the story is told in a vivid, lively and straightforward manner which adds to the interest.

Charming Anne Cornwall plays the part of the girl, while John Bowers is seen in the other leading role. Russell Simpson, Frank Campeau and Eddie Hearn complete the list of principals.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

The largest exterior sets ever constructed at the Metropolitan studios were erected and filmed for "The Heart Thief," featuring Joseph Schildkraut, Lya de Putti and Robert Edeson, which will be the feature at the Yost Broadway theater tonight.

These huge buildings occupied an entire city block which adjoins the Metropolitan studios where many of the exteriors were filmed.

One of the courtyards of the castle measure 180 feet by 70 feet with the castle building in the background rising to a height of 120 feet.

More than twelve carloads of lumber were used to build the main front of the castle, aside from thousands of sacks of cement, and though it took fifty-four carpenters and thirty plasterers more than three weeks to construct the building, only three days were spent in filming in and around it.

Lya de Putti plays the featured feminine lead with Charles Gerrard, Eulalie Jensen and William Bakewell in the supporting cast.

TEMPLE THEATER

"Some Pun'kins," current attraction at the Temple theater, is Charles Ray's reversion to type—an act welcome to millions of film fans through the world who have missed the Ray of old who gave us the unforgettable portrayal of the American country boy, the bashful, ruddy-cheeked, romantic youth of "The Girl I Loved," "The Ol' Swimmin' Hole," and others.

The story is brimming with interesting and dramatic situations. It is a comedy drama of a small town and the action centers around a corner in pumpkins.

WEST COAST-WALKER

When the year's last foot of celluloid has clicked its perforated way through the projection machines and the big mogul critics—in penitence for some of the unkind things they have said in the past—step manfully forward with their annual bouquets for the best this and the best that, it is suggested that they reserve a place in their list for "Fast and Furious," the Reginald Denny picture at the West Coast-Walker theater, as one of the cleverest opening sequences in a blue moon.

It is well done. Whether the treatment is called subjective or something else, it most certainly tells its story in motion pictures, with a steady build in tension up to the crash.

The likeable Reginald Denny proves as likeable as ever in "Fast and Furious." In his support appears a girl who undoubtedly deserves that much over-worked appellation, lovely. Her name is Barbara Worth. She is potential star material. Then there are Claude Gillingwater, Lee Moran, Charles French, Armand Kaliz and others.

Mel Brown directed from a continuity by Raymond Cannon. In all probability both are to be credited with the numerous fine touches which distinguish the film. Albert DeMond's titles are good.

Fanchon and Marco's "Specialties" are featured on the stage with Bobby Wolf and his band.

ADVANTAGES OF C. E. EXPLAINED BY GLEN WIGHT

"There should be enough Christian Endeavor societies in every church to serve all age groups of young people," said Glen D. Wight, president of the California Christian Endeavor Union, in discussing "Graded Christian Endeavor." He continued as follows:

"Because Christian Endeavor is adaptable, and because no two situations are exactly alike, there has developed a great variety of Christian Endeavor methods. Societies in different communities use different committees, different prayer meeting topics, different standards of membership, and undertake different programs of service.

"This variety is especially noticeable in regard to the number of societies. Some churches have one society, many have two or three, and increasing hundreds have four, five and more.

"In none of these particulars does the United Society of Christian Endeavor seek to exercise authority. The United Society serves as a clearing house of Christian Endeavor information. It gathers the plans of the most successful socities and churches and passes on the suggestions for the benefit of all interested. It is primarily a service organization. Experience has shown, however, that the best Christian Endeavor work is done when there are enough societies to care for all ages of work.

"An increasing number of churches are recognizing the value of Christian Endeavor as an agency to give training to young people. They are building up a Christian Endeavor program with age-groups corresponding closely to those of the Sunday school. They are seeking to bring into active, associate or affiliated membership of Christian Endeavor all young people of the Sunday school and other organizations of the church. In large churches this plan makes necessary five, six, seven and even more Christian Endeavor societies.

"Many large churches are finding that the senior young peoples' society makes a real contribution to the young peoples' program. It gives a place for the older young people, including young married couples, and at the same time gives assurance that the members of the Young People's society will have a chance for service and training without too much domination by their elders. It reaches the age group from whom the lodge and various community social organizations have had such a great appeal, and who, because of this fact, have often been lost to the church.

"Then every church needs the alumni council, composed of former Endeavorers and friends of Christian Endeavor. An alumni council will be found of real service in giving support and encouragement to the young people, in providing leadership for the younger groups, in encouraging graduation from the young people's societies, and in supporting the pastor in the activities of the church."

Court Notes

Desertion Charged

Desertion after five days of married life was the picture of matrimonial failure portrayed today in a superior court action for divorce, filed by Rollo F. D. McMahan against Marjorie P. McMahan. They were married in Los Angeles May 22, 1926, and separated at Huntington Beach on May 27. Attorney James L. Hansen represents the plaintiff.

Damage Suit

A collision between an automobile driven by Frederick A. Young and a truck belonging to the contracting firm, Sparkes and McClellan, led to a suit on file today in superior court. Young asks judgment for $430.03 damages against Sparkes and McClellan. The wreck took place on the coast boulevard near Balboa, August 24, 1926.

TWO CITIES IN RING FOR 1928 C. E. CONCLAVE

Two cities are bidding for the 1928 meeting of the California Christian Endeavor union and the delegations were pressing their claims by high powered propaganda measured.

Either Berkeley or Sacramento will get the convention.

The committee on the place of meeting were to confer with the delegation representatives to learn about the accommodations that can be offered and their report was to be made before the general business session of the convention, perhaps this afternoon.

The committee on place of meeting is headed by Lawrence Downen. Members of the committee are Mrs. Hazel Roble, of Riverside; Miss Anona Stinett, of San Diego, and Miss Merlyn Carpenter of San Lois Obispo.

On the opening day of the convention, the Berkeley committee had tacked up their banners asking for the convention. Posters with the Berkeley bear symbol were placed about the convention grounds and literature distributed among the convention delegations. The Berkeley committee is headed by Miss Elane Craven, president of the Alameda county Christian Endeavor.

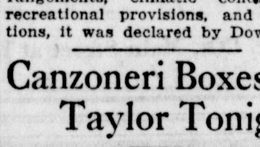

Henry Denton, city clerk of Sacramento, arrived in town this morning with his arguments for bringing the convention to the capital city, famed as the city of many trees.

The points that are being considered in the choice of a convention are on the basis of the convention facilities, housing arrangements, climatic conditions, recreational provisions, and locations, it was declared by Downen.

RESIDENT HERE FOR 44 YEARS ANSWERS CALL

Clem Beard, 58, resident of Santa Ana for the past 44 years, died last night at his home, 519 East Washington street, after an illness of less than 12 hours duration. He had been in poor health, however, for the past year.

Funeral services will be held at the Winbigler Mission funeral home tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Central Memorial park.

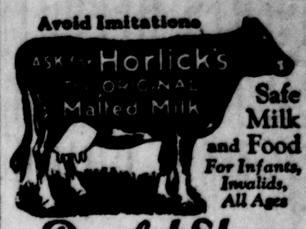

Beard, a brick mason by trade, came to Santa Ana when he was only 14 years of age. He came with his parents from the family home in Ohio. His father, Charles Beard, was one of the first police officers of the county, which at that time was a part of Los Angeles county. The elder Beard operated the jail here at that time, it being located in his own home.

Clem Beard is survived by two sons, Gerald Beard, of Santa Ana, and Cecil Beard, of Tustin. He also leaves a sister and a brother, Mrs. Jesse Robertson, Los Angeles, and Ernest Beard, of Escondido.

PILOTS REPORT FREAK MISHAPS IN MAIL SHIPS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth of a series of 10 articles telling of the amazing adventures of Lindbergh's pals in the airmail service. The final article will appear tomorrow.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Pilots in the airmail service have more than their share of thrilling experiences and breath-taking escapes from death. But also, by way of compensation, there are freakish happenings now and then that provide a sort of grimly comic relief.

For example: the post-office files are full of reports that tell of head-on collisions between airmail planes and various animals.

Pilot Huking, for instance, once landed squarely on a jack rabbit—with disastrous effects to the rabbit.

Pilot Mouton once collided with an eagle in mid-air. The lifeless body of the bird was found wedged between a couple of wing struts when Mouton landed at Elko field.

Dog Is Beheaded

Then there was the time when a dog wandered up to a plane at one field and became unduly intrigued by the whirring propeller. Dog-like, he sought to bite a chunk out of the spinning blades—and was neatly beheaded. His head flew through the air so fast that it hit Clarence Berggren, pilot, standing nearby, and knocked him cold!

The classic story of the airmail, however, is the story of Pilot Unger. Unger made a very dangerous forced landing in his plane, escaped unhurt—and then was painfully injured getting off a horse! Here is the way his report to his superiors tells about it:

"I was crossing the Ruby mountains at about 10,500 feet when I broke a set of gears and landed in a very small field in Secret pass. A safe landing was made with difficulty owing to small space and high altitude. A rancher riding the range saw me land and rode over and let me take his horse to ride to the nearest ranch, eight or 10 miles away. After phoning to Elko for help I started back to the ship on the horse.

"I mounted, or started to mount, and as all true western horses do, this one took off on a climbing turn before I got in the seat and had my safety control belt fastened. To make a long story short, I over-controlled, her nose went down and I spun or side-slipped—I don't know which—into the ground with great speed.

Flew With Broken Ankle

"I broke my left ankle in two places and was well shaken up by this forced landing. After filling the air with smoke, which must have dazed the horse, I managed to catch him. We took off in a gentle lope and returned to the ship. Help came at last, the motor was repaired and I flew the ship to Elko. I had the boys tack a strap on the right rudder bar so I could pull as well as push. This made up for the loss of my left foot.

"I took off for the city of Salt Lake with the regular mail as usual, as there was no other pilot available."

Incidentally, some of the most thrilling stories of all come from Alaska, where there is a government airmail route from Fairbanks to McGrath. Pilot C. B. Eilson, who made the first flight, had about as "interesting" a trip as any pilot in the service.

His official report tells how, with the thermometer at five below and the landing field covered with three feet of snow, he took off from Fairbanks, flew to McGrath without incident, took on 60 pounds of mail and turned around to come back. It was on the homeward trip that the fun began. It grew dark shortly after he left McGrath, and in a short time Eilson discovered that he was lost.

Lost at Night

"After passing Lake Minchumina, about half way, I passed over a stream not on my map and thought it must be the Tanana. To the left I saw what looked like Nenana bluff and struck for it, but found no Nenana. I started back the Tanana to find Nenana and by this time it was pitch dark. I went back 50 miles, but did not believe it possible I could have gone that far off my course. The sky was entirely overcast; not a star showed.

"I wandered about completely lost for most of an hour; then I knew that the river I had left was the Tanana. I saw a light so cut my altitude and went down to it. It must have been a trapper's cabin near the Chatanika river. I was tempted to set the ship down there and have a nice place to sleep, but knew I would wreck her if I did, so decided to look around some more.

"I went back to the river I had left and when I was following it I saw a flare in the distance. I hit for it and it turned out to be my home field."

YALE CREWS GAIN LEAD ON HARVARD

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 24.—Yale made a clean sweep of the morning events of the annual Yale-Harvard regatta today.

After the Yale freshmen crew had won from Harward's freshmen over a two-mile course by a length, the Yale junior varsity, pulling a stubborn race on even terms with Harvard most of the way, gained in the last three quarters of a mile and finished a length ahead of the Harvard outfit.

The junior race was as hard a fight as the two junior varsities ever put up.

SUNSET BEACH RAID RESULTS IN 3 ARRESTS

A raid late last night by sheriff's officers on an asserted gambling den at Sunset Beach, resulted in three arrests and the confiscation of 12 decks of playing cards and hundreds of poker chips, Sheriff Sam Jernigan announced today.

The men arrested, Joe George, 38, and W. Bergeman, 37, both of 926 Olive street, Long Beach, and C. W. Kelley, 29, Third and American avenue, Long Beach, are being held in the county jail.

Bergeman is said to be wanted by federal prohibition officers and may be turned over to them, it was said today. Roscoe Knight, deputy sheriff, said that a charge of operating a nuisance would probably be lodged against George. Kelly is being held on a drunk charge.

When officers walked into the house, five men were seated at a table, and George was in the act of dealing cards, Knight said today. A search of Bergeman's car, found parked near the house, revealed a half case of empty bottles, officers said.

Officers who conducted the raid were Knight, Undersheriff Ed French, Deputy Sheriffs Scott and Roberts and Officer John Stanton, of Huntington Beach.

DOG USES PHONE

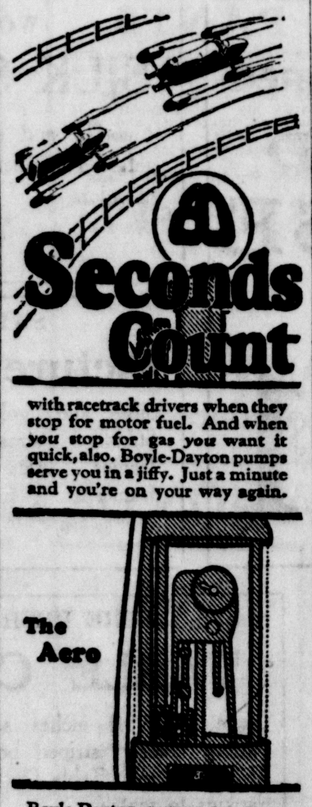

WINSTED, Conn., June 24.—A telephone operator trying to put through a call was alarmed to find the line open and the sound of labored breathing coming over the wire. The owner of the house was reached and hurried home to find his dog lying close to the instrument, which he had knocked from a table.

FIRST YOLKLESS EGG

NEW YORK, June 24.—Adolph Goldberg is an egg candler; he has been one for 20 years. But not until the other day did he ever see an egg without a yolk. He took it to the Museum of Natural History, where officials agreed that it was the first on record.

PRAISES BORAH

Coach Dean Cromwell, at Southern California, thinks it is only a matter of time before Charley Borah will establish world records in the 220 and 440 events. Borah, says Cromwell, is unbeatable in the 220, and is hard to beat in the 100 and 440.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY RESUMES LIQUOR PROBE

Several "surprise" witnesses were scheduled to appear before the federal grand jury in Los Angeles today when that body again took up its probe into the $1,000,000 rum scandal and conspiracy.

With the completion of the investigation scheduled for late today, at least 10 new indictments will be forthcoming, in the opinion of federal officers, some of which, it was intimated, will name persons alleged to have participated in the courthouse robbery here in 1925 when 140 cases of confiscated liquor was removed.

The grand jury also will investigate several stories by witnesses pertaining to the Los Angeles warehouse robbery in 1925, when a large amount of bonded goods was stolen, it was said.

More than a dozen subpoenas have been issued for witnesses, the names being kept a secret by government agents in the belief that prospective defendants would "skip" if they knew who the grand jury had summoned for questioning.

Several federal agents, known to be working on the scandal charges, have been seen in Santa Ana recently. It was intimated they served some subpoenas for witnesses while here.

ALL BOATS AT NEWPORT SEEK FLYER'S BODY

All boats operating out of Newport Beach have been asked by Newport police to watch for the body of Lt. Com. William Hactor, believed drowned Tuesday night, when the plane in which he was riding with Lt. Thomas Fisher and Chief Machinist's Mate Charles Robbins, was wrecked, it was announced today at the beach city.

Six navy planes scoured the waters between Newport Beach and Laguna Beach all day yesterday but were unable to locate the body. The search work was hampered greatly by the heavy fog. The planes have returned to San Diego.

At the inquest conducted at Winbigler's funeral parlor yesterday over the body of Robbins, the jury rendered a verdict of accidental death. No blame for the accident was placed by the jury.

A complete record of the flight from Seattle was brought to Santa Ana for the jury's inspection. The machine had just been completed at Seattle and the three men were bringing it to the air base at San Diego, the records disclosed. The accident was caused when the plane got too close to the water and not because of machine trouble, the records revealed.

Following the inquest the body was taken to San Diego for burial.

ALARM ROUTS THIEVES FROM CHICKEN YARD

An electrically charged wire fence, together with a burglar alarm on the chicken house, probably saved Mrs. C. J. Grinnell, poultry rancher of Orangethorpe road, from losing her flock, according to a report that chicken thieves were on her property last night.

Officers investigating today, learned that a machine had stopped near the hen house and three men had gotten out. Their tracks were visible in the soft earth.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, June 24.—Heavy selling induced by fine weather for harvesting in the southwest, together with easier foreign markets and a negligible export demand forced wheat prices sharply lower early on the Chicago board of trade today. Corn, like wheat, was under heavy pressure early on the better weather over the belt, and prices dropped sharply. The cash market was 1 to 1½ cents lower. Although oats were very dull, prices sold off sharply early in sympathy with ohter grains. The cash market was one to two cents lower.

Provisions were lower.

WALL ST. JOURNAL

NEW YORK, June 24.—Describing the market, the Wall Street Journal's financial review today said:

Stocks developed a better tone today. No repetition of Thursday's heavy selling occurred and rallying tendencies characterized the market leaders the greater part of the session.

This improvement appeared to be largely due to the strengthening of the technical condition created by elimination of weak accounts on the reaction.

It could not be said that the recovery extended to the whole list. Several issues broke to new low ground for the year under the influence of adverse conditions affecting their earnings.

The market closed irregular.

Cologne Cathedral Has Loud Speaker

BERLIN, June 24.—Venerable Cologne cathedral has been endowed with one of the most modern inventions, the loud speaker.

At 11 points in the choir and a like number in the nave megaphones have been installed, so that the words of the officiating priests can be heard everywhere.

The loud speaker solves a problem which has caused concern for centuries. The enormous size of the cathedral has hitherto made it impossible for the human voice to reach all parts of the edifice.

COTTON GIVES WAY IN SOUTH TO NEW CROPS

ATLANTA, June 24.—The southern farmer threatens to take diversification more seriously this year than ever before. With nearly half of the year gone, reports here show that except in the flood-swept districts the farmers have come to realize they cannot depend wholly upon cotton again.

Specially in Georgia, is this true, although this state has never been a one-crop section exclusively and many farmers have grown wheat and feed and even poultry and truck in addition to cotton. Cotton has not been a paying crop for years, owing to overproduction.

Tobacco has taken an important place among Georgia crops, and a tobacco belt fair is planned in Coffee county. October 24 to 28. Georgia grows a bright leaf said to be more popular than the dark leaf grown in other states. Georgia grew about 49 million pounds last year and this was sold on the market for nine million dollars.

A more promising circumstance is the fact that thousands of boys and girls in Georgia are being taught practical diversification in town and rural schools. They are not being taught by the book but by actual problems of handling stock and poultry and planting, harvesting and marketing of crops.

The results of these practical lessons are considered excellent. In the Salt City, Ga., high school, 10 boys under a teacher in vocational agriculture fed 85 hogs as a study from January to April and total or a net profit of $3.85 on each made a profit of $325.57 on the hog.

Much better results would have been obtained had the boys been able to use home-grown feed, it was said. The pigs fed were animals that could be purchased easily and some made poor gains on account of being scrub stock.

Another promising sign of diversification is the growing of pecans in this state. Thousands of pounds of pecans were sold in the state last year, and recently 65 acres near Leesburg, Ga., which were planted with pecans, brought about $400 an acre.

PLUCKY GIRL WINS UNIVERSITY DEGREE

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 24.—A feminine Lindbergh set forth four years ago from the little hamlet of Astancia, N. M., on her great adventure with an ancient automobile as her plane, a map of western United States as her chart, a suitcase with all her earthly belongings and a $5 bill in her pocket.

Some time later the girl, Lita Holladay, 19 years old, and her battered car drew up before the Illinois Woman's college here, at the end of a 1503 mile journey, alone, and demanded an education on the installment plan, and four years after her take-off, the first lap of her great adventure was completed. She was among 41 young women from 18 states who received degrees.

Except for the $5 bill, with which she started, Miss Holladay earned all the money for her education and among her odd jobs was dishwashing, housework, laundress, children's nurse, pastry cook, and waitress. The young woman is returning to teach in a New Mexico high school in order to send a younger sister to college here.

Deaf Cyclists In Berlin Have Sign

BERLIN, June 24.—For the benefit of deaf bicyclists, and there are many in Berlin, the Bicyclists' League of Germany has introduced a symbol to distinguish these wheelmen and women from others.

The symbol is a metal plate screwed to the rear bar of the wheel with three black balls in a triangle on a yellow background. The league adopted this measure because it numbers 500 deaf among its members.

NEW MINING TOWN BUILT IN ENGLAND

LONDON, June 24.—Midway between Canterbury and Dover, circled by countless hop fields, a new town is being built that will soon provide housing room for 1,[illegible] miners and their families. Already four families are installed, and the first two completed dwellings are occupied by former Wigan miners. The "town" is being built by the owners of the Snowdon colliery, where the miners, most of them northerners from the Lancashire, Derbyshire, Newcastle, Durham, Nottingham and Welsh coal fields, have been working for some months.

Aylesham is the name of the new town. It is to possess its own school, church, hotel, public library, sports ground, and a 1[illegible] foot boulevard which will stretch toward Adestam, the nearest village. In time the motor bus services that run between Dover and Canterbury will include the circle of Aylesham, and so modern everything to be in this rural town set on a hill that every building is to be supplied with electricity from the colliery.

$150,000 PAID FOR FIRST POOL VALENCIAS SHIPPED BY ANAHEIM ASSOCIATION

ANAHEIM, June 24.—Payment of approximately $150,000 to growers as a partial settlement for the fruit marketed during the first pool was announced this morning by G. W. Sandilands, manager of the Anaheim Orange and Lemon association, the second major distributing house here to announce disbursements to growers for the summer fruit.

Manager Sandilands reported that 305 cars of fruit were shipped during the first pool period of his house, which came to a close this week and that returns to growers, for the pool, will total approximately $300,000 when final settlement is made.

This disubrsement, added to the $400,000 which the Anaheim Citrus Fruit association recently announced it would pay growers for first pool shipments, makes a total of $700,000 that will return to Anaheim growers for early period valencias, with the Anaheim Cooperative Orange association and various smaller independent houses yet to be heard from.

Prices by sizes were higher during the pool of shipment just closed than for the same period last year, though the house has been forced to handle a larger percentage of smaller sizes than during the previous term, Manager Sandilands stated. The net result, however, he said, has been better returns. The quality of this season's fruit is as good if not better than last season's crop at this time, he stated.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

The following lecture was given under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Santa Ana, California, at the church edifice, 920 North Main Street, Thursday evening, June 23rd, at 8 o'clock.

A LECTURE

Entitled

Christian Science: Its Purpose and Method

By

Peter V. Rose, C. S. B. of San Francisco

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Thoughtful observers are impressed with the apparent imperfection of things as they pass before us in the panorama of life. The plant is twisted, the beast vicious, while man, the noblest of earth's inhabitants, seems so deplorably prone to disease and evil that he is described as mortal and fallen.

May not all this supposed imperfection rest in our mistaken sense of things rather than in the things themselves? Unquestionably the Creator has made all things perfect and permanent. Otherwise the universe could not endure. The source of the difficulty, then, must be sought in personal sense or in the human mind, and the remedy must be applied to this mind and a correction therein wrought to the end that a perception be attained which sees man and the universe as God made them.

The human mind, because it is human, catches at most only faint glimpses of what is going on even in the so-called physical realm. Small wonder, then, that it gets a grotesque sense of spiritually real things, and, instead of seeing them in their glory and perfection, renders them sickly and ugly.

THE MENTAL REALM

So it is not surprising that the human mind should misinterpret, should belittle man. And this is precisely what the human mind does. Divine Mind, or God, creates and sees man spiritual and perfect, above and beyond disease; but the human mind, unable to comprehend man in his fullness and perfection, visualizes him as physical, as a finite form or figure, swayed by the evil, tormented by disease, always limited and imperfect. Thus it is that evil, disease, and imperfection have their source and abiding place in the human mind or consciousness. Hence their cure must there be brought about.

Material things, the human body included, seem very real and tangible. But actually matter is only a mistaken sense of things as dense and heavy, as having weight and ends and sides. For the human mind is, so to speak, shortsighted. It gets a blurred sense of things as dimensional and ponderous. This restricted sense of things constitutes matter. Matter will therefore disappear as mortal sense, under the influence of truth, gives way to a right perception which sees things as they are in spiritual perfection. The disappearance of matter does not mean that the foundation of things will slip away or that the individual will disappear or lose his identity. It means that our heavy, awkward, cumbered, suffering sense of ourselves, and of things generally, will give place to the buoyant, free, spiritual—the true sense of things and of ourselves.

A person absorbed in his work, a musician or baseball player for example, forgets his hands and limbs. Then come lightness, precision, and grace of action. If consciousness were entirely detached from the body the individual would not lose his identity. He would simply part with his heavy sense of himself, for that is what the physical body is, and he would gain the freedom of movement and locomotion which his thought now enjoys; and thought runs instantly whithersoever it will. It does not know locality, distance, or obstruction. We experience something of this freedom in dreams, where we do not lose ourselves but only our heaviness. And should we as incorporeal beings be able to recognize and communicate with each other? Certainly, and with more facility than before, because perception is mental, communion is exchange of thoughts, and what mortals call objects are, if they are anything, ideas.

Suppose three persons are together in a room. The first one, fully awake and with eyes wide open, sees, as he looks toward the center of the room, a table with people gathered about it eating dinner. The second, with eyes closed but with attention fixed in the same direction, sees, precisely where the table appears to his companion, a field of waving grain with people hard at work with their harvesting implements. The third, meanwhile having fallen asleep, visualizes, in the same place, not a field of wheat nor a dining table, but a rugged mountain, and, starting to climb it, loses his footing and tumbles over a precipice.

These things, then, which seem so fixed and rigid, and which we call formations of matter, are really formations of thought. And different individuals in different states of mortal consciousness formulate different things and different events, all in the same place at the same time, with no collision nor interferences the one with the other. And this will continue until we all are awakened and by the truth into the one absolute consciousness, which is God, where we shall not lose our individualities, but where we shall drop our beliefs of accident and strife and distress, and gain a sense of security and continuous life.

We live, then, in a mental realm. All things are mental, man himself being an aggregation of thoughts, a state of consciousness, instead of an aggregation of cells or a physical body as physiology declares. And it is toward consciousness rather than corporeality that Christian Science treatment is directed. Science, by declaring perfection in all things and in all places, operates to eliminate from human consciousness its beliefs that matter is actual, that disease is present, that evil is attractive. It sweeps from consciousness the heavy, sickly sense of man, and brings out the true sense of man as healthy and holy, as spiritual and perfect.

THE GREAT DISCOVERY

It will be remembered that Jesus, early in his ministry, healed all sorts of diseases and even raised the dead, through spiritual means. After reaching the understanding whereby he could see and demonstrate that disease and death are, in Science, unreal, Jesus one day took three of his disciples up into a high mountain—up into the exalted consciousness which he had attained—and there communed with Moses and Elias, both of whom had passed from mortal sight centuries before. So vivid was the picture that even the disciples saw these men, because, as the Scriptural narrative runs, "the face of the covering cast over all people" was, for the time being, destroyed, and it was realized that individuals who are supposed to pass away in fact continue to exist and maintain their identity and carry on their work, for as Jesus talked with Moses and Elias they spoke of his decease which he was soon to accomplish at Jerusalem.

For the storm was gathering. Jesus' teachings could not long pass unchallenged. One night (you all know the story) he was seized by a mob, given a mockery of trial in the morning, and cruelly executed. Three days later he came from the sepulcher, and appeared not once but several times to his friends and talked with them during a period of forty days. Then he ascended, that is, became invisible to the physical senses. He had demonstrated that individual life is indestructible and continuous.

It might be thought that the significance of such a stupendous accomplishment would never be forgotten, but, within two or three centuries, it was, very largely, until some sixty years ago, when, here in America, a spiritually minded and deeply religious woman, apparently approaching the end of mortal existence as the result of an accident, turned to her Bible for consolation. While she was reading one of the gospel accounts of healing performed by Jesus, a sense of strength and freedom stole over her. She arose, dressed, and presented herself to anxious friends, sound and well.

But she was not content with this. She must understand the process of spiritual healing. To this end she searched the scriptures and devoted her life. She found that Jesus, in overcoming disease, setting aside material laws, and abolishing death itself, invoked absolute Science, which he understood and which, as he declared, others can understand and apply as he did.

In order that the world at large might profit by her discovery, she set forth the fundamentals of this Science in her great book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." Afterward she established the Christian Science Church with its periodicals and other means for disseminating and guarding the truth. Thus it was, in brief, that Mary Baker Eddy became the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and the Leader of the Christian Science movement— a movement which has for its purpose nothing less than the overthrow of sin, disease, and death.

THE CONTINUITY OF LIFE

The conviction is all but universal that man is immortal. The primitive American Indian, the intellectual Greek, the devout Jew, each in his own time and peculiar way arrived at the same conclusion that life continues beyond the grave. Intuition, reason, and inspiration unite in declaring that life is eternal, and that death is not the end of individual existence, but an incident or transition not yet fully understood.

When we conceive of man as consciousness, instead of corporeality, we place ourselves in a position to appreciate his immortality, for consciousness persists and continues whatever may seem to happen to the physical body. Thinking is constant and continuous, swifter and freer, if anything, when we are asleep than when awake. Nothing can check the ceaseless flow of thought. Accident and disease cannot stop thinking; cannot destroy consciousness; cannot interrupt the eternal course of Life. Sickness or catastrophe may seem to overtake our friend, and we may say that he is dead and gone, but he knows that he is alive and is here. Hence arise two opposite states of consciousness something as when one person falls asleep while his companion remains awake and neither recognizes the other for the time being.

Why do we not see our friend? Because we insist that death has come between us, has even destroyed or carried him to an unknown realm. This self-imposed stupidity or denseness, this clouded mortal sense of things, which we tenaciously hold to, constitutes the veil of the flesh that shuts us out from the so-called departed. But as thought is clarified and uplifted, a perception, an understanding will unfold which knows no veil, no death, no separation.

Trying by means of physical sense to penetrate the veil or to outline or visualize our friend will end only in confusion and disappointment. Materiality cannot apprehend spirituality. The qualities which endear our friend to us and which really constitute our friend and make him undying are not of the flesh. They never existed in a material body. They are spiritual qualities—integrity, faithfulness, love, and other attributes of Soul. They are not appreciable to material sense; they never have been and never can be. They are appreciable to spiritual sense only. Let us cultivate this sense. Let us think rightly, live rightly. Let us rise above sin and sensuousness. This is what our friend is doing. Then with our thoughts and aims in the same direction our pathways will converge. We shall come out of the different states of consciousness to which mortal sense has consigned us, and which have seemed to separate us, and come together into the one absolute consciousness of Life eternal.

It is humanly natural that we should be concerned about our friend and wonder what and where he is, but if we are wise we shall trust him to God's tender, constant care, thinking of him rationally and helpfully. Grieving and speculating can do no good and may spread confusion where poise and calm are needed. When our friend was here we emphasized his good qualities, we admired and dwelt upon them in thought, dismissing erring qualities as not representing him. In other words, we saw something of the real man as an expression of imperishable life and unchanging good. We should continue to do so. Right thinking, comprising thoughts of love and life and peace, is always and universally helpful. It knows no barrier. It reaches its destination certainly and instantly.

In Christian Science practice we observe that right thinking, treatment, or prayer heals the absent or sleeping patient as quickly and effectively as though he were awake or present. Intervening walls, mountains, oceans and varying states of human consciousness, offer no resistance to the truth liberated by right thinking. In Science the here and there are merged, and we are neither separated from God nor from one another by walls of matter or walls of consciousness. These supposed barriers exist only to erring physical sense, and they disappear as physical sense yields to spiritual sense or the true vision.

Will Wales Choose From These?

CAR SHORTAGE CHARGE HIT BY INVESTIGATOR

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Charges that railroads failed to furnish sufficient cars for California grape transportation are unsustained, according to a proposed report of his investigation filed by Special Examiner John L. Rogers with the interstate commerce commission.

The so-called "grape car plan"—the system of furnishing refrigerator cars for grape loading in California during periods of car shortage—is found by Rogers not to be unreasonable and not to result in undue preference or prejudice with some exceptions.

"There are indications in the record," said the report, "that the grape car plan is favored by some shippers because the information obtained under the plan is of value in the marketing of grapes. There also is some evidence that due to market conditions some shippers have favored car shortage as means of restricting shipments and increasing the market price.

"These facts prompt us in observing that regulation of the volume of shipments or prices at the market is no part of the duty of carriers and no car distribution plan should be used as a device to accomplish these ends.

"If reasonable request is made to carriers for cars and the cars are available they should be furnished without regard to market conditions. Regulations of the volume of shipments and the determination of the markets to which such shipments should be sent are matters to be handled by the shippers and their organizations, apart from car service rules and regulations of the carriers."

Rogers pointed out that evidence showed that some plan of car distribution is necessary to enable carriers to distribute cars among shippers, but such allocations must be in accord with requirements of the transportation act.

His report now must be examined by the full commission.

Prince, Now 33 Years Old, Still Unwed Despite People's Plea

LONDON, June 24.—The world's most eligible bachelor became 33 years old yesterday and still a bachelor!

Edward Arthur Christian George Andrew Patrick David Windsor, more popularly known as the Prince of Wales, ate his birthday cake in one or the other of his various palace homes, while his father, the king, and his mother, the queen, sorrowfully reflected that for more than 15 birthdays they have said, "Next year he'll be married, surely!"

It was back in 1911 that the international hullabaloo about finding a bride for Prince "Davy" began. In 1911 he was betrothed by public opinion to the daughter of the Kaiser of Germany, Princess Victoria Louise.

Lots of Reports

And from that first "engagement" he has been variously reported engaged to every eligible girl of blood royal in the Caucasian world; girls of every religion, girls ranging in age from 16 to 35, beautiful girls and homely girls, studious girls and frivolous girls.

There are enough romantic tales woven about Prince "Davy" to supply all the operas of all time.

One of the most popular has it that his heart is buried in the unknown grave of the Grand Duchess Tatiana Olga, daughter of the Czar of Russia, who was put to death by Bolshevists.

They say that he loved lovely Princess Astrid, of Sweden, and was about to make her his when she married Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium.

They say that when, returning from his trip to America, he found dark-eyed Yolanda of Italy a guest of his royal father and mother, he was almost ready again to please the world by mating. But she returned home to wed a dashing cavalry officer.

They say that little Princess Ileana, of Rumania, pleased him, but that the too-evident eagerness of her match-making mama, Marie, to noose him as a son-in-law antagonized him until he told her to take Ileana home and "put her in school where she belonged."

Today the prince is 33. King George grows old and weary of cares of state. Prince "Davy" is the idol of his people. They want him on the throne. But they do not want a bachelor king.

Shrugs His Shoulders

But Prince "Davy" only shrugs his shoulders and lets them talk. Many of his intimates seem to believe that he has no hankering to be king and that if bachelorhood will keep him from the throne and give it to his brother, the Duke of York, and from him to his little daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, nothing could suit him better!

In alarm, the high moguls, seeing first one princess and then another who has been reported engaged to the Prince of Wales, marry another, cry out, "Soon there will be no blooded maidens left!"

But facts are that there are about 1500 maidens of blood royal in Europe and only about 75 eligible princes.

If the Prince of Wales really wants a wife, and a wife who, according to officialdom, would be altogether fitting and proper, there is no dearth of material.

The latest and most persistent rumor betroths him to the Infanta Beatrice, of Spain. The Spanish court does not deny this rumor nearly so vigorously as the British court.

Beatrice has always been popular with her royal English relatives. She is more English than Spanish in type. She is charming and young, only 18. She has that vivacity which men are supposed to love; in fact, she is known as "the royal girl tomboy of Europe." To be sure, she is Catholic, but officialdom would know how to surmount that obstacle.

Highly Eligible

Princess Marta, of Sweden, and Princess Feodora, of Denmark, are officially considered two of Europe's most eligible princesses for the prince, because they are Protestant and present no baffling international problems.

Marta is a sister of Astrid, now Crown Princess of Belgium, and with her sister had been a frequent and welcome visitor at the English court. She is 26 and a model of domesticity.

Among maidens nearer Prince "Davy's" own vintage is Princess Hilda, sister of the Grand Duchess of Luxemburg. Hilda has six sisters, and 'tis said that the seven girls vowed to enter a Carmelite convent if unwed by the time they were 25. They are very wealthy and will not marry Germans.

The Prince of Wales has been reported engaged at various times to all three daughters of the King of Italy. But Mafalda and Yolanda are both wed now and only Giovanna remains.

Julianna, of Holland, last descendant of the House of Orange, which gave Holland three kings, one queen, seven stadholders and one English king, is, in some ways considered Europe's greatest royal matrimonial catch, as she will have a throne in her own right. But—well, if she weren't a princess she would be said to lack "it." She is 18, stocky, studious, serious, and even the oldest moguls of England hardly vision their dance-footed "Davy" married to Julianna.

Then there is Princess Irene of Greece, sister of ex-King George II of Greece, and a niece of the former German kaiser. But—well, nobody knows just why!

Pretty Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, is just 20, dark and curly haired as are the girls with whom the prince seems to like to dance, musical and athletic. But—again!

Ingrid Is Popular

There is 17-year-old Princess Ingrid, daughter of the Crown Prince of Sweden by his first wife, and one of Europe's most popular princesses. There are the sisters of Princess Olga, of Greece, who, once rumored as Edward Windsor's betrothed, is now wed to another. Her sisters, Elizabeth and Mariana and her cousins, Marguerite and Theodora, daughters of Prince Andrew, of Greece, now live in England and are well known to the Windsors.

Meanwhile, as England lists the possibilities, Prince "Davy" goes his way, visiting the public halls of Whitechapel and Cheapside, dancing with factory girls when he wants to, grinning, dancing, laying cornerstones of public buildings, and sticking his fingers in his ears when the matrimonial adding machine gets to going.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excessive acid and there is no sourness, gas, or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

Who Is Your Skinny Friend, Ethel?

Tell him to take Cod Liver Oil the new way for a couple of months and get enough good healthy flesh on his bones to look like a real man.

Tell him he won't have to swallow the nasty cod liver oil with the fishy taste, because he can now get the same kind of weight producing vitamines put up in sugar coated tablet form. Tell him to ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — every druggist worthy the name sells them—60 cents. PITTSBURGHER TELLS HOW TO STUDY BIBLE

Rev. John McNaugher Is Leading Speaker for Second Day's Session

"The Bible is a literature and must be studied as such," stated the Rev. John McNaugher, D. D., L. L. D., president of the Pittsburgh Theological seminary of the United Presbyterian church, in his talk to the adults and older young people in the First Baptist church yesterday on the subject of the "Ultimate Demand in Bible Study."

Romans is the greatest scripture and Obediah is the one least important, according to the Rev Mr. McNaugher. Psalms is of greater importance than James, the Fourth Gospel more desirable than Ecclesiastes and Hosea greater than Esther. The desirability of the various books can be easily determined by inspecting the pages of Bibles in general use. The worn pages are found in the books having the most power, according to the speaker.

The Bible is a unity with each book being a unity and aiming at something, explained the Rev. Mr. McNaugher. The chapters and verses are superfluous, they having been introduced into the text in the past seven centuries. In reading without chapters and verse, one travels with the writer and gains the thought as the writer intended it.

The Rev. Mr. McNaugher advocated that each book of the Bible be read at one sitting. The second step in a thorough understanding of the book would be to do the same again after having studied a guide. The third step, taking the script by paragraphs, gives the law of contacts and prevents the reader from being fooled by quotations plucked at random from the scriptures. The last step in making a thorough study should be in a lingering study of the details to gain the full beauty and power of the work, stated the Rev. Mr. McNaugher.

The session which the Rev. Mr. McNaugher addressed opened with a song service under the direction of Vaughan Harlan, second vice president of the state Christian Endeavor Union. Everett Anderson presided at the organ.

LOCAL SCOUTS ACT AS PAGES TO DELEGATES

Boy Scouts of Troop No. 23, Santa Ana, observed their "Be Prepared" motto in serving as pages and guides for the delegates attending the state convention of the California Christian Endeavor Union being held in Santa Ana this week. Their response to the request for service on the first day of the convention was the best of any troops in this vicinity according to Allen Goddard, chairman of the committee in charge.

An award of $20 is to be given the Boy Scout troop that is most efficient in assisting at the convention.

For the opening day Troop No. 23 made the best record but other troops are closely rivaling them for the honors and the rewards.

The cash award is being given the troop adjudged to have rendered the best service so that they may make a week end camping party. The points on which the troops are judged are service, courtesy, and representation in numbers, Goddard said.

Some of the scouts were acting as personal pages for the president of the convention and other prominent men.

A booth has been provided at the convention headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building where the scouts are dispensing refreshments of sandwiches, pop and ice cream. Half of the profits go to the convention and the other half is to be turned over to the Orange county boy scout headquarters.

Seventeen boys responded on opening day to the call for pages and guides at the convention. Their names follow: Boy Scouts from troop No. 23 are Bill Beisely, Frank Mansur, Chester Cook, Jack McFadden, Fred Glenn, Robert Wade; from Troop No. 30, Ralph Kennedy and Kaiyoshi Higashi; from the American Legion troop No. 28, Albert Copeland, Richard Woodburn and Dale Bose; from troop No. 54 of Orange, Arthur Reed, Ernest Thatcher, Edwin Thompson, Estel Coppoch, Chancey Drake, and Charles Reed.

HIGHLIGHTS OF C. E. CONVENTION CAUGHT BY CAMERA

Some of the color of the state Christian Endeavor conference as seen through the eye of the camera is reproduced here. Upper left—The Rev. E. L. Reiner, pastor of the Waveland avenue Congregational Church, Chicago, declares with emphasis that the youth of today is as good as in any ago. Upper center—The San Luis Obispo caravan of first flag winners was furnished police escort to Santa Ana. Upper right—Howard Brown, state field secretary of Glendale, the "business manager" of the California Christian Endeavor union. Lower left—The delegate badge is being pinned on Paul Brown, Pacific coast secretary by Miss Dorothy Hoover, one of the pretty girls of the San Luis Obispo delegation. Lower center—Jack McFadden, of Santa Ana troop 23, is one of the courteous Boy Scout guides at the convention. Lower right—Miss Ruth Langin, of Fortuna, Humboldt county, came the greatest distance to attend the opening day of the conference of any of the delegates.

PRAISE POLICE FOR COURTESY TO DELEGATES

Praised for the manner in which police officers of Santa Ana are acceding to the request of their chief, L. C. Rodgers, that they extend every possible courtesy to the delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention was being verbally remarked upon by delegates today.

The Rev. G. E. Atkinson, pastoral councilor of the Stanislaus-Merced counties Christian Endeavor union, and pastor of the Congregational church of Ceres, who has attended 10 conventions of the state societies, stated that never at any of the previous conventions have police officers been so exceedingly polite and free in their expressions of good will.

That the badge worn by the Christian Endeavor delegates is a token sign to the police officers appears certain as all recognized the minister as a Christian Endeavorer.

"This is no reflection on the police of other cities where the convention has been held," stated the Rev. Mr. Atkinson. "I have never found courtesy lacking when I wanted it, but Santa Ana's police officers are the first to personally introduce themselves and extend their services to me unsolicited."

SAYS C. E. SOCIETY IS MEETING PLACE

Questions ranging from, "Is it right to use the church basement for dancing?" to the appearance of the Diety, were answered by the Rev. Paul Brown of Glendale at the meeting which was held at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday morning at 11:15, this meeting being one of the general sessions of the California Christian Endeavor Fortieth State convention.

Robert Mackay, adult alumni superintendent, presided at the meeting. In the enthusiastic song service Harold Cross was the song leader with Miss Ruth Rowlands as the pianist. The opening prayer was made by Miss Marianna Bohna.

The questions read by Mr. Brown were indicative of the deep interest of those gathered, in the work of Christian Endeavor societies. Questions asked from the floor were answered at length and the relations between the Sunday school and the Christian Endeavor and the relations between the church and the young people were discussed.

One of the questions asked was, "Is the Christian Endeavor society a matrimonial bureau?" Brown in answering this inquiry said that it emphatically is not, but, he added it is the one society for young people where the boys and girls are brought together to work in the same cause rather than being separated as they are in nearly all other organizations. Brown said he could think of no better place where boys and girls could get acquainted and that at one time he had heard a minister say if his son wanted to get married he knew of no place where he would rather he would meet his wife than at a Christian Endeavor meeting.

YOUNG VOICES FEATURED IN SONG SERVICE

Inspiring, fresh young voices joined in the song service that preceded the talk by the Rev. G. A. Briegler, D. D. of the St. Paul's Presbyterian church of Los Angeles, at the Spurgeon Memorial church yesterday. This talk is the first of three that are to be given on "Christian Endeavor as revealed in the Phillipians," by this pastor well known throughout the Southland. Dr. Briegler was the leader in the fight for motion picture censorship in Los Angeles in 1922.

Dr. Briegler began his work in Christian Endeavor, when at the age of 16, he was elected president of the largest Christian Endeavor society in Brooklyn, N. Y.

In his talk the pastor assailed some of the means used by some churches to draw people to them. "Some churches," he said, "advertise pep, piety, music and perseverance but few advertise them in the language of Paul as 'a place where prayer is wont to be made.' I saw a church not long ago where a sign on the outside advertised as an attraction, 'a roaring comedy in four acts.' "

The speaker earnestly urged that prayer be the foundation of the Christian Endeavor. He described the normal child as a bundle of 99 nerves to wiggle by and one nerve to sit still by. Dr. Briegler's next talk continuing the subject will be Friday morning at the same church.

LOUD SPEAKER USED IN AMPHITHEATER

Sessions of the Christian Endeavor convention now being held in Santa Ana are open to the townspeople, it was announced today by H. P. Rankin, chairman of the convention committee. The admission to the meetings will not be restricted to the registered delegates.

However, Santa Ana citizens were being urged by Rankin to pay their registration fees to the convention in order to help with the finances. The registration fees are alloted to the local committee in the convention budget.

With the Santa Ana residents, the convention registration is expected to reach the 3000 mark.

An appeal was made by the Santa Ana convention committee for the support of the conferences, especially in attending the evening sessions in the amphitheater at the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building where accommodations are provided for seating approximately 3000 people. A loud speaker broadcasts the voice of the speaker over the auditorium.

A large audience was present for the opening session last night. The Sunday night assemblage is expected to be the largest. For the closing service Sunday night, the auditorium will be taxed to capacity, it is expected.

PRESIDENT AN AUTHORITY ON YOUNG PEOPLE

When Glen D. Wight, state president of the California Christian Endeavor Union speaks about the young people of today, he speaks with authority gained by his constant contact with young people for Mr. Wight is the superintendent of the city schools of Corona.

"Considering the temptations of the age, I think it is remarkable how well the boys and girls of today are doing," said Mr. Wight. "An automobile will take them away from their parents, a great distance in a short time, but few of them are taking advantage of this fact. Most of the talk that is heard about the modern youth with a flask on his hip, is just talk, talk started in many cases by the youths themselves. I had a case of this sort in school. On a thorough investigation it was found that the boys who had been laying claims to the distinction of carrying pocket flasks had never possessed them and had just been indulging in talk.

"David Starr Jordan said recently when I asked him if athletics were not being carried too far in colleges, that athletics took the place of drinking in colleges and were a remedy for it.

"The young people represented in this convention are above the average group of young people because they are church-going young people.

"The influence of motion pictures on young people? Well, there are good and bad pictures, and the remedy for the bad ones lies with the public in staying away from them.

"Sinclair Lewis' new book, "Elmer Gantry?' I'd rather not be quoted. I don't care to talk about it." and Mr. Wight's friendly understanding smile faded at the thought of the latest work of the satirical Lewis.

JUNIORS LISTEN TO PLEASING ADDRESS

Mrs. Mary Sterritt of Fullerton delivered a pleasing address before the Christian Endeavor juniors who met at the First Christian church yesterday morning for their 11 o'clock meeting.

Mrs. Sterritt outlined briefly the work accomplished by the union and told of what she considered the most important accomplishments during the last year. She noted that the belonging to the Christian Endeavor societies gave children a place to go "which is good,' she said, "as nowadays children seem to require a place to go to where they can meet other children and discuss with them questions of interest to themselves."

Following Mrs. Sterritt's address the meeting was turned over to Miss Mary Brown, state junior superintendent, of Corona who read reports from a number of societies which were unable to send delegates to the convention. Representatives of various towns and cities also reported on the year's work accomplished in their societies.

PRESBYTERIANS AT CONVENTION RALLY

A denominational rally was held by the First Presbyterian delegations attending the Christian Endeavor conference last night when a banquet was served in the dining room of the church. More than 100 were present for the event.

The program was presided over by Thomas Holden.

Several of the conference leaders were Presbyterians, it was discovered. Among those who talked were Paul Brown, Pacific coast secretary; Howard Brown, California field secretary; and Carl White, state officer. The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, welcomed the delegations.

STATE SOCIAL OFFICER LEADS TWO MEETINGS

Mrs. Chester A. Rudy Puts Stress on How to Keep Party Active All Time

Lessons in salesmanship, advertising, social correspondence, entertaining and other activities which hosts and hostesses must be acquainted with, were told the social chairmen of the various Christian Endeavor societies throughout the state this morning in continuation of yesterday's discussion of methods and manners of conducting successful socials. Mrs. Chester A. Rudy, state social superintendent, conducted the two meetings.

Special emphasis was laid on keeping the party active all the time through interesting and unusual stunts. Lighting effects and advertising were given as two of the foremost influences over the success or failure of Christian Endeavor parties. Lights should be displayed outside the place where the party is being held so that there will be no confusion in the place, said Mrs. Rudy. Subdued effects and fading and gradual strengthening of the lights, and colored lights, were also mentioned as being good interest creators.

In publicity, newspaper mention was given high credit as a means of obtaining a place before the public. Brevity with the best in quality was stated as being highly desireable. Two objects which advertising must accomplish to be successful, are the advertising of the church rather than self, and the deliverance of the goods as advertised without fail. The social to be a success must be built around a single idea so that it can be given a name and thus stand out from ordinary affairs, was one point developed in the course of the class.

Many other points were touched upon and many ideas exchanged so that the various social chairmen attending the convention would carry back to their own organizations many new ideas which will help in creating a new spirit in their organizations.

CONCLAVE POSTMAN IS BUSIEST OF MEN

The great national game of "now you ask one" does not interest Faris Edgar, chairman of the post office and information committee of the Christian Endeavor convention.

All sorts of questions, foolish, and intelligent, are popped at him throughout the day until he feels as if he were a walking encyclopedia. He has a booth in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building where the headquarters of the convention is located. Miss Dorothy Fehlman and Ralph Greer are assisting him at the booth.

"When does the special train from Ventura arrive?"

To answer that question, the depot was called but the agent didn't know that a special train was coming.

"Can you tell me when this or that caravan will arrive?"

No, they didn't telephone ahead to let us know when they would enter the city. Consequently the mayor won't be able to be at the city gates to turn the key of the city over to the invading caravans.

Ho, hum, who is Balboa, a Spanish explorer?

And so on.

Edgar says that for the most part the questions asked him are intelligent, taking into consideration the fact that those at the information booth do not know all.

The mail is handled at the booth. Most of the replies sent back home yesterday were postal cards simply announcing their safe arrival. Today the first of letters were being mailed out for "the folks back home."

QUESTION HOU IS CONDUCTE BY CHICAGOA

Scintillating with wit and hor was the question hour get together period conducted the Rev. E. L. Reiner of Chic in the Baptist church yester morning before an auditori crowded with delegates to Fortieth annual Christian deavor convention. The Rev. Reiner revealed a humorous that went far to carry home various truths and facts which developed in the course of questioning and the explanati thereof.

The Rev. Mr. Reiner, in an troductory talk stressed the that youth is the same today it was 20 years ago and as it even more years ago. That it nonsense for people of today believe that youth cannot be to Christ, was the assertion of speaker.

The principal trouble is t parents and teachers wake up late and find the youth gro up, he said.

Questions relative to the c duct of the government of state organization of Christ Endeavor and the qualfications persons who are Christians, Christian Endeavorers, formed basis of the remainder of hour's discussion. Many of delegates took part by answer the questions and advancing t ories of their own on various s jects included in the list.

ENDEAVORERS PREPARE FOR AUTO PARADE

Approximately 250 Cars To Be in Procession on Saturday Afternoon

Odd moments between sessions of the Christian Endeavor convention were being utilized today by the delegates to work on the show cars to be entered by each county group in the huge automobile parade tomorrow afternoon. Special plans are being taken on the show cars because of the fact that a large cup is to be awarded to the county union whose show car is judged as being the best decorated in the parade, stated Charles E. Culver, superintendent of the parade.

The county delegations will enter every auto available in their representation besides the show car. Each car is expected to be decorated. Approximately 250 cars are expected to form on Broadway at 1 p. m. Headed by the state officers and speakers at the convention, the parade will start from in front of St. Ann's Inn at 2 o'clock sharp.

The cars will turn on Sixth street to the west. At Flower street, the parade will turn down to Fourth street. On Fourth street, the line of march of the parade will continue to Tustin avenue where the parade will turn south toward Balboa. At the peninsula of Balboa, the cars will be parked in the same order as they proceed to the beach. The occupants will disembark and enjoy a picnic lunch and beach sports during the afternoon.

Later in the afternoon, the parade will return to Santa Ana for the evening sessions of the convention.

Formation points for the various delegations were fixed for the first 10 counties by their arrival at the goals set in the pre-registration campaign. San Luis Obispo county, whose delegation achieved recognition Wednesday evening when it arrived en masse in 25 automobiles escorted by motor police, won first in the parade by having reached its goal ahead of any county in the state.

It is expected that San Diego county, winners of second place in the parade, will duplicate the number of cars entered by San Luis Obispo county with another 25. Santa Barbara county, the third place holders, will enter five cars. Contra Costa, fourth place bidders, will have three cars in the parade. San Francisco county is scheduled to have 10 cars in its place as fifth in line. Kern county delegates will ride in five cars in sixth place. Yolo county Endeavorers who won seventh place will have two cars. Santa Cruz county, winners of eighth place, has entered four cars. Riverside county, whose delegates wil be in ninth place, will be represented by 20 cars. San Joaquin county, tenth place winner, will have 10 cars in the parade. The combined county union of Stanislaus-Merced counties will enter five cars in eleventh place.

Other counties sending delegations will enter the number of cars credited as follows in the order named: The 15 districts making up Los Angeles county with a total of 60 cars; Imperial county, four cars; Alameda county, five cars; Sonoma-Butte-Napa counties, three cars; Santa Clara county, five cars; Humboldt county, one car; San Bernardino county, seven cars; Sacramento county, five cars; Marin county, two cars; Tulare county, three cars; Kings county, six cars; Fresno-Madera counties, seven cars; Placer county, one car; Ventura county, five cars; Orange county, at least 40 cars.

Because as acting as hosts to the convention, the societies of Orange county cannot be expected to enter as large a delegation as they would otherwise, according to Culver. The local county representatives were given the last place in line because of the necessity for freedom in movement without disturbance of the remainder of the parade.

The show cars of each county will be judged as they pass St. Ann's Inn, by a committee of three judges, as yet unnamed. Flags of honor for the first ten counties in line will be awarded at the general meeting on the Y. M. C. A. tennis courts this evening. The flags are awarded in recognition of the various counties receiving them in getting their convention quota in the pre-convention campaign.

SUMMER BIBLE STUDENTS JOIN JUNIOR UNION

Children who are at present attending various summer Bible schools in Santa Ana joined with the junior Christian Endeavorers in attending the Bible study hour at the First Christian church yesterday.

The subject for discussion was "Jesus Teaching About Childhood and Youth" and was led by the Rev. John F. Cowan of San Diego. The Rev. Mr. Cowan presented his subject in a straightforward and simple manner which appealed to his youthful audience.

His clevely put questions aided in bringing out the opinions of the children on the points he wished to make. The Rev. Mr. Cowan established Jesus's connection with children by telling of Jesus's own brothers, "with whom he undoubtedly played as a child" and later by recalling instances of Jesus's healing of little children.

Mr. Cowan showed the children how mothers were "lifted up" by Jesus, thus giving them a picture of what Christianity has accomplished for women.

Preceding Mr. Cowan's address several songs were sung by the children with Miss Anita Cochran at the piano. Miss Madeline Ripley was leader of the class.

PASTOR LAUDS DELEGATES TO C. E. CONCLAVE

The conduct of Elmer Gantry, the central figure of the book of that name by Sinclair Lewis, doesn't worry the Rev. E. L. Reiner, pastor of the Waveland Avenue Congregational church, Chicago, who is one of the prominent figures in the State Christian Endeavor convention.

"There are Elmer Gantrys in every profession," said the Rev. Reiner. There are Elmer Gantrys in the newspaper business too, but you don't judge your profession by them, do you?" he inquired, and then answered the question:

"Of course you don't. Well neither do the preachers judge their profession by the few Elmer Gantrys that may be in it, and we don't think the people judge the preaching business by isolated cases of Elmer Gantryism."

The Rev. Reiner said he had never seen a more intelligent or more spiritual group of young people than the California Christian Endeavorers.

"Everyone seems filled with the spirit of Christian Endeavor work. It is an inspiration to the adult workers to know that such an attitude is increasing in the minds of the young people. It shows that what we are working for is coming about, that where the seed is planted properly the abundant harvest is sure to result."

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 24.—Charles Ford was unable to pay a 70-cent city tax and was sent to jail. Five months later he was still there. But several persons heard of his plight, sent contributions to pay the tax and the court costs, which were about $25.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

The youngest of the Intermediate delegates registered at the Y. M. C. A. is Ardeen Weaver, a brown eyed 12-year-old high school boy, of Atascadera, who arrived Wednesday, with the San Luis caravan. Young Weaver's attendance at high school wins him the right to be an Intermediate rather than a Junior.

It must have taken "considerable efficiency" to have arranged the convention program so that all the titles and addresses "Conformed Effectively" in beginning with "C" and "E". A few of the titles are "Concise Expression," "Considerable Enlightenment," "Consume Eats" and "Committee Enterprise."

An attentive attendant at the convention meetings is Mrs. J. B. Brown, of Glendale. Mrs. Brown is a delegate from Glendale and is 72 years old. She is affectionely called, "Mother Brown" and is the mother of the Rev. Paul C. Brown, Pacific coast secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor and Howard L. Brown, field secretary for California. Mrs. Brown had the honor to name "Victory Circle" at Mount Herman.

Two of the boys from the San Luis Opisbo delegation succumbed to the lure of mouth organs displayed in a Santa Ana shop window and between sessions at the headquarters playing happily and very, very softly, "Home Sweet Home."

Caps and hats of vivid hues distinguish a number of the delegates. Those from Santa Barbara wear caps of green and white, many from Los Angeles chapeaux of purple and white, Glendale young people are wearing huge sombreros in purple and gold, San Diegans have crepe paper caps in gold, Riverside purple bands with the name of their town in gold and San Luis Obispo delegates are crowned with skull caps of maroon and white.

The pepper tree under which the executive committee outdoor headquarters have been established, has come in for a great deal of humor on the part of those who write announcements. The tree has been called everything from a banana tree to a eucalyptus tree, but has not yet been called an apple tree.

The Browns are quite conspicuous in this Christian Endeavor convention. Paul C. Brown is the Pacific coast secretary for the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Howard L. Brown is field secretary of the California Christian Endeavor union. Miss Mary G. Brown is superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavorers. Both of the male Browns are past state presidents.

A table in the Y. M. C. A. building is covered with Christian Endeavor society supplies and literary helps.

Tracts entitled "Burning Billions" were distributed to the delegates last night through the courtesy of N. H. Leonard, 620 North Ross street, Santa Ana. "A match is a tiny thing. A cigarette is not large. But bring the two into contact, and tremendous results follow," said one paragraph of the tract.

A delegate smoking a cigarette is yet to be discovered at the convention, a leader said.

A good attendance has been recorded at the morning quiet hour services at the respective churches. "Jesus Teaching About Courage" will be the quiet hour Bible theme Saturday morning at the Christian church, Rev. John F. Cowan in charge.

FITTS UNABLE TO COME HERE FOR ADDRESS

Delegates to the state Christian Endeavor convention and townspeople, gathered last night at the Y. M. C. A. outdoor auditorium were taken on a trip through the Holy Land by Dr. John McNaughter, who substituted for Lieutenant Governor Buron Fitts. Fitts' secretary telegraphed that the lieutenant governor had been ordered to bed for treatment of wounds received in France during the World war.

Taking for his subject, "With Jesus in the Holy Land," the Pittsburgh pastor traced, in a very beautiful way, the life of Jesus from the manger to the cross. He spoke intimately of Nazareth, Hebron, Bethlehem, Memphis, Jerico, Jerusalem, Capurnium, the Mount of Olives and many other spots made holy by the footsteps or words of the Master.

Dr. McNaugher told of the effort he had to expend in order to discover a sacred inscription on the walls of a Mohammedan mosque in Damascus. Dr. McNaugher said he knew it was there but his guide was unable to find it. An American woman missionary took him to it, but he was forced to borrow a high ladder before he could see it all.

The sight of an American evidently making an effort to scale the walls of the second largest mosque in the Mohammedan world, second only to Mecca, was enough to attract a large crowd. But Dr. McNaugher found it just as it had been written sometime before 600 A. D.

Bernice Hampton, earlier in the evening, had led a number of her fellow Junior Christian Endeavor members in Bible readings concerning the work. The Y. M. C. A. male chorus, under the direction of Ralph C. Smedley, sang three numbers.

Charles Brown, field secretary, made announcements, as did also Charles Culver, of Los Angeles, past state president.

Rev. E. T. Nichols of Santa Ana, led in the devotional services. Brown urged Santa Ana people to register and help finance the convention.

COMBINES TAKE JOBS OF 25,000 GRAIN WORKERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 24.—Combines—squat, whirring machines that creep slowly across the limitless acres of waving wheat—will this summer do the work of 25,000 harvest hands, hitherto imported each year from the east and north.

Therefore this season fewer college boys will earn money to pay for next year's schooling by shocking grain behind clanking binders or pitching grain from the header into mammoth threshers and fewer thousands of men will converge in Kansas, to spread over the country like locusts to live off the harvest.

By harvest time this year there will be in Kansas alone more than 12,000 combines, which will be able to harvest six million acres of wheat without the help of harvest hands. Already popular with owners of large wheat acreages, they are now being purchased by owners of smaller tracts.

Even in Missouri where the binder has heretofore sufficed, small combines with nine-foot cuts are being distributed in large numbers.

The large combine, drawn by a tractor, cuts a 16-foot swath, threshes and sacks the grain and spreads the straw in its wake, all in one operation. One man drives the tractor, another runs the combine, and a third man hauls the sacked grain to the elevator in a truck. By this system the farmer can harvest 50 to 75 acres a day against 20 acres a day under the old system when fed and provided with lodgings.

Last year, although the coming of the combine was recognized by the Kansas College of Agriculture, calls for hired help were sent out which provided several thousand more men than were needed. As an aftermath, the agriculture department made a survey in the state and found that nearly 9000 combines were used in the harvest in 1926.

Since that time, a survey indicates, at least half that number will be added before the harvesting season this year. Factories are rushing their output on reports from salesmen that combine sales this spring will be greater than ever before. Six carloads of combines were unloaded in one day recently at Salina, Kan., in the wheat belt.

BUDAPEST, June 24.—Bridge has aroused such a storm of interest and rivalry among women here that they are barred from card clubs by an official decree. The decree was prompted by a free-for-all fight in which two prominent women exchanged blows over an error in their score.

Legal Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 816

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SANTA ANA ADOPTING UNIFORM SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF PORTLAND CEMENT CONCRETE CURBS, GUTTERS AND SIDEWALKS.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Santa Ana do ordain as follows:

Section 1. That the following shall be the specifications for the construction of Portland cement concrete curbs, gutters and sidewalks in the City of Santa Ana unless otherwise specified by resolution or ordinance for a particular street or alley in said City.

PART I.
GRADING CONSTRUCTION

Section 1. Grading Area.

Unless specified by plan or ordinance the portion of the street or alley to be graded shall be as follows:

(a) FOR CURBS AND GUTTERS. When curbs or gutters or both are to be constructed, the area to be occupied by the curb or gutter or both shall be brought to a subgrade, and, unless otherwise specified, the area between the curb line and the sidewalk shall be graded flush with the tops of the curb and sidewalk. Where no sidewalk exists the area between the curb line and the property line shall be graded flush with the top of the curb and with a rise of one-fourth (¼) inch per foot to the property line.

(b) FOR SIDEWALKS. When sidewalks are to be constructed the area to be occupied by the sidewalk shall be brought to a subgrade and, unless otherwise specified, the remaining area between the curb lines and property lines shall be graded flush with the sidewalks and the tops of the curbs, or flush with the surface of the sidewalk when there is no curb.

Section 2. Rough Grading.

Rough grading shall include all filling and removal of excess earth, stone, trees, old pavements, sidewalks, curbs, gutters, driveways and any other structures or objectionable material found within the limits of the improvements to be made. Any of the above mentioned objects or material shall be removed whether or not it is within the limits of the improvements, when so noted on the plans.

Plowing or excavating sound material shall be done to a depth not greater than six (6) inches below the subgrade elevation.

Excavated material not required for fills shall be removed from the street as soon as excavated.

(a) FILLING. The space over which fills are to be made shall first be cleared of all brush, timber, trash or debris. All filling shall be done with good sound earth, sand or gravel, and no oil cake or other lumpy material, or material of a perishable, spongy, or otherwise improper nature shall be used in filling.

Fills shall be made in layers not to exceed four (4) inches in depth before tamping each layer, after being leveled off shall be thoroughly dampened and while moist shall be tamped until hard and unyielding.

(b) MUD AND SOFT MATERIAL. When mud or other soft or spongy material is encountered, it shall be removed and the space filled with gravel or good earth, which shall be placed in layers as hereinbefore set forth for fills, and thoroughly tamped. The contractor will not be required in such cases to excavate mud or other soft or spongy material to a depth greater than two (2) feet below grade.

SECTION 3. SUBGRADE.

After the rough grading has been completed, as specified hereinbefore, the foundation shall be brought to subgrade and tamped or rolled until solid. Where the subgrade is composed of adobe or other swelling soil, the upper two (2) inches shall be removed and replaced with a sand cushion unless otherwise specified. Where the curb line does not conform to existing curbs and gutters, or new curbs are to be built, the existing curbs and gutters shall be removed, unless otherwise specified, and the space filled in with sound earth. All subgrade for sidewalks and gutters shall be determined by a guage extending to the full depth of the concrete, and supported by side strips set to a grade. Subgrading for curb or placing of sand cushion on swelling soil shall be done before curb forms have been set.

SECTION 4. BACKFILLING.

All material removed to facilitate construction shall be replaced to grade.

SECTION 5. SUPERINTENDENT OF STREETS TO CHECK GRADING.

The contractor shall notify the Superintendent of Streets when a block or section has been brought to subgrade, whereupon the latter will check the elevation and condition of the same. If the work is found to be in accordance with the specifications and grade given, the Contractor shall proceed as hereinafter specified.

PART II.
MATERIALS

Section 1. Portland Cement.

(a) SPECIFICATIONS AND TESTS. All Portland Cement shall meet the requirements of the Standard Specifications and Tests for Portland Cement, Serial Designation C 9-21, approved March 31, 1922, as "American Standard", by the American Engineering Standards Committee.

(b) PACKAGES, MARKING AND STORAGE. The cement shall be delivered in suitable bags or barrels with the brand and name of the manufacturer plainly marked thereon. A bag of cement shall contain ninety-four (94) pounds net, and will be considered equivalent to one (1) cubic foot. A barrel shall contain three hundred seventy-six (376) pounds net, and will be considered as equivalent to four (4) cubic feet. The cement shall be stored in such a manner as to permit easy access for proper inspection and identification of each shipment and in a suitable weather-tight building which will protect the cement from dampness.

(c) INSPECTION. Every facility shall be provided the Superintendent of Streets for careful sampling and inspection at either the mill or at the site of the work, as may be specified by him. When a seven (7) day test is required by the Superintendent of Streets at least ten (10) days from the time of sampling shall be allowed for the completion of the test, and at least thirty-one (31) days shall be allowed for the completion of the twenty-eight (28) day test. The cement shall be tested in accordance with the methods hereinafter prescribed. The Twenty-eight (28) day test shall be waived only when specifically ordered.

(d) REJECTION. The cement may be rejected if it fails to meet any of the requirements of these specifications.

Cement shall not be rejected on account of failure to meet the fineness requirements if, upon retest after drying at one hundred (100) degrees Centigrade for one hour, it meets this requirement.

Cement failing to meet the test for soundness in steam may be accepted if it passes a retest using a new sample at any time within twenty-eight (28) days thereafter.

Packages varying more than five (5) percent from the specified weight may be rejected; and if the average weight of packages in any shipment, as shown by weighing fifty (50) packages taken at random, is less than that specified, the entire shipment may be rejected.

Section 2. Sand.

All sand shall be clean, hard, durable, uncoated stone particles free from organic matter and lumps of clay.

(a) CONCRETE SAND. Sand for all cement and concrete work shall contain not more than three (3) per cent, be weight, of mica; not more than four (4) per cent by weight, removable by the elutriation test; not more than six (6) per cent, by weight, shall pass a siev having one hundred (100) Meshes per linear inch; not less than ninety-five (95) per cent, by weight, shall pass a screen having four (4) meshes per linear inch; at least fifty (50) per cent but not more than eighty-five (85) per cent, by weight, shall be retained on a sieve having (30) meshes per linear inch.

When the sand is mixed with Portland Cement in the proportion of one (1) part of cement to three (3) parts of sand by weight according to the standard methods of making 1:3 mortar briquettes, the resulting briquettes at the ages of both seven (7) and twenty-eight (28) days, when compared with briquettes mixed at the same time in the same proportions and consistently using the same cement, but with Standard Ottawa Testing Sand shall show a tensile strength ratio of one hundred (100) per cent. Sand showing a tensile strength of less than one hundred (100) per cent, but not less than eighty-five (85) per cent, will be accepted for use subject to the use of additional cement.

The additional proportion of cement required shall be determined by laboratory tests and shall be the percentage required to increase the strength ratio to one hundred (100) per cent.

In the absence of the above laboratory tests, and at the option of the Superintendent of Streets only, a field test may be made as follows:

Fill an ordinary glass fruit jar two-thirds (2-3) or three-fourths (¾) full of the sample of sand, then add sufficient water to thoroughly wash the sand by vigorous shaking the shaking to be done for three (3) minutes, and by holding the jar in a vertical position after which it shall be allowed to settle. The indicated sediment appearing on the top of the well defined minute grains of sand shall not measure more than ten (10) per cent of the total after settling for one (1) hour, nor more than five (5) per cent after settling for a period of twenty-four (24) hours.

(c) CUSHION SAND. Sand for cushion under concrete work on adobe and other swelling soils, shall contain not more than ten (10) per cent by weight, of clay and silt and shall all pass a screen having one-half (½) inch round openings.

Section 3. Broken Stone or Gravel.

(a) BROKEN STONE. Broken stone shall be quarried rock, free from loam, clay and organic matter, and shall have a specific gravity of not less than two and sixty-five hundredths (2.65). It shall be uniform in quality and shall contain not more than five (5) per cent, by weight, of pieces having rounded surfaces.

(b) GRAVEL. Gravel shall consist of clean, water-worn pebbles, crushed boulders, or both, and shall be free from organic matter, shale, disintegrated, or soft stone, clay, or other deleterious substance.

(c) CLASSIFICATION. The maximum length of any one particle of gravel or broken stone passing a screen or ring, shall not be greater than fifty (50) per cent in excess of the maximum dimension specified as follows:

Not more than five (5) per cent by weight, of flat, thin, or elongated pieces or particles of stone, will be permitted in any class or size of broken stone or gravel. Pieces or particles of stone whose greatest thickness does not equal or exceed twenty (20) per cent of its greatest length will be considered as flat, thin or elongated.

The gravel, broken stone or both shall consist of sizes ranging from a minimum of not more than five (5) per cent by weight, passing a screen having one-fourth (¼) inch round openings to a maximum size that shall pass a screen having two (2) inch round openings, and shall contain sizes of which not more than ninety-five (95) per cent by weight, will pass a screen having one and one-half (1½) inch round openings and not less than twenty-five (25) per cent or more than sixty (60) per cent, by weight, will pass a screen having three-fourths (¾) inch round openings.

Section 4. Mixing Water.

The water used in mixing all concrete and mortar shall be reasonably free from alkali, silt or other impurities, and in no case shall the amount of solids exceed three (3) grams per litre. Where alkali predominates in the solid matter, the solids shall not exceed one and one-half (1½) grams per litre.

Section 5. Joints and Fillers.

Expansion joints shall be constructed at locations hereinafter specified or when shown or otherwise indicated on the plans.

The filler for the expansion joints shall consist of prepared strips of bitumen, or fibre matrix and bitumen, or similar material of approved quality, and shall be one-half (½) inch in thickness and the width shall be equal to the thickness of the pavement.

The joint filler shall be placed in a vertical position and at right angles to the center line of the walk. On completion of the sidewalk the lower edge of the filler shall be in contact with the subgrade for its entire length. The joint filler shall be supported by a well staked steel or wooden bulkhead or header of sufficient strength to hold the same in a vertical position as well as in a straight line until the concrete has been placed and tamped, after which the bulkhead or header shall be removed and the space carefully filled with additional concrete and thoroughly tamped.

The contractor shall use extreme care in the placing of expansion joint fillers to prevent damaging them during the placing, tamping, and finishing of the concrete.

Before the walk is opened to traffic, all expansion joint fillers shall be trimmed flush with the surface of the walk.

PART III.
CONCRETE AND MORTAR

Section 1. Concrete Proportions.

All concrete shall be mixed in the proportions of one (1) bag of Portland cement to not more than two (2) cubic feet of concrete sand, to not more than four (4) cubic feet of either crushed stone or gravel or both, and in no case shall the volume of the fine aggregate be less than one-half (½) the volume of the coarse aggregate.

The voids in the concrete shall be completely filled with mortar. If voids appear this condition shall be remedied by reducing the proportion of coarse aggregate and not by increasing the amount of fine aggregate.

The amount of mixing water used shall be the least quantity that will produce a workable mix.

A cubic yard of concrete in place shall contain not less than six (6) bags of Portland Cement.

Section 2. Mixing Concrete.

The concrete shall be mixed either by machine or by hand as hereinafter specified:

(a) MACHINE MIXING. If a machine mixer is used, the Contractor shall mix without spilling, such quantity of aggregates as will be within the capacity of the mixer, and in no case shall the quantity be such as to require the splitting of a sack of cement.

The mixer drum shall have a speed of not less than thirteen (13) revolutions, nor more than twenty (20) revolutions per minute and every batch of concrete shall be mixed in the drum of the mixer not less than sixty (60) seconds before any portion of the batch is discharged. The drum shall not be charged while the mixer is discharging.

(b) HAND MIXING. Where concrete is mixed by hand, one (1) box of rock shall be placed on a tight platform, not less than ten (10) feet wide and twelve (12) feet long. Upon the rock shall be placed one (1) box of sand and upon this shall be placed the requisite number sacks of cement. The inspector shall be given the opportunity to check the number of sacks of cement on each batch before the sacks are opened.

The mass shall then be turned with shovels two (2) times dry and two (2) times wet, not including shoveling into wheelbarrows. The requisite amount of water shall be supplied in a spray during the wet turns.

(c) REMIXING CONCRETE. No concrete shall be used which has partially set and no concrete shall be retempered or remixed.

Section 3. Finish Mortar Proportions.

The mortar shall consist of one (1) part of Portland Cement to one and one-half (1½) parts of concrete sand, as hereinbefore specified, except that the sand must all pass a one-forth (¼) inch screen. Unless otherwise specified, lamp black shall be used for coloring in the proportion of one-fourth pound to each sack of cement used.

Section 4. Mixing Finish Mortar.

The mortar shall be mixed in a concrete mixer in the manner specified for concrete or in a water-tight mixing box. When a mixing box is used, the box shall be first filled approximately one-half (½) full of sand, the volume of which has been previously determined with a one (1) cubic foot measuring box. The sand shall be rodded off with a guage which shall be used for guaging each subsequent batch. The requisite number of sacks of cement shall then be added. The inspector shall be given an opportunity to check the number of sacks of cement used in each batch. The material shall then be dry mixed by turning at least three (3) times with a mortar hoe. Sufficient water shall be added and mixing continued until the batch is uniform in color and consistency. The mortar must be used immediately after mixing and no retempering will be permitted.

PART IV.
CURB, GUTTER AND SIDEWALK CONCTRUCTION

SECTION 1. Cement Curb Construction.

Cement curb shall be placed upon

You have heard of straws being driven through mirrors by cyclones. This picture illustrates the wonderful effect that motion has on matter. A candle, if pressed against a wooden board, would be pressed out of shape. But fired from a gun so it travels at great speed the candle will go through the wood without itself being injured.

A stream of water may be forced from a hose under such tremendous pressure that if it were struck by an iron bar it would bend or break the bar.

Liquid air is colder than ice and looks like water. If we put a kettle of liquid air on a block of ice, it boils.

This egg has been boiled in liquid air and it cannot be broken. Liquid air is very much colder than anything about it. Heat pours into it from the outside and as this happens the liquid air turns into ordinary gaseous air again. The consequences of drinking liquid air are too terrible to imagine. (To Be Continued)

The king then said, "All right, t's stop. The birds are all about drop. That is the way I call em. They obey me very fine." he pelicans then came down low. heir moves presented quite a ow. At first they'd fly haphazrd and then form in one long ne.

BEAUTY CHATS

GRACE

Grace is a matter of gesture and position. It is most important, for every woman can be graceful if she will try; and no matter how ugly she may be otherwise, there will always be some to think her beautiful for her graceful lines, and many to admire her.

Therefore cultivate grace! Now, what is it?—for to cultivate anything you must know something of it. Some people are graceful and some are not,—and why? Well, the nearest anyone can come to a definition or an explanation, is to say that grace is the result of absolutely perfect muscular control. Do you remember how you held the steering wheel of your car when you first learned to drive? You clutched it tightly and nervously, and the car responded by going forward awkwardly and jerkily, the whole method of driving was difficult. But once you were used to driving, you held the wheel lightly, turned and swung your car quietly and certainly, drove it steadily and easily,—gracefully. In other words, you were in perfect control of its mechanism.

When you have perfect control of your own physical mechanism, you will be able to handle your own body easily, and therefore gracefully. If many sets of muscles are never used, or not used enough, your walk, your running, your very seated positions, will lack grace, because these unused muscles do not respond to the commands sent out by the brain, or else respond too slowly or not as you really wish them to respond.

This is an imperfect explanation, but our space is limited, and it will do well enough. You must exercise, you must have all your muscles under perfect control.

Marcella H.—Dash cold water over the bust and use light friction from a coarse towel to stimulate the circulation. Deep breathing will be like an exercise for all the muscles of bust and ribs, and that will help to make the muscles firmer..

FOR FISH AND BIRDS

For fish and birds I make this plea,
May they be here long after me,
May those who follow hear the call
Of old Bob White in spring and fall;
And may they share the joy that's mine
When there's a bass upon the line.

I found the world a wondrous place,
A cold wind blowing in my face
Has brought the wild ducks in from sea,
God grant the day shall never be
When youth upon November's shore
Shall see the mallards come no more!

I found the world a garden spot,
God grant the desolating shot
And barbed hook shall not destroy
Some future generation's joy!
Too barren were the earth for words
If gone were all the fish and birds.

Fancy an age that sees no more
The mallards winging into shore;
Fancy a youth with all its dreams
That finds no fish within the streams.
Our world with life is wondrous fair,
God grant we do not strip it bare!

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Women, says a celebrated woman, are trouble makers. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, speaking. She did it right before their faces, too, and not behind their backs. Addressing some woman's convention, Mrs. Catt said:

"Women have caused more irritation among the nations than any other influence which has resulted in history's great wars. In my travels about the world, I have noticed the peculiar tendency of women of all races to repeat, in exaggerated form, statements of men in regard to matters of race hatred and other phases of foreign policy which might make two countries spring at each other's throats."

So the ladies who are not white in color do it, too!

By the way, did you ever hear of a neighborhood quarrel starting because of the men of the family getting mad at something or other? If you did, you're a rarity!

JACK-IN-THE-BOX

The famous mystery box of Joanna Southcott is about to be opened. Years ago Joanna, dying, entrusted this locked box to a friend, making her swear that the box should not be opened except in a national crisis and in the presence of bishops.

Somehow I have a hunch that this Joanna was a practical joker; that even, dying, she tittered at the spectacle of the grave men of the nation assembling themselves in solemnest conclave to open, with prayer, a box wherein may be found words to the effect that "You're stung!" or "Who got fooled?" or something like that. Women may make trouble as Mrs. Catt says, but they have lots of fun, too!

"JAZZ MAD BABIES"

"The jazz-mad baby no longer walks the college campus." So says one Margaret Stone Jameson, honor graduate of Swarthmore in June. Five years ago, girls necked, the lady continues. But no more—at least not with such wim and wigor. Most college girls, she continues, look forward to both marriage and a career outside marriage, but if it came to actual choice, she thinks marriage without career would win. In proof of the modern college girl's return to normalcy, she points with pride to the fact that 50 per cent of them have never cut their hair and that those who have known bobbed tresses are letting them grow.

Until the honor grad threw in that last remark, I was for her. Now I'm inclined to suggest a good course in logic—anything that will free her from the idea that short hair denotes a "jazz-mad baby," and long hair the reverse.

ARTICLES ON 'PARENTHOOD' TO APPEAR IN THE REGISTER

EDITOR'S NOTE — Olive Roberts Barton, whose homely philosophies are well known to The Register's women readers, here begins exclusively in The Register a fifteen-article series on THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF CHILD TRAINING. As a modern mother and a gifted writer Mrs. Barton is eminently qualified to discourse upon one of life's most vital and difficult problems and her sound counsel will be found invaluable by all parents, present or prospective.

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

To be teachers we must first be taught, yet parenthood, the most important craftsmanship in the world, and the very beginning and end of pedagogy, knows almost no apprenticeship. It knows almost no preparation.

By the time parents have brought up a family of children, they have served a long apprenticeship in the best college in the world—experience. But experience is a dear teacher.

Had these parents known twenty years ago what they know now about their children, and the things they have discovered about child training, perhaps they could have saved John from his inferiority complex and the feeling that every one in the world can do things better than he can; or Mary would be less selfish and more considerate of others; or Dorothy would not freeze with fright at a thunderstorm or go into real hysterics in the dark.

The ten commandments of child training are for the parent.

Largely Prohibitive

Like the Commandments of Moses, they are largely prohibitive. John's inferiority complex, Mary's exaggerated ego, and Dorothy's physical fear are results of things the parents did, rather than the things they failed to do. The "thou shalt nots" are more important than the "shalts." Flowers cannot grow in ground sown first to ragweed.

The child's character is formed before he goes to school—indeed by the time he is five years old. He is not past the habit-forming age—children are plastic through young and adolescence. But the man or woman in embyro is there at the end of the fifth year. It can never be wholly changed. The pattern is set.

Maturity's Story

When he reaches maturity the story he tells by his actions will be largely that of his parents, or those who have been in charge of him during the first five years of his life.

We are likely to lay shortcomings at heredity's door. It makes a good alibi. Heredity influence has never yet been accurately measured by mental experts. Some contend that it affects very strongly the child's moral and mental behavior, others, that it is almost negligible. But all concede that early training and environment are prime factors in character building.

Whatever a child is, or becomes, is due almost always, to the handling he has had in his early years.

AUTOISTS TAKE TOLL OF BIRDS AND ANIMALS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 24.—The annual toll of life by automobiles on the highways is tremendous, nor is the reath record confined to human beings. Thousands of domestic animals, livestock, dogs and fowls are run down and killed. To this record of destruction must also be added an immense number of wild birds and animals, killed either accidentally or deliberately by cars.

A member of the American Game Protective Association writing from Pennsylvania says: "If you were to travel over our highways it would surprise you greatly to see the number of rabbits killed each day by careless autoists." The crushed and bloody or festering carcasses of rabbits are a familiar sight along the highways in many parts of the country. In some sections hundreds of ruffed grouse are killed in the same way each season, as these birds are run down while dusting or feeding on the roads.

Reports are not uncommon of deer, and even moose, being struck by cars in the night time and either killed outright or hurt so badly they have to be shot. Low flying birds, such as red-headed woodpeckers, bluebirds, meadow larks and others are often hit in flight and killed. Mourning doves, which are accustomed to feed along the roads, are often victims, as well as smaller birds that resort to the roads to feed or dust.

Much of this destruction of life is unavoidable, but more of it is done heedlessly, and often even deliberately. Some men seem to become imbued with callous disregard for life when at the automobile wheel, and take a fiendish delight in running down any unfortunate animal or bird that may happen to get in their path. One frequently hears such persons relate with glee how they chased a poor rabbit or deer, blinded by the motor headlights, until he "got it."

Such reckless and indiscriminate destruction of life can largely be avoided by care and it would seem that the wild creatures are entitled to consideration to the extent that their lives might be spared when possible.

Southern California Gardens

By RUSSELL S. ADKINSON

Continuing the alphabetical list of shrubs started some time ago, I find the Escallonia group is next in order.

This family of evergreen shrubs should become better known. They are not at all rare and yet we do not find them used enough. There is no dead season for them and once established, will almost take care of themselves.

Rosea

The pink flowering variety known as rosea, is one of the best. It grows quite large and is upright in growth. It requires but one pruning each year to hold it down to a nice compact piece of 3 or 4 feet in height.

The bell shaped pink flowers are borne quite freely upon racemes during the summer. At present they are coming into their own for this season. They offer a fine touch of color to the garden after the abundant dash of spring flowers. For home decorating they will be found useful in some types of bouquets.

One good feature is that the Escallonias are not particular as to location. They thrive in full sun or in practically full shade.

Alba

The alba, or white flowering variety, is a more vigorous grower than rosea. It has a tendency to throw up very strong branches and form small trees unless cut back heavily each year. Because of this vigor, they produce a much heavier bloom than the Pink Escallonia.

Rubra

Another good Escallonia is the red flowering or Rubra. This has the heaviest and darkest foliage. It has a waxy appearance. The growth is quite compact and lower than alba as a rule.

There are numerous other varieties and types of Escallonias, some of which are Montevidensis, Macrantha, Ingrania; the three described are of most importance to us.

Brush Cherry

The Eugenia Hookeri, or Brush Cherry, is greatly admired. It is a tall, fast growing, upright shrub. The foliage is glossy and dark green. New growth gives the plant a ruddy color.

Flowers appear in heavy clusters and are plumy white. These are followed by purplish berries the size of a cherry. During the time that these berries are on the plant, it is very attractive. Often they are in such clusters as to appear like clusters of grapes hanging from the branches.

This fruit is useful for jells. Juices of other fruits are usually added for best results.

The Eugenia may be trained like the boxwood by keeping it trimmed. It will form a dense shrub in any shape you wish. It gives most fruit when allowed to grow into a large spreading shrub.

Myrtifolia

The Eugenia myrtifolia is very much the same as Hookeri except that it is smaller. The foliage and berries are both smaller also.

Myrtifolia, as a general rule, is not as satisfactory as the Hookeri. So many of them do not flourish and therefore give a very ragged appearance.

Eleagnus

There is a very novel group of shrubs known as Eleagnus. They are all large and spreading with a peculiar foliage. The leaves are like a long and narrow oak leaf. The underside of these leaves is of a silvery bronze appearance, while the top surface gives a frosty appearance.

Some varieties have variegated leaves and others are wavy margined. All are rugged and their compactness lends to their advantages for the garden. While they are compact, each individual branch that goes to make up the form is really quite irregular in its growth.

Like the Escallonia, this group is not particular as to location. Some very good specimens are to be found in the very hot dry locations. Others of equal beauty are located in heavily shaded gardens. Their culture is not difficult and while there is no great color value, their appearance is advantageous to any garden.

JACK LOCKWELL'S POLICE DOG — BY GILBERT PATTEN

"He never was loyal to anybody but Malone, his former master," retorted the trooper. "He even hated Malone's partners in crime. But he was valuable to Malone, who used to send him through the back country and woods, with his wide leather collar packed with smuggled dope." "The dog has brains," declared Jack. "He knows Malone's dead. I've heard him howling requiems for Malone."

"Oh, all right!" said Cameron, remounting his horse. "Keep him, but you'll be sorry. What we want, now, is to find Dugan and the girl, and nab Dugan."

"So let us know if you see anything of her," urged Hardy, as the troopers turned to ride away. "I'd be a rotter if I did!" muttered Jack, watching them depart.

Thor frisked around Jack when the boy went into the house. "Dis am no place fo' 'spectable folks, wif ghosts stealin' pies from de kitchen, an' a-walkin' in de empy rooms in de night," complained Mandy. "I hears 'em again las' night." Her words led Jack to investigate. He found a huge bunch of old keys, one of which unlocked a door to the unoccupied portion of the house.

Blauers Play Lumbermen Monday Night

The Santa Ana Lumber company and the F. C. Blauer Grocers, leading teams of the Santa Ana Night Baseball league, will replay their recently undetermined contest at Lincoln field next Monday night, Otto A. Jacobs, president of the local baseball commission, announced today. This will be the feature of a double-header, the Dunton Fords and the First National bank clashing in the other attraction.

The first Lumbermen-Grocer set-to ended in a heated argument as to whether a fly ball, hit with two out and a man on third base, fell safely or was "trapped" by a Blauer outfielder. When the umpire, Al Sanford, refused to render a decision, the commission ordered the affair replayed.

SHYLOCKS WIN FROM FIREMEN IN NIGHT LOOP

A couple of inoffensive-looking electric wires, necessary accoutrements on a night baseball field, played a leading role in the City league sketch at Lincoln park last evening between the First National bank and the Santa Ana Firemen which the Bankers won at 8 to 5.

It is not unusual to have a fly ball, apparently headed for "the well," carom off a wire and fall safely but is is unusual to have four such drives come in contact with the overhead lighting equipment and all of them figure in the scoring.

That's what happened during the course of the Firemen--Shylock joust and both pitchers, Hafer, a rookie who was obtaining his first tryout with the Fire-fight-

RICKARD EXPECTS $2,000,000 IN SUMMER BOXING RECEIPTS

BY JIMMY POWERS

NEW YORK, June 24—Wherever there's gold you'll find a good miner.

A long, long time ago a smart fellow named Snookum Jim made a strike on Bonanza creek out in the Klondike. He had a pal named Tex, who didn't amount to shucks as a panhandler. But Tex opened the biggest gambling house north of 53 and became famed as keeper of the "Northern" saloon.

But deep down in his heart, Tex longed to be a successful miner like his pal, Snookum Jim. He dealt cards, raked in chips and bought whisky in wholesale lots for many a year.

Then one day he made a strike. He mined a nifty little bit of gold out in, approximately enough, Goldfield, Nevada. He promised the Gans-Nelson fight and drew down a lot of pay dirt.

Picks Boxing Dirt

"There's gold in them thar boxing bills," mused Tex, whose last name was Rickard.

This summer, to bring our little yarn up to date, this miner is swinging his pick into the juiciest outdoor season of bouts the boxing world has ever seen.

He will take in, he says, more than $2,000,000 in receipts.

He has certain nose-busters lined up, among whom are Jack Delaney, Mike McTigue, Jim Maloney, Jack Sharkey, Paulino Uzcudum, not to mention Champion Gene Tunney, who will draw a steady stream of dollars into the claims he has staked out in wooden arenas.

Profits Are Large

During his life, Rickard estimates he has taken in more than $10,000,000 in boxing receipts alone.

Fifteen of his fights have drawn gates of more than $150,000, eleven more than $200,000, nine more than $300,000, six more than $400,000, four more than $500,000, three more than $1,000,000, and one twice that sum.

More than half of these receipts have been clear profits.

The velvet in other sports has been nearly as high. The last six-day bike race, for instance, drew receipts of $400,000 and his expenses were only $100,000.

Because Tex has been such a competent miner, his associates in the Madison Square Garden corporation gave him a big testimonial dinner at the Commodore here May 16.

Famous figures in finance, politics, the professions, sports, all kinds of notables were there.

Snookum Jim made mining history in the Klondike.

HILL-CLIMBERS MAKE IT SEVEN GAMES IN ROW

Gliding along almost at prohibitive speed, the United Presbyterian Hill-Climbers had completed the first half of their Santa Ana Twilight league campaign today with a perfect record of seven victories and no defeats, their latest triumph having been effected, 13 to 1, late yesterday over the American Legion Bugle and Drum corps.

The unscatched league-toppers pounded Clyde Trusty's submarine offerings so freely that he was relieved of his asisgnment in the fourth, Frank Hantsbarger, his substitute, getting along a trifle better. Errors and walks were especially costly to the Legionnaires.

Raitt, the Hill-Climbers' boxman, allowed only one hit, a home run by Woods in the second canto.

Today's contest between Frances Willard Playground and the Smart and Finals will complete the first half of the Twilight league schedule. The score:

George Godfrey Wins On Points

CULVER CITY, June 24.—George Godfrey, Leiperville, Pa., Negro heavyweight, took the decision over Jake Kilrain, Portland Negro in the 10 round event here last night. Kilrain kept Godfrey tied up in the clinches. There were no knockdowns.

EXPERTS THINK POUGHKEEPSIE RACE OPEN ONE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—The annual regatta ofR 1927 may not be the best of the long series of races rowed under the heights of the Highlands here but it certainly promises to be the most turbulent.

Wisconsin is the only crew that has definitely withdrawn although rumors of illness, epidemics of mumps, measles and whatnot are flying thick and fast as the day of the colorful river classic approaches.

This is undeniably the season of upsets.

This spring the long cherished desire of California to beat Washington bore fruit and a short month later a pop-eyed Yale crew undefeated in five years of varsity and Olympic competition saw a sturdy and sophomoric Princeton shell zip by them in the placid waters of Lake Carnegie.

Huskies Have Hopes

When Washington lost to California the first comment relative to the future of the crew was that it might not come to Poughkeepsie for the annual race. The "Rusty" Callow squad, however, had barely returned home when a successful campaign was launched to raise $17,000, the price needed to ship the boatload of collegiates to the Hudson and west again.

Rusty has been working his head off in the meantime re-enforcing his eight with the strength needed not only to defeat California, which will be sweet revenge on its own account, but to defeat the Navy, which is the paramount ambition of Washington more than anything else.

The Huskies are going to defend their title—and, pardonably, how!

Bears Also Improving

California has been improving also and if both of the western crews come east with stamina enough to give the Navy a fight there will be a triangular competition never yet so great since the 'Keepsie meet began. And if there is an eastern crew other than the Middies powerful enough to give Washington and California a battle and incidentally to pester the Annapolis speedsters, this little affair this June is going to be one merry brawl.

Coach "Chuck" Logg says there will be a change in the course of the Hudson because a bridge that is being built must have its foundation piers even though they are in the way of college navigation.

There are always eddies around the piers of large bridges. If the course happens to be one in which it is necessary that the piers and bridges must be there, as on the Thames, the crews simply have to buckle down and trust to their shoulders and backs.

For the sake of time and mutual fairness, Logg wisely points out that the further any course can be laid from piers and such things, the better. It is easy enough to go up the Hudson and find good water for rowing. Krum's Elbow must be rounded now and it would not be any hardship if the lead to the turn were made longer than it is at present.

The finish is plenty far enough down the river, he says. It is a mile from the railroad bridge and if it is possible not to make any change at the finish it will be well for the race in every way. It wouldn't hurt in the least if the finish were a half mile closer to the bridge. There could not possibly be any more congestion on shore and it would reduce a rather tough walk over the railroad ties and rock ballast to try to get to the observation train.

EX-CHAMP OFF FOR SARATOGA TRAINING CAMP

NEW YORK, June 24.—Tex Rickard's application for permission to hold a heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey at the Yankee stadium July 21, was approved today by the boxing commission.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Jack Dempsey lost no time in getting to work today at the task of conditioning himself for his attempted comeback. Jack Sharkey, whom the former champion will fight July 21, busied himself with preparations for a week's fishing trip in Maine.

Dempsey left last night for his training camp at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Gus Wilson, his trainer, and other members of his staff had preceded him, leaving immediately after papers for the fight were signed at Madison Square garden yesterday. Dempsey's wife, Estelle Taylor, accompanied him.

Sharkey planned to start training in New York about July 5. The contracts signed yesterday called for a 15-round bout with Dempsey getting 27 1-2 per cent of the gate and Sharkey 22 1-2. Each posted a $2500 forfeit.

Dempsey also signed an agreement to fight Gene Tunney for the championship in September if he defeats Sharkey, and another to defend the title in 1928 under Rickard's lucrative auspices if he wins back the championship Tunney took from him in Philadelphia last year.

Rickard let it be known that he expected the fight to pull a $1,250,000 gate instead of the $1,000,000 total which previously had been estimated.

Top prices will be $27.50, the commission said, agreeing to Rickard's request to charge that much for the best seats. But, in approving the price, the commission told Rickard he could not charge more if a subsequent bout took place in New York for the heavyweight championship.

Rickard agreed and said he intended to stage the match between the winner of the Sharkey-Dempsey fight and Gene Tunney, the champion, in New York. It had been reported that Chicago had been agreed on as the place of the championship battle.

The commission announced that a physician would be sent in a few days to Dempsey's camp at Saratoga Springs to observe and examine him in an effort to determine whether the former champion is really fit to fight.

world series between Pittsburgh and Detroit.

National league umpires still get a laugh as the result of a run-in that Johnstone once had with Tom Lynch, former major league umpire, who at the time was president of the National league.

Lynch in his day was commonly referred to as the "King of the Umpires." The title stuck with him until his death.

Lynch had put Johnstone on the carpet over a certain ruling that had reulted in a protested game. The argument waxed warm between the two for a time, when an outburst on the part of Johnstone, spoken in all seriousness, caused Lynch to throw up his hands in despair and end the argument. Said Johnstone:

"So they call you the 'King of Umpires'! Well, just take it from me that I can see better around a corner than you could straightaway in your palmiest days."

DIRECT CURRENT NECESSARY

Eddie Handiboe, who worked with Johnstone in the American association, once told me an interesting story, showing Jim's peculiarities.

In his later year, Johnstone became very heavy and the warm weather bothered him greatly. To get comfort, he carried an electric fan with him around the circuit. This duty was delegated to Handiboe. The fan, by the way, required a direct current to operate it.

Going into a hotel, Johnstone would first register, then inquire of the clerk what current was used. If the clerk said direct, all was fine, but if his reply was, alternating, Johnstone in anger would fairly shout:

"This is a helluva hotel. Get that fan, Handiboe. We will try some place else."

The distance to be covered is 3157 miles and he thinks he can make it by knocking off at least 52 miles a day. He plans to start September 1.

Bob Cruickshank Leads Golf Field

DELAWARE GAP, Pa., June 24.—Bobby Cruickshank led the field in the eastern golf championship as the third round began today, but he was hard pressed by Willia Macfarlane, with three other competitors within easy striking distance.

Cruickshank had 143 for yesterday's 36 holes. Macfarlane was one stroke behind and Johnny Farrell, Shawnee Open tournament winner, was tied with Walter Hagen, last year's winner here, at 145.

PLAYER TRADES REVEAL TRICKY TURNS OF FATE

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 24.—The tricky turns of fate that make baseball what it is have a perfect illustration in the case of Hughie McQuillan, a pitcher who never seemed to realize his natural talents.

In 1922 McQuillan was with the Boston Braves and fans over the National league circuit predicted he might mount to the topmost rung. The Giants bought him for $100,000 and, by way of sealing the bargain, tossed in a young hurler known as Larry Benton.

Recently Benton was traded to the Giants. And McQuillan was one of the three New York players figuring in the deal. He has gone back to Boston with a cloudy past and a none too roseate future while Benton is recognized as one of the leading pitchers of the year.

Benton now is more highly regarded than was McQuillan five years ago before the latter failed to live up to expectations.

Hughie had a tough time with John McGraw. It may be that under Braves' management he can take advantage of previously wasted chances and become one of the stars of the league. But with McGraw he petered out.

Jawn has been trying to trade Hughie every year. He was going to the Cubs for Alexander in 1925 but the deal fell through. At another time McGraw planned to send him to Toledo as a punishment but that transaction also failed to materialize. There is no doubt that in addition to the clash of temperaments, Hughie was bothered by domestic troubles. He has figured in court actions when his mind should have been on pitching baseball.

The other giant pitcher who went to the Braves with McQuillan and Eddie Farrell in exchange for Benton, Taylor and Thompson also was a disappointment in New York. Kent Greenfield has lots of stuff and two years ago was looked upon as the New Yorkers' forth coming mound ace.

But Greenfield became obsessed with the idea that he was a hot weather pitcher and could not be expected to win games in the spring. If there is anything to the idea he will have a tough time at Boston where the cold weather hangs on longer than in any other big league city.

But McQuillan and Greenfield may work better for "Beauty" Bancroft than for John McGraw. Back of restraint at times improves the arm as well as the disposition.

Bankers Win Over Santa Ana Firemen

ers, and Gene Hitt of the Bankers, suffered thereby. The fates were particularly unkind to young Hafer for no less than three runs, the margin between victory and defeat were counted because of this unexpected interference.

Hafer's first mismortune occurred in the second frame when with two out and two on, Green's fly to center, under which was camped the talented Wayne Nelson, suddenly hit the wires and fell for a two-bagger. This same thing happened again in the seventh when the Shylocks scored thrice and broke a 5 to 5 tie. With this lead, Hitt "bore down" and the Firemen were out of luck.

With Newt Stark, the City league's leading batsman last summer, and Arold Norton, the University of California varsity player, both in the lineup, the Firemen looked like a real ball team. They will give some of the contenders trouble from now on.

RITON FIRST O START DUDE ANCH IN WEST

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—ht or nine years ago, or just r the World war had spent it- a British nobleman, craving venture, turned his longing eyes tward.

he wild excitement of war- e had fired his veins with a sion for thrills. He wanted a that would sate that passion, hout the risk of a limb, or of rip across the Great Divide.

e had heard and read of our t "wild west," here in the ntain and plain country of the kies. He wanted some of the that our own Colonel Cody, ffalo Bill) got out of living.

New Vacation Plan

o he landed in Wyoming, in far recesses of the Jackson e country, and became a cow- But he was always some- t of a tenderfoot, and the vages" called him "dude." And efrom sprang the name of de ranch," and out of the Bri- er's notion of what real high was, evolved a new idea, a plan in vacationing.

dude ranch is a place where enderfoot gets finished acad- c instruction in frontiership. rides the cowpony, throws the t, tramps the hills, and drags cool mountain streams for t, under the tutelage and guid- of a connoisseur of nature's and of her wonder spots.

nd after the Britisher got his t, his conception of a vaca- began to strike the fancy of land. From east, north, and h, ever increasing bands of ists each year have been look- to the mountain ranches of rado and the west for their and inspiring communion nature.

Ranches Become Popular

ude ranches are growing up all ugh the hills of the state. r fame as a vacation paradise spreading. Permit us to quote dude", who spent a part of summer in one of these glor- Edens.

When you get up into those hills your blood leaps, your s expand, and you begin to ize what is is to really live," boasted proudly.

You ask me what a dude ranch ike? Well, one gets there the tern life, without its old haz- and its dangers. He gets it shower baths and radio, and rolas, and soft cushions inter- gled.

The big, large-hearted, sun- ized fellows who run these ches, call themselves savages. the most savage trait I found their makeup was an aptitude taking a dude and make him and appreciate his God-given tage.

Lure to Tenderfoot

You ask me what I did way up this dream world? I watched cowboys swing their lariats nd the steers, and 'bust' the wild nags in the flying race round the corral. I rode over sun-flooded trails, paddled on silvery streams, and angled for speckled trout, in the cool clear mountain brooklets.

"Eating wasn't just a habit then, but rather a necessity. And sleep—oh man—how long, and sweet, and deep, and sound! I was in harmony with the universe, in love with God's great out of doors."

And so, these dude ranches retain much of the old charm of western life, affording modern improvements with good water, supply. Hikes, horseback riding, rowing, games, and music form the principal diversions.

Cost Is Moderate

The cost is moderate, and varies with the nature of guide service required, and the length of the various camping and side trips. Meals are varied and wholesome, and the atmosphere breathes restful throughout.

Many of the ranches have model dairies, with an ample supply of fresh milk, cream and butter; fresh gardens, with vegetables of all kinds, and hennerys, to furnish broilers and fresh eggs.

President Loebe Of Reichstag Is Liked In Austria

BERLIN, June 24.—A serenade by singers from another country in celebration of his recovery from a serious illness is a distinction which Paul Loebe, president of the Reichstag, probably enjoys alone of presiding officers of the world's parliamentary bodies.

Loebe several months ago had an acute attack of appendicitis. After a prolonged cure at Bad Mergentheim he was at last able to resume his duties. He had just finished presiding over his first meeting amid a sea of flowers sent by colleagues and friends, when the halls of the Reichstag building resounded with male chorus songs. The singers were railway employes from Vienna, on a visit to the German capital.

Loebe is very popular in Austria.

RUNS HIS FEET OFF

ATTLEBORO, Mass., June 24.—For nearly a year members of a fire company here were accompanied on their runs by Bozo, a dog they had befriended. Bozo rode on one of the truncks until recently, when he began running in front of the engines. The job proved too much. He ran so many miles that he actually ran the pads of his feet off and died from his injuries.

MESSAGE WITH WINGS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 24.—A colored woman entered a telegraph office the other day and asked, "You folks send flowers by telegrams, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Sho' nuff?"

"Yes."

"Well, then I wants you-all to send this here canary bird to Buren, Ahkansaw," she said, lifting a bird cage to the counter.

POOR ENGLISH FARMER IS OF ROYAL BLOOD

LONDON, June 24.—If William, duke of Normandy, had been defeated by King Harold at Hostings in 1066, Thomas W. Goodwin, British farmer, might today be filling the shoes of King George.

But Harold lost and England's kings have come and gone in changing cycles since that day nearly 900 years ago, so the lineal descendant of Harold's father is among te humblest of folk in "the tight little isle."

From dawn to dusk Thomas Goodwin, clad in nondescript clothes and heavy, mud-spattered shoes, toils in the fields and roads of the little Essex village of Berden for his humble board and wage. He knows, and most of Britain knows, that his ancestors were once rulers of England but there is no discontent flaming in his mind. For centuries his people have been farm laborers and it's pretty hard to keep the light of long-past glory alive under those circumstances.

Harold II, he who fought and died at Hastings, was the second son of the earl of Godwine. And it is the old earl to whom Goodwin traces his line. That venerated index to noble Great Britain, the Domesday Book, vouches for this, and the pastor of th ceountry parish where Goodwin lives has patiently traced out a faultless record of genealogy to the same purpose. It's all very interesting and something to be proud of, but beyond that Goodwin displays no excitement.

Resembles Saxon King

Trudging along an Essex lane with a cartload of hay, his sturdy frame and angular features are strikingly similar to those of the ancient Saxon kings who once governed England with feudal warfare.

That remote ancestor, the earl of Godwine, was liege lord of the West Saxons for many years. In 1051 he, together with his sons, was banished from England. But the family returned in the next year, and Godwine died in 1053, passing to Harold his earldom of the West Saxons. This title, combined with Harold's position as earl of the East Angles, made him the strongest man in the kingdom, and he virtually governed until the death of King Edward in 1066.

But this year, begun so auspiciously for the Godwine hierarchy, was to end in disaster. The Northmen revolted and scarcely had Harold succeeded in rbinging them to terms before the news of William's arrival from France was heralded. The Saxon king marched south, and the memorable battle of Hastings, that lasted from early morning until night, was fought. William was the victor and Harold and two brothers were slain. Those left in the Godwine family were deprived of their possessions and forced to work as common laborers on farms.

Became Farmers

reduced to what virtually amounted to serfdom, the long succession of Godwines (the name becoming modernized as Goodwin) resided in Essex. Thomas Goodwin, by his farm labor, earns about $10 a week and the right to live in a small thatched cottage in Berden.

Farther south along the east coast of England lie historic places associated with the name Goodwin. Where the North sea becomes the English channel, near Kent and Dover, are the Goodwin sands, ocean traps that have swallowed up many ships bound for the mouth of the Thames. These sands, legend recites, were at one time an island where the old earl of Godwine had a castle residence.

A high sea wall surrounded it to hold back the waves.

Fate Follows Family

But after that fateful year of 1066 the island, then in possession of Harold, was turned over to the abbey of St. Augustine at Canterbury. The abbot, little realizing the dangers of the lashing waves, allowed the sea walls to deteriorate, and eventually came a terrible storm in 1099. When the storm had passed, the villagers of Deal, which is directly opposite the sands on the mainland, looked to sea and saw nothing but the cold waves of the channel. Another Godwine estate had followed the fortunes of the family into oblivion.

The Goodwin sands today are known as the graveyard of the North sea. Many of the vessels that have gone to pieces there were heavy laden with treasure, and salvaging parties for years have tried to recover some of this wealth. But the treacherous sands seem to such their loot down into their depths, and leave no trace of what has been lost. They are constantly shifting, and for that reason constitute a terrible hazard, although at low water several feet of sand usually protrudes above the sea.

Still farther south, and around the corner of the British coast, is Hastings. Here, where the Godwines lost all, a golf club has located, using part of the ancient battlefield for its courst. But golf and the sea sands are allen to the bearer of the Godwine name. He is wedded to the soil, as half a hundred generations have been before him, and succeeding Goodwins will be.

CANNED WOODCHUCK

WORONOCO, Mass., June 24.—Nearly dead from suffocation, a woodchuck was found with his head tightly jammed into a tin can. After holes were cut to give the animal air, the can was removed from its head. After lingering awhile to show its gratiture, it wandered away.

INDIAN SHRINE WAS ON MOUNT ON HOLY CROSS

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—Indian superstitions and beliefs are closely interwoven with Colorado points of interest and foremost among these traditionally named places is the Mount of the Holy Cross. Many years ago one of the first nomadic tribes of Indians to venture into Colorado found the country about the foot of this peak abundant in game and water. So they stayed.

And the snows melted and the hillsides burst into green garments, but in the cross-like groove of the mountain near them the snows remained. Anything so unusual must smack of the supernatural, according to the Indian way of reasoning in those days, so they proceeded to worship the mountain. And after the passing of the redman and the coming of the white, the Mount of the Holy Cross still remained a thing of grandeur and wonder.

It may be seen just after leaving Tennessee Pass where the Pikes Peak Ocean-to-Ocean, highway crosses the bridge over the Eagle river. And from the railroad it is first seen just beyond the town of Pando as the train travels westward on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad.

But, on account of its inaccessibility, it has been little visited, people preferring to glimpse it from afar. But 10 years ago the forest service constructed a new trail up the side so that it is now possible to ride very close to the summit on horesback and the hardy mountaineer may scale the rest of the peak by foot, arriving at last to a height of 13,978 feet.

To make this trip the train or auto may be left at Red Cliff and the intervening 12 miles covered by horse or on foot, making the round trip easily in the one day. The vast forests and rolling valleys which serve as a reward for the arduous ascent, are of word-defying grandeur.

BERLIN PAPER SAYS KAISER IS 'DUMMY'

BERLIN, June 24.—One of the most significant comments on the prolongation of the Republican defense act, which keeps the former Kaiser out of Germany for at least two years longer, is the following from the Frankfurter Zeitung:

"The German nation can now expect other countries to look upon its system as firmly established and not to reproach us with the lifeless dummy of the past on every possible occasion. For some time to come theer will be Stalhelm raids in Germany. But if in London and Paris such things are held up against us to create distrust of the German republic, then sheer bad faith can only be the cause. He who has eyes to see can after this day no longer believe that a return of the monarchy is possible in Germany."

Our Neighbors

LANKERSHIM—A first survey of walnut producing sections in San Fernando valley indicates that a normal crop is in prospect, it is announced by David Brown, manager of the San Fernando Valley Walnut Growers' association. About 85 per cent of the producing orchards in the valley market their crops through the association. There are still about 6000 acres not yet producing or only partly productive because of the youth of the trees. According to growers, the rains of last winter put the orchards in excellent state and it is believed from present indications that the association will handle about 350 to 400 tons of walnuts before the harvesting season is completed.

VENTURA—Launching a nation-wide campaign to increase consumption of lima beans by asking grocers all over the country to accept a reasonable margin of profit on them as a necessity rather than to take a higher profit on them as a luxury, the Retail Grocers' association of Ventura county today prepared to send resolutions to this effect to every grocers' association in the United States. The situation was called to the attention of the county grocers by Frank Churchill, secretary of the California Lima Bean Grower's association, in a communication addressed to Matt Lehman, president which summarized the results of a nation-wide investigation into the retail prices. This survey, conducted from three individual angles, revealed that 40 per cent of the beans were being sold at 8 to 12 1-2 cents a pound retail, 40 per cent from 12 1-2 to 16 1-2 cents retail and 20 per cent from 16 1-2 to 22 cents a pound.

SAN DIEGO—The Common council has decided to submit to a vote of the people a $2,500,000 bond issue carrying the following items. Municipal airport, $650,000; harbor improvements, $450,000; repairs to Lake Hodges dam, $100,000; paving of Pershing drive, $60,000; building municipal golf links in Balboa park, $150,000; paving Sixth street in front of park, $40,000; new police station, $100,000; laying trunk-line water mains in the city, $250,000; purchase of riparian water rights in San Pasqual valley, $700,000, or more. The city attorney was directed to prepare the resolution to call the election at the earliest possible date, which it was stated, will be some time in August.

EL CENTRO—Imperial county supervisors have agreed to provide $4000 in their next budget for the Imperial Valley Midwinter fair to be held next December. This decision ends a controversy that was started three weeks ago when Brawley business men asserted that members of the board of supervisors were conferring with representatives of Imperial and El Centro to move the midwinter fair to a new site at Imperial. With financial aid from the county definitely assured, the Brawley Fair association has started active work on its next exposition.

PALO VERDE—Santa Fe traffic officials predict the largest cotton crop in the history of the Palo Verde valley will be harvested this fall. The cotton crop will be close to 20,000 bales, it is estimated by B. F. McGlothien, traveling agent, who has just returned from that district following a week's survey of agricultural conditions. Approximately 25,000 acres are under cultivation this year and will result in a marked increase as compared to the yield in the past two years. With continued success for the growers, the crop this year has been valued at $6,000,000, the estimate being based on current market conditions.

'SLEEPING GIRL' MAY LIVE FOR YEARS, BELIEF

FRESNO, June 24.—Lying in a world of darkness, bereft of all higher human faculties, Mrs. Clara Drummond, 22, who has lain unconscious in the county hospital for 81 days, may live for years, Dr. Neil Dau, Fresno physician, declares.

Dr. Dau stated that Mrs. Drummond was not the victim of sleeping sickness, as first believed, but that hers is an extremely rare case of partial gas-poisoning.

The woman was found April 4 in a gas-filled room. Since then she has not recovered consciousness. Dr. Dau said the exposure to the gas destroyed the higher nerve faculties of hearing, sight, speech and muscular control.

"The peculiarity of this case," Dr. Dau said, "Is that the breathing, heart and digestive functions are left unimpaired. Mrs. Drummond may live indefinitely."

Mrs. Drummond is the first known victim of this strange malady in California, the physician agreed. One other case is known, that of a Frenchman, who survived for one month.

Fed through a tube, Mrs. Drummond has lived for nearly three months, losing 20 pounds in weight.

Science offers no means of rescuing the young woman from her living death in a darkened, soundless, unhuman tomb of her nerveless body.

GERMANS ATTEMPT TO CURB SUICIDES

BERLIN, June 24.—Measures to combat the heavy toll of student suicides have been taken by the Prussian Ministry of Education in ordering the abolition of written final examinations in junior high schools.

Oral tests extending over periods of several days in each subject will be substituted.

Although the majority of instructors and superintendents expressed doubt as to the advisability of dispsnsing with written final tests, the ministry of education announced that the new system will be given a trial to appease thousands of parents who blamed nervous breakdowns of pupils for the large number of suicides.

It is estimated that more than 150 junior high school students have killed themselves in Prussia this year.

London Cabbies Use Royal Arch

LONDON, June 24.—Taxicabs are being allowed to pass in and out of Hyde Park through the Wellington arch, by special permission of King George, while the road through the gate ordinarily used is under repair. The rigid rule that the Wellington arch must be kept for royal use was temporarily relaxed in the interests of efficiency.

Other London arches that are for royal use only are the Marble arch and the central arch of Admiralty gate. The Horse Guards arch in Whitehall is available for cabinet ministers, members of the army council, and other state dignitaries.

Sewing Girls To Get Work Chairs

PARIS, June 24.—Chairs instead of stools are proposed for the thousands of girls and women who sew for nine hours or more every day in Paris dressmaking establishments.

HAS FOUR LEGS

ORANGE, Tex., June 24.—Maggie Knox, negress, entered her chicken house the other day, stared open-mouthed at a tiny creature that scuttled about the floor. It was a four-legged baby chick, healthy, even stronger than the others of the new brood. Maggie smacked her lips at the prospect of four drumsticks to each fowl, longed for a way to perpetuate the species.

Like the man who operates an engine of enormous "horse-power," the Safeway Man—through the thousand "store power" at his command—is equipped to far outdistance all others in the race to satisfactorily serve the food-buying public. Never before in the history of Western merchandising have such facilities for handling the necessities of life without waste been available to men trained in their efficient operation. Such facilities in the hands of an organization of men whose inflexible purpose is to reduce waste in distribution to the minimum have enabled us to wipe out many useless profits and overheads which the ordinary dealer must pay and add to the price he charges the consumer. Through this unparalleled "store power" the "spread" between producer and consumer is materially reduced—to your very great profit.

SHINA TEMPEST SUBSIDED: NOW GENTLE ZEPHYR

PEKING, June 24.—While the tempest in China has subsided for the moment, leaving three governments standing where but two stood before—one at Peking, one at Nanking, one at Hankow—foreign interest is concentrated on what efforts, if any, the scattered leaders of the Cantonese Nationalist party will or can make to save face with the powers with whom they have been in conversation, claiming to represent the Chinese people. For while Chinese nationalism, as distinguished from the Russian brand offered by the late Nationalist party, is stronger than ever throughout all China, the Nationalist party—whose revolution alarmed the world powers, paralyzed China trade, almost ruined the Yangtze valley and closed the door to Christian missionaries in the southwest—has definitely split, unable to hold together because of blatant construction work for which Moscow architects were responsible.

Chiang Issues Challenge

Today finds the military arm of the so-called Nationalist party, led by General Chiang Kai-shek, definitely "dug in" at Nanking whence it has issued a declaration of war on the Muscovite army at Hankow, led by Michael Jacob Borodin, who has offered a reward of $250,000 for Chiang Kai-shek's head or $100,000 for him alive. T. V. Soong, brother-in-law of Dr. Sun Yat-sen and finance minister of the late Nationalist government, fled to Chiang Kai-shek's side and then suddenly resigned and went to Shanghai, where he lives in the international settlement, under the protection of "imperialist" troops and warships. Dr. Sun Fo, son-in-law of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, is Chiang Kai-shek's new foreign minister, and Chiang Kai-shek himself is the new dictator of all that rich southeast territory between Nanking and Shanghai.

Headquarters in French Hospital

At Hankow, Borodin and Eugene Chen and Mrs. Sun Yat-sen are the only ones left of the original National government. Borodin, representing Russian imperialism, is living in the French Sisters' Hospital in the French concession under the French flag and within the French barricades when, as dictator of the Yangtse valley, he issues his orders. What Chen is doing there is not quite clear to the rest of China, for he is maintaining a silence that may be regarded as peculiar or discreet or enforced. Mrs. Sun has remained, it has been definitely established, solely to keep in touch with the women's political movement she has started.

Nanking, threatened by northern forces across the river at Pukow, has sent a punitive expedition of 100,000 picked men against Hankow. Hankow, imperilled by the Chang Tso-lin advance through Honan, has placed its defense under General Tang Sheng-chih, a political rival of Chiank Kai-shek.

Nanking Lacks Money

The so-called Nanking government has no money, but it has excellent credit because it controls, for the time being, the Shanghai area, rich in opium and other squeeze. The so-called Hankow government, which has been getting $1,100,000 gold a month for its war expenses, now depends upon Moscow alone for financial support. For the Yangtze valley is denuded to such an extent that the so-called government has confiscated all silver. Trade is not paralyzed, for there is no trade. And Eugene Chen is pleading with the foreigners, who were driven out of there less than 60 days ago, to return. All food supplies, even rice, are being rationed out to the inhabitants.

That is the situation in the much-heralded Nationalist party, whose propaganda to the effect that the only thing wrong with China was the foreigner and that the revolution was aimed at the unity of China, was swallowed hook, sinker and line by many Americans, including misinformed Washington politicians.

Achievements Summed Up

Three outstanding results have been achieved by the so-called Nationalist party up to the present moment. They are:

(1) It jolted the foreign powers, particularly Britain, into full consciousness of their incorrect position in the country.

(2) It put the foreign powers to huge expense to maintain any sort of a foothold in China, an expense that foreign taxpayers who know little about China and care less will in all likelihood have to continue to foot for many months to come.

(3) Instead of accomplishing the unity of China it has brought further disunity, making of the internal China situation a three-ring circus instead of a two-ring affair.

Yet more than ever divided internally as she is, China is today more united than she ever has been on the question of foreign policy. The unequal treaties will have to go.

Judge Hears His Own Case, Levies His Own Penalty

STOCKTON, Calif., June 24.—"Cecil S. Johnston," said Police Judge Johnston, as his traffic court convened, "you are charged with making a left turn on Main street. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Well, Judge," said Johnston, "I did make this left-hand turn, but you see it was like this—"

"That's an old one," interrrupted Judge Johnston. "I'm afraid it won't get you anywhere. The usual fine for this offense is $1, but it will be $5 in your case because you ought to know better."

After fining himself, he complimented the policeman who cited him to appear in court.

NEW YORK, June 24.—James Hocking, a youngster of 73, is after the walking records of Edward Payson Weston. He has covered 1500 miles this year, often walking 40 miles in a single day. Last year he walked 4000 miles.

COLLAR BUTTON BRINGS SORROW TO NEWLYWEDS

DENVER, Colo., June 24—There's no doubt about it, some little thing that isn't worth a ciraget coupon at a church social can raise more 'Ned' with human existence than a whole block of mortgaged houses and monthly payment cars, according to City Chaplain Val Higgins.

A girl dropped into the office of the chaplain recently and announced that trouble had taken her out on a tour of the city. "But I didn't have to walk back, and he didn't take my rings. It's nothing at all like that. Two or three days ago I left my husband, and I'm broke and have got to eat, and I came down here to you."

No Other Woman

"He's been going around with other women, I suppose," said the chaplain.

"Oh, no; it's nothing at all like that."

"Beat you up? Took you for a cleaning before and after his meals?"

"Oh, no; he never beat me. Nothing at all like that."

"elatives bothering you. Someone butting in?"

"No relatives—nothing like that."

"I'm not good at guessing," decided the chaplain. "Let's have it," he urged.

Chaplain Learns Secret

"Well," she began, "it sounds a little foolish, but we had a quarrel the other day and my husband insulted me. He told me why he married me."

Here she broke down and cried and the chaplain was pretty uncomfortable and is still trying to figure out whether he did the right thing in sending her back to her husband.

According to Chaplain Higgins the fellow, all his life, has had a thunder of a time getting dressed in the morning. Was never all there, was never quite awake and was always fumbling around and dropping this and that.

And then he met the girRl, but wasn't in love with her, wasn't at all nutty about her eyes, her hair, her form or her disposition. Didn't crave a home, children or tasty cooking. But married her. Went through the whole blasted business from license to benediction. Hooked himself for the rest of his days. Dedicated part of his monthly paycheck to the perpetuity of cosmetics and the bargain counter. Got himself a circus troupe of in-laws. Gave up for all time his undivided interest in the night life of the city, and did it—

So he would have someone around when he got up in the morning who would get down on the bedroom floor and crawl around and find his collar button!

DANCES LIKE MUSIC

PARIS, June 24.—One-two-three-dip. One - two - three - kick. Right foot forward, turn on the balls of both feet and start again. These, or the most intricate of dance steps, may be read like a music score from the system of "dansographie," a system invented by a Parisian dancing master. He "writes" his dances in strange markings, believes the plan will become a universal language of the dance.

CENTURY BOULEVARD

The organizers of the Century boulevard association should and probably will receive hearty support from the land owners in the district involved, as well as from citizens throughout the county. In this day and age good roads are not luxuries; they are necessities.

The Century boulevard will be 100 feet wide, assuring safe and fast time to and from Los Angeles. It is understood that land owners in the Garden Grove section already have signed rights-of-way deeds or agreements and that owners of parcels of land in other sections are co-operating heartily.

More and more people are buying more automobiles. Formerly it was the custom for a family to have one automobile, but nowadays a well-to-do family may have two and sometimes three and four cars. Once upon a time, only the rich or well-to-do had even one automobile, but in these piping times of peace and prosperity nearly everybody has a car. Then again, newcomers are constantly settling among us and nearly all of them have cars, or immediately acquire them.

Orange county needs the Century road. Perhaps the need is not pressing just at this time, but the need will continue to grow greater. No doubt actual construction of the Century boulevard will not begin for many months, probably not for a year or two years, but the need is there and the sooner the rights of way are secured and actual work started the better.

GETTING THE TRUTH ABOUT CHINA

Lately they have been taking down the barricades in Shanghai. That is to say, the "foreign" settlements in that great commercial city have been removing the defenses they set up a few months ago, with dramatic impressiveness, to protect their white residents from the "fury of yellow hordes."

They were safeguarding themselves and their property particularly from the Nationalists, sweeping up from Canton, under the leadership of Chiang Kai-Shek. Those Nationalists, they loudly declared, were anti-foreign, red themselves and dominated by Red influence from Moscow, determined to sweep Europeans into the sea and establish a Communist system that would make China unsafe for all whites.

The Nationalists have reached Shanghai, and flowed around it like a river in flood, and swept on in pursuit of the shifty northern war lords and their tattered armies. And the frightened foreigners in Shanghai are safe—so safe that they stop shrieking for armies and navies to defend them, and resume business as usual.

It is seen now more clearly that the great masses of Chinese are not rabid against foreigners, as they were in the Boxer movement of a generation ago; that there was a lot of false propaganda sent out from Shanghai to win the attention of the powers; that the Nationalist party and army represent, in a general way, the best aspirations of modern China; that Moscow has had far less influence in Chinese policies and programs than the world was led to believe; that the greatest peril to China lies not in the Cantonese movement, but in the northern movement for reaction, led by men who represent brigandage and reaction rather than principle and intelligent modernism.

MAGICIANS AT WORK

At an annual meeting of the International Brotherhood of Magicians in the little city of Kenton, Ohio, such feats as this have been performed before the amazed populace:

One magician, blindfolded with 11 heavy bandages, has driven a car at top speed through the noonday traffic, starting, stopping and parking at command, just as if he could see clearly what he was doing.

Another, perched on one of the approaches to the courthouse, has hypnotized a subject by radio, the subject being placed in a show window a block away and the hypnotic commands transmitted to him through a loudspeaker.

Another has had himself bound in a straight jacket and locked in a stout coffin, wound about with rope, and made his appearance in a few minutes.

Another has "caught in his teeth" a bullet fired from an old horse pistol.

In the olden days those wonder-workers would have been either worshipped as gods, or burned to death, according to the popular state of mind. Now, thanks to Houdini and other professional magicians, people know that it is all a matter of dexterity and natural law. Though to tell the truth, the stunts may be none the less wonderful for that reason than if they were really supernatural.

EDUCATIONAL ATHLETICS

The problem of athletics in high schools and colleges has arisen because of two different points of view.

On the one hand are educators who believe that athletics has a legitimate place in any well-rounded educational system along with literature, science, mathematics, and the other academic and technical subjects.

On the other hand are the onlookers who demand intercollegiate athletics as a great public spectacle and the alumni who demand athletic victories as advertising for their alma mater. These onlookers and alumni have had their way in recent years until the whole system has brought trouble and criticism to the schools.

A change seems to be coming. Dr. Storms, president of Baldwin-Wallace college, remarked recently:

"We believe that 'high pressure' coaching that aims to win at all costs, nerves the team to an abnormal tension, scouts for athletics regardless of scholarship and puts sole emphasis upon intercollegiate contests, is losing credit in the college world." Athletics that help to educate will be the future aim.

Possibly this is true, although the change will not be completely effected this year or next. There are all those new and expensive stadiums throughout the country which have to be paid for with large gate receipts. And there are still the alumni who keep their scholarship and athletic ambitions for the old school in quite separate compartments of their minds and consider a good coach more important than a good educator. Yet it is not a hopeless outlook. A saner balance is bound to be struck one of these days.

Cites America's Shortcomings

Pasadena Star-News

Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, holds this Nation in very high esteem. There is no discounting his patriotic pride in his native land. But he is not blind to America's defects. He finds defects. But he is not pessimistic about them. He believes that they will be overcome, in due time.

Speaking at the dedication of a memorial park at Hammond, Indiana, Mr. Coolidge cited a few flaws in the life of the Nation. Too many are unprovided with the advantages of education. The number who are lacking in religious devotion "is altogether too large." While the United States has reached the highest point in material prosperity ever achieved, "there is a considerable class of unskilled workers who have not come into full participation in the wealth of the Nation; although our government is sound and our courts are excellent, too many of us disregard the obligations of citizenship by neglecting to vote, and violence and crime are altogether too prevalent." Thus having cited several serious failings in America, Mr. Coolidge observed that "our delinquencies are sufficient to require us to put forth all our efforts to work toward their elimination."

But Mr. Coolidge does not despair of the Republic by any means. He finds that amid all her prosperity, "America has not forgotten her ideals." He prophesies a "wonderful future" for this Nation. But this must come through "the industry, the devotion and the character of the people themselves."

Ignorance; non-voting; disregard of law; flouting of religion; inequity; indistribution of wealth—these are real flaws and would become quite menacing if not checked and eventually eliminated.

He is a better citizen and a purer patriot who, while recognizing and appreciating the glories and the idealities of national life, at the same time recognizes the national shortcomings and lends his support to their correction.

March Field Needs Support

Riverside Press

The statement here Thursday by Major General Cheatham, quarter-master general of the United States army, ought to furnish a potent stimulus to Riversiders toward giving proper support to March field. General Cheatham explained that Congress failed to pass the army deficiency bill at the last session just as it neglected to approve numerous other worthy measures. At the coming session an appropriation providing in excess of a million dollars for the local airbase will be presented. On the fate of that appropriation largely hinges the future of the field.

There doesn't seem to be the shadow of a doubt that Congress will make this money available. But strange happenings have been known to occur at Washington, and Riverside will do well to spare no efforts toward trying to get the March field appropriation through at the earliest possible moment. Congressman Swing can be relied on to do his utmost, but he will need solid and enthusiastic backing.

If funds are provided the War Department will build at March Field what General Cheatham described in Los Angeles Thursday night as "a gem" of army posts. March field, with the development of aviation, will become more and more of an asset to Riverside. The navy flying base for the Pacific coast is at San Diego. It is not illogical to hope that March field eventually will be made the principal army aviation establishment of the West coast. But Congress must first appropriate the money.

Health Topics

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor of Journal of American Medical Association

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of two health talks on Seasickness—its cause and cure.

SEASICKNESS MALADY PUZZLES BEST MEDICAL SCIENCE

There are as many views of the cause of seasickness as there are specialties in the practice of medicine. Neither the physiologic nature nor the causes of the condition are known. Attempts to treat the condition by all sorts of medicines have failed in most instances, and mechanical appliances of one type or another or habits of life have been equally without effect.

The Russian physiologist, W. W. Boldyreff, has recently considered the various available views as to the nature of this disturbance. Boldyreff points out that seasickness is not confined to people on the ocean, but may be associated with various types of land occupation. Some persons develop the condition when riding on street cars or trains, some by swinging and seesawing, some persons get it when houses are shaken by the wind, others by riding up and down on elevators.

Rocking is not the special motion most frequently responsible, as is obvious from the fact that babies do not get seasick when rocked, and that rocking chairs are widely used without producing seasickness in adults.

Some persons develop the type of nausea associated with seasickness when climbing mountains or looking down from high places.

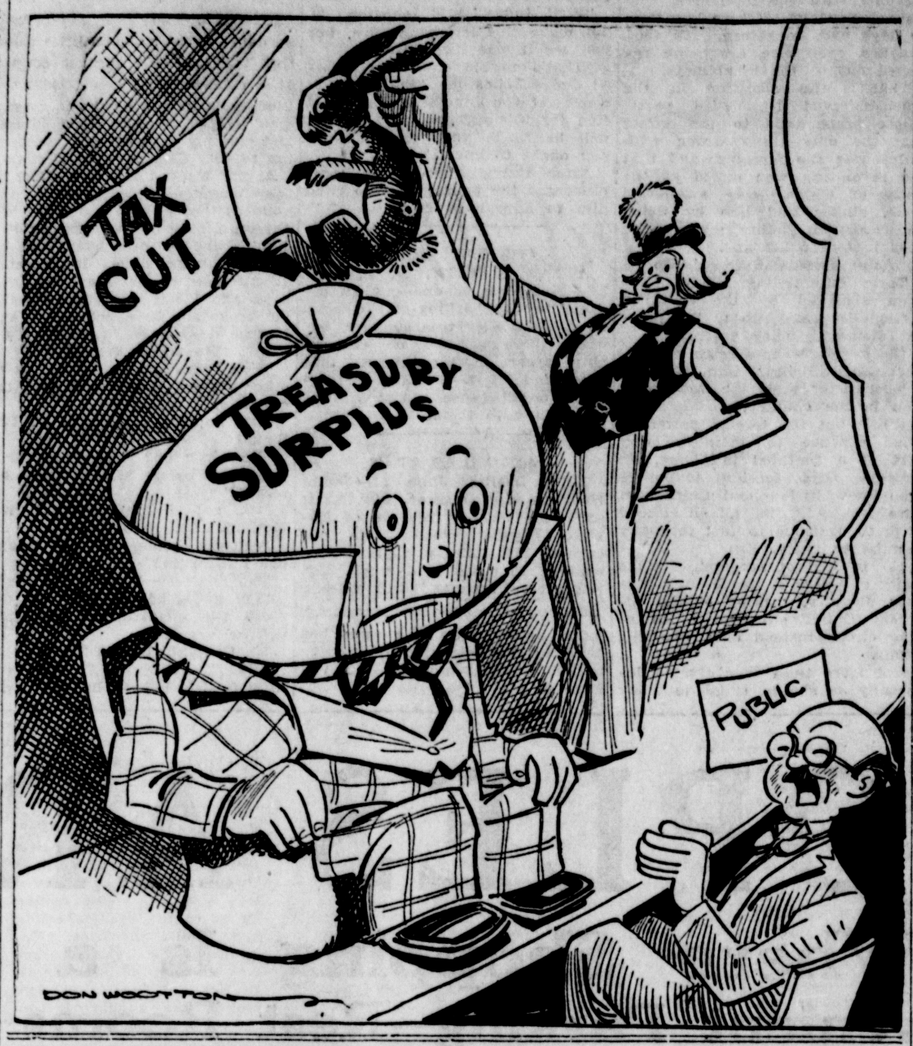

Many persons become quite seasick during aerial flights, so many indeed that the airplanes flying between London and Paris are regularly equipped for taking care of the nausea of passengers. Nor is seasickness confined to human beings exclusively, since this type of disturbance has been seen in most domestic animals and even in birds.

The Russian physiologist has noted that the attacks come on at regular intervals and that they accompany an abundant secretion of saliva. A series of experiments on the movements and activities of the stomach causes Boldyreff to believe that the symptoms of seasickness are associated with periodic activity of the stomach due to irritation of the lining of the intestines by the digestive juices which come into it in large quantities. Disorders of the stomach and of the intestines predispose to seasickness, and he has found that persons with such disorders may be caused to have an attack of seasickness by filling the small intestine with a large amount of saliva or of water.

The periodic activity of the stomach and intestines, which seems to have something to do with seasicknes, he believes, is more pronounced in young people and animals, more noticeable in women than in men. It is increased by cooling the body and stopped temporarily by fear or pain, but coming back, as these sensations cease, with greater force.

A Tribute to Trees

Sacramento Bee.

In the recent issue of a trade publication, William Feather writes:

"I had been reading in a New York newspaper about the chopping down of the last of the trees on Fifth avenue and the writer was making a plea for the planting of more trees.

"I went out on the porch to call the children to bed, and as my eyes swept the city street on which I live most of the year, I was thrilled by the prospect before me. Beautiful thirty-year-old maples line each side. It was May and the foliage was in its freshest, liveliest green; the leaves were tender and fresh, washed by the frequent spring showers.

"Trees will do more for a street than a platoon of landscape architects and a regiment of gardeners, with their formal shrubbery and manicured lawns. A tree is nature's grandest urbane gesture. A street without a tree is as dull as the top of a billiard table. Fine, big trees do for a street what a vase of flowers does for a room. Flowers, with their fresh, delicate colors and faint perfume turn your eyes from scarred furniture and worn upholstery, just as a noble tree softens the ugliness of the architecture and lifts your eyes from the hard roads and sidewalks."

Sacramentans will echo these sentiments as they look upon some of our own wonderfully beautiful tree lined streets.

These should be extended as the city grows. When new streets are laid out, planting of trees along them should be considered no less important than the laying of the pavement.

How refreshing is their shade on these warm summer days!

WANTED—CHRISTIAN STATESMEN

As those who, helpless, stand upon the bank
Of a swift river, swollen to a flood
By raging mountain torrents, so are we,
Powerless, beside a foul and turbid stream
Of crime, and want, and feverish unrest,
Unable either to arrest the flow,
Or check the toll of death and suffering.

Yet need we not sit selfishly apart
At ease in homes of safety; rather stand
With feet implanted firmly on the shore,
Alert and steadfast, if so be that we May snatch one from the current to the land,
Or hold back some just slipping on the brink.

And let us not lose heart. This rampant stream,
The aftermath of world-wide, savage war,
Like springtime freshet flood, will run its course.
Such evil cannot last. It will abate,
And within normal bounds, may be controlled.
Now is the time for Christian Statesmanship,
For leaders strong and just, ready to guide
These seething forces into channels sane.
Never again must might out-general right,
And gain supremacy in this our land.
The brave, the pure, the strong, the wise must stand
Together as one man and save the world.

—Gazelle Stevens Sharp.

Time To Smile

NO JOKING MATTER

White, who was small and puny, had offended Brown, who was tall and powerful. In consequence, Brown declared he would thrash White whenever he met him.

One day ill-fortune threw them together and true to his promise, the big man gave White a blow on the face that almost knocked him down.

Recovering himself, the victim exclaimed: "Confound it! Do you mean that in jest or earnest?"

"In earnest," replied the other, adopting a fighting attitude.

"Oh, very well," said White. "If it's in earnest there's nothing more to be said, but if it had been in jest I shouldn't have liked it at all."—Tit-Bits, London.

Glenn Martin, local aviator, demonstrated the fact that his new hydro-airplane was a success by making three flights over Newport bay.

H. H. Roper, building inspector, gave the Grand Opera house a thorough examination and reported that the building was absolutely safe to carry a "live-load" to its seating capacity. He stated, however, that the exits were inadequate.

Members of the executive board of Ebell society and chairmen of various committees were guests at a party held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Nau, of Tustin, president.

The Rev. Paul E. Wright, pastor of the First Christian church, and his little daughter, Elizabeth, narrowly escaped death when the bicycle on which they were riding barely missed colliding with an automobile.

The Rev. B. C. Johnson, pastor of the Free Methodist church, returned from the Southern California conference of that denomination which was held in Los Angeles.

THE GARDEN NEXT DOOR

I see my neighbor's garden,
A laughing, loving garden
Where bright the flowers and gay the flowers
In sweet abandon grow
I gaze upon their blooming,
Their lovely lively blooming
Among the leaves, the shining leaves

I love my neighbor's garden
Her greening, growing garden;
Her gillyflowers, her lily flowers
Her roses and her rue.
How wonderful to labor
That one may give a neighbor
Such sweet perfume, such fragrant bloom.

CHRONICLES OF THE LITTLE GRAY HOUSE

There is a little clump of blackberry bushes growing against the fence behind the Little Gray House. Every time I look at them, I see in my mind's eye, a hot August sun, shining on the white dust of a country road, and on the rich purple blackberries that cluster on the tangle of vines in the corner of the old rail fence.

But these blackberry vines at the Little Gray House bear magic fruit. May I tell you about it?

It was one of those weary days at the office. You all know the kind. Nothing of any outstanding interest or moment. Just a day. And you know the days that remain at a dead level are tiresome. I didn't walk home—I just wandered more or less aimlessly and the wandering finally brought me to the Little Gray House.

The front screen door seemed to stand open. There was a little white package just inside which kept it from swinging to. And on top of the package was the friendliest little note imaginable. And it said that my "neighbor across the alley "couldn't resist the ripe blackberries that hung over the fence, and had made them into jelly. And the little white package was a glass of the most delicious blackberry jelly you ever ate on hot biscuits!

No longer was it "just a day." Instead it was one of those delightful Days in Which Things Happen. And I hope my Neighbor Across the Alley—whose name I don't know, will enjoy the berries as much as I enjoyed the glass of jelly—and the note.

COLUMBUS OF THE SKY

Cleaving the dark night, upon swift clouds he rides
Into the stinging gale, where Death in ambush hides.
Chill and alone, yet borne by purpose high
He wings his dauntless way across the arching sky.

At last courageous youth defeats man's ancient foe,
With vision clear and unafraid, where once no man might go;
He shrinks the yawning miles, which kept men's souls apart,
And with his silken cord of faith he binds them heart to heart.

Brave Herald of a long-sought Peace! Columbus of the sky!
A surging hope dawns rosily, that man henceforth shall try
Dark chasms of distrust and hate upon this earth to span
With faith in the Eternal Love, and Brotherhood of Man.

EDITH W. THATCHER.

HIS "MOTTER"

I clipped the following from one of our numerous periodicals recently, I do not remember which one so cannot give proper credit. I thought it so unique and also worthwhile that I decided not to put it away in a big box of other clippings but pass it on for other readers of the Patch Work Quilt.

DORKAS.

The Villager's "Motter"

A village minister, visiting one of his parishioners, a steady-going old fellow who was a frequent attendant at the church services, came across a neatly written card on the wall. On questioning him, he found that it was what he termed his "motter," and certainly it was a motto which might be adopted by many of those ever-wavering people. The card read thus:

Bite off more than you can chew,
Then chew it.
Plan more than you can do,
And do it.
Hitch your wagon to a star,
Keep your seat, and there you are!

The OPTIMISTIC PHILOSOPHER

It ain't so bad, this old world aint
As folks declares who make complaint
When things look blue
An' the road is rough,
Why fret and stew
An' swear it's tough?
It's a fine ol world—ain't seen one yet
That's half as good as ours, you bet!

It ain't so bad this old mud ball,
As some folks tell us, after all;
Fer there's a smile
Fer every sigh,
When troubles pile
Up mountain high,
It's only the grouchy sour-faced cuss
Who swears that the world is a growin' wuss.

It ain't so bad, this planet here
As would-be kickers make it 'pear
If the rain comes down
When you want sunshine,
Don't growl an' frown,
An' sputter an' whine
But take what comes, an' don't complain
Cuz you want sunshine an' just git rain,
So, don't find fault, my friend, cuz you
Can't have things go as you wish they'd do.

If we'll only take
Just what is sent
The Lord will make Us all content.
It's the best ol' world, if we let Him run
Things by the plan that He's allus done.

I'VE BEEN READING

"ROMAN SUMMER" by Ludwig Lewisohn, a tale of an Ohio youth who longs all his boyhood and early manhood for Rome, and meets life in a strange manner because of the even stranger influence exerted upon him by his mother.

John Austin, the hero of the book, or could he be called a hero? It doesn't matter. What does matter, is that he goes to Rome, learns what love is, and comes back home to see Columbus and the ugly little lake town of Sandusky, with new eyes. "Esther Azancot" the young Jewess he meets and loves in Rome, is a fascinating study but even with his beautiful phrasing and unimpeachable language throughout, Lewisohn could not convince me that, having loved Esther, John Austin could ever be attracted by the little Ohioan, "Louise" who just peeps in at the final chapter.

Ludwig Lewisohn writes beautifully. His prose is musical, yet dignified as possible. He seems to want to give a message in his book, but somehow, just falls short. Altogether it was a strangely unsatisfying sort of a book.

The Hop Robins Return

A Story in Six Parts
By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

PART V.—The Cuckoo's Story

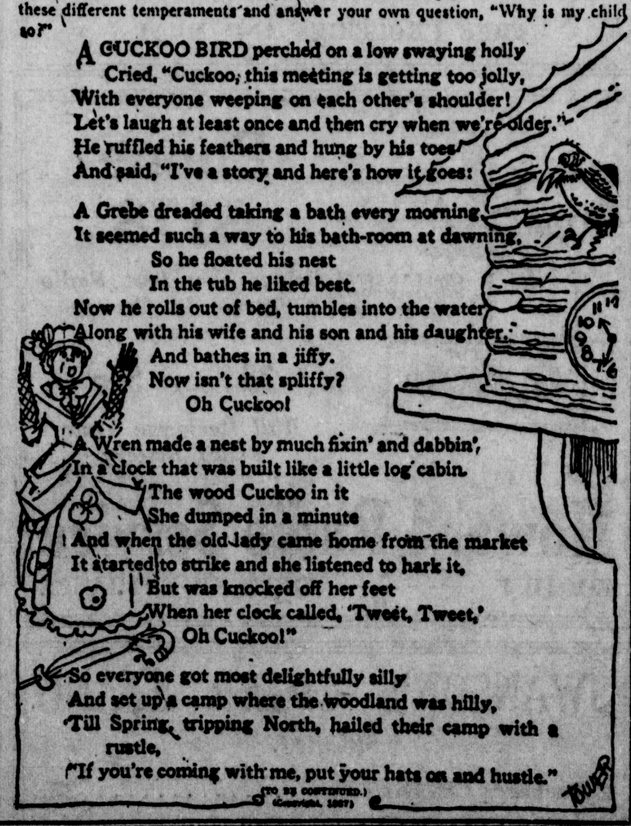

BIRDS have personalities and dispositions just as truly as humans and many of them look the part. Consider, for instance the solemn old pelican, the drab stately morning dove, the rascally crow, the nervous and excitable tern, and the merry little song sparrow. Consider, too, the effect upon one of contact with these different temperaments and answer your own question, "Why is my child so?"

A CUCKOO BIRD perched on a low swaying holly
Cried, "Cuckoo, this meeting is getting too jolly,
With everyone weeping on each other's shoulder!
Let's laugh at least once and then cry when we're older."
He ruffled his feathers and hung by his toes
And said, "I've a story and here's how it goes:

A Grebe dreaded taking a bath every morning
It seemed such a way to his bath-room at dawning,
So he floated his nest
In the tub he liked best.
Now he rolls out of bed, tumbles into the water
Along with his wife and his son and his daughter,
And bathes in a jiffy.
Now isn't that spliffy?
Oh Cuckoo!

A Wren made a nest by much fixin' and dabbin',
In a clock that was built like a little log cabin.
The wood Cuckoo in it
She dumped in a minute
And when the old lady came home from the market
It started to strike and she listened to hark it,
But was knocked off her feet
When her clock called, 'Tweet, Tweet,'
Oh Cuckoo!"

So everyone got most delightfully silly
And set up a camp where the woodland was hilly,
Till Spring, tripping North, hailed their camp with a rustle,
"If you're coming with me, put your hats on and hustle."
